Fallen City Of Mukden Is Bombed By Chinese

Victors Complete Occupation Task; Chiang Promises To Continue Fight

Nanking, Nov. 1 (AP).—Communist armies under General Lin Piao completed the occupation of Mukden at 3 p. m. today.

One hour later Chinese government planes bombed that teeming Manchurian metropolis.

This news came from an authoritative source.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek acknowledged unspecified "reverses" in Manchuria, but vowed to fight on, and said North China was not yet directly menaced.

The Chinese government still had not admitted Mukden's loss, but a spokesman acknowledged that available information was "very confusing."

The United States consulate maintained its normal brief radio contacts Monday.

[Associated Press Correspondent Spencer Moosa in Peiping reported that a radio message from the United States Consulate in Mukden at 7:30 a. m. Monday (6:30 p. m. Sunday, EST) warned against any American aircraft flying to the fallen city. No explanation was given.]

There was no word about casualties or damage from the bombing, but numerous bombs fell.

Several exploded within two blocks of the United States Consulate, occupied by Consul General Angus Ward, his wife, a staff of nine Americans and two American-born children of a Japanese mechanic.

Twenty-two British and 30-odd French, including their consuls, also still are in Mukden.

Immediately after entering the city, the Communist "Northeastern People's Peace Committee" issued a proclamation urging the public to remain calm and promising an era of peace and prosperity.

After having lain silent all Sunday and Sunday night, Mukden heard heavy artillery and small

$5,000,000 Arms Sale To China Is Approved

The United States announced yesterday approval of Chinese arms purchases totaling five million dollars and speeded shipment of previous purchases, but there was no prospect that American aid might improve the immediate position of President Chiang Kai-shek's forces.

The new military supplies, one official said, might not make up for arms and ammunition captured by Chinese Communists in Manchuria, or handed over there by Chiang's disintegrating armies. At the most, he said, the supplies might arrive in time to help a little in the defense of North China.

British Bill Hits Electric Gadgets Affecting Radio

London, Nov. 1 (U.P.)—The government announced tonight it would introduce legislation making persons who use electric razors during peak radio listening hours subject to fines and possibly jail sentences.

The bill lists 69 other gadgets which produce interference with radio or television reception. For example, motorists who park their cars near television receivers will be asked to fit suppressors to their motors.

Passage of the bill would mean that each household would have to pay from 50 cents to $76 for suppressors for electrical appliances. Under the bill, any person refusing to use suppressors after his neighbors had complained would be liable to a $400 fine or three months' imprisonment.

Israel Denies U. N. Report On Lebanon

Haifa, Israel, Nov. 1 (AP). — A United Nations spokesman said today Israeli forces had refused to comply with a U. N. request to withdraw from Lebanese soil.

This statement was promptly challenged by an Israeli spokesman in Tel Aviv. He denied any Israeli forces had crossed the Lebanese border at any point and said there are no Israeli troops outside Palestine.

(In Beirut, Lebanon, the government press bureau also declared no Jewish forces had entered Lebanese territory.)

U. N. observers said Israeli forces had crossed the border during their weekend drive in northern Palestine and had occupied a strategic height and other positions inside Lebanon. The observers said the Jews were moving toward Bennt Jbail, two and a half miles beyond the border.

In Tel Aviv, Liet. Col. Morris Pearlman, Israeli spokesman said: "None of our units are in Lebanon, nor have any of them been there recently."

The conflicting claims grew out of the smashing two-day offensive in which the Jews cleared all Arab forces from the Galilee area, driving the remnants of the "Liberation Army" of Fawzi Pasha Al Kaukji across the Lebanese border.

The Jewish offensive took the form of a pincers movements in which one column stormed Arab positions in Galilee from the west

Viennese Woman Too Badly Hurt to Question, U. S. Authorities Told

Vienna, Nov. 1 (AP).—U. S. authorities said today the Russians have refused two American requests to interview the woman companion of Irving Ross, slain American official.

ROSS

The woman is Dana Superina, 42, who also was brutally beaten after Ross was bludgeoned and bayonetted to death in the Soviet zone of Vienna early Sunday.

She blamed four Soviet soldiers for the crime, but American officials still are seeking details. They said they could make little progress until the Russians let them see her.

Ross, 38, was an official here in the Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA). He was from East Hardwick, Vt. His wife and three children were planning to leave this week to join him in Vienna.

Ross was escorting Miss Superina home from a party.

The provost marshal's office advanced robbery as a probable motive for the murder. U. S. officials said Ross' billfold was found about 15 feet from the car. His War Department identity card was nearby and a few papers were in the wallet.

Austrian police also leaned toward robbery as the motive. They said they were closing their investigation as "there is nothing more we can do."

In rejecting a U. S. request for an interview, the Russians said Miss Superina was too seriously hurt for anyone to question.

Eleven Fliers Die in Crash Of Transport

D. C.-Bound Plane Breaks Up in Air During Rainstorm Over Oklahoma

Muldrow, Okla., Nov. 1 (AP). Eleven Air Force fliers—four officers and seven enlisted men—died in the crash of a twin-engine transport plane on the outskirts of this east Oklahoma town today.

The plane, flying low in a driving rainstorm, broke into three pieces aloft and plunged into a rain-covered cornfield about 11 a. m.

At Fort Smith, Ark., 20 miles east of here, Army sources at Camp Chaffee said four officers and seven enlisted men were aboard the plane and that all 11 bodies had been recovered and removed to Fort Smith. Names of the victims were withheld pending notification of next of kin by Sheppard Field. The only clue to identity of the victims was a B-4 bag found in the wreckage bearing the name "Capt. E. Mostyn."

Bound for Washington

Sheppard Field reported the C-47, as the Air Force designates the familiar civilian DC-3, left Wichita Falls for Washington, D. C., on a routine cross-country administrative flight at 9:45 a. m., with 11 men aboard.

It was estimated by witnesses that the ship was flying at an altitude of 300 to 400 feet, under a low cloud blanket, when it suddenly disintegrated. They said bodies and plane sections flew in different directions.

A graphic description was given by Tom Morgan, who said he was standing in front of a store here.

"I looked up," he related, "and saw the plane and while I was looking at it, it blew up. It looked like pieces flew all over. I saw three big pieces. I saw men fall. I saw one parachute start opening and then fold up. I saw no other parachutes open at all."

Debris Widely Scattered

Another witness was Robert Lee Smith, Van Buren, Ark. He said he was driving along the highway and was looking at the plane when he heard a roar.

"Then the plane just blew apart into three big pieces," he told newsmen. "I saw the tailpiece float off in one direction and the front end flew loose in the other direction. The front end kind of nosed up and then turned down and shot straight down like a nose dive."

Debris was scattered over an area of 1½ miles, about one quarter of a mile from the Muldrow business district.

Four mutilated bodies were near the forward section, north of town. The tail and main fuselage section fell on the slope of Turnham Hill, one fourth mile to the west. Seven other bodies were found in this area. One had been driven into the ground by the force of the fall.

Wing sections were found one-half mile southeast of the forward section.

Two Fliers Killed When Parachutes Fail

Temple, Okla., Nov. 1 (AP).—Two National Guard fliers searching for a missing plane were killed today when their parachutes failed to open after they jumped from a burning B-26 plane.

The two were killed almost immediately after the plane for which they had been searching was found near Matador, Tex., with all four of its occupants dead.

All Who Glitter Are Not Brass

Outranked in Family Spat, Bride Dons Captain's Garb

A pretty bride of five months who said she merely wanted to impress her former Army officer husband pleaded guilty here yesterday to illegally wearing a woman Marine captain's uniform.

She is Mrs. Anne B. Stark, 23, a clerk, of Brooklyn, N. Y. She is tall, trim, and auburn-haired.

Judge Quinn of Municipal Court listened sympathetically to her story and then suspended a $50 fine.

"My husband," Mrs. Stark related, "was an Army officer and has little regard for enlisted women in the service. I guess I just wanted to impress him."

Mrs. Stark, according to the FBI, was a lady private for seven months with the Marines. The hubby, Paul, was an Army captain, it was said.

The FBI said Mrs. Stark had a family quarrel, put on her uniform, replete with railroad tracks on the shoulders, and flew down to Washington Saturday. It wasn't long before she decided she wanted to return home and found herself out of money, the FBI said. It was while attempting to hitch a ride in a service plane at Bolling Field that the MP's asked for her identification and she was arrested.

After she left the courtroom, Mrs. Stark said, "I must have the luck of the Irish."

Before boarding a train to face hubby, Mrs. Stark made one stop. She bought a dress to replace the uniform on the journey.

Governor Terms Strong, United America Main Issue at Polls

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, in an election-eve get-out-and-vote appeal, said tonight the foremost issue is whether America "is going to be a strong, united Nation."

The Republican presidential nominee declared:

"Every one of us, as citizens of the United States, will be the envy of the earth as we freely choose the kind of government we want."

The New York Governor expressed the hope that "Each of you will vote, regardless of how you vote."

Dewey made his everybody-vote plea in a five-minute talk prepared for broadcast nationally over the networks of the National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting System during an hour-long program, sponsored by the Republican Party.

He and Mrs. Dewey arrived here from their Pawling, N. Y., farm home during the afternoon.

New York City is their legal residence. They will cast their ballots at noon (EST.) Tuesday in the polling place at 121 East 51st st.

The GOP candidate's 70-year-old mother was waiting for him at his Hotel Roosevelt suite when he got there. She arrived in Manhattan this morning from her home in Owosso, Mich., where Dewey was born.

In his talk tonight, Dewey said: "The foremost issue rising clear and high above all others is whether in this solemn hour the United States of America is going to be a strong, united nation—a nation that can meet the challenge of a dangerous world."

Thus, Dewey stressed his "united America" campaign theme to the campaign's end.

He said "tomorrow we will register our opinions according to the dictates of conscience" and he added:

"The next day we will close ranks to go forward, shoulder to shoulder, remembering that, whether we are Democrats or Republicans on election day, we are good Americans every day."

Dewey told his audience that "by living peacefully and happily together, by working together, by making our future together, we in this land or ours can prove beyond all possible distortion of the truth that human beings can be free in a nation that is united."

Noting that in many parts of the world "men and women have been denied the right to vote," Dewey said:

"By the election, we will be giv-

President Tells Voters They Will Be Affected for 'Years to Come'

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Independence, Mo., Nov 1. President Truman tonight urged the Nation's voters to go to the polls Tuesday and "decide what kind of government you want."

From the living room of his home here, the President spoke to uncounted millions over all four Nation-wide radio networks. With him while he talked were Mrs. Truman and their daughter, Margaret.

He was introduced by Senator Alben W. Barkley, Democratic vice presidential candidate, speaking from Paducah, Ky.

"Your vote tomorrow," Mr. Truman said, "is not just a vote for one man or another; it is a vote which will affect you and your families for years to come.

'I Trust the People'

He had spent the last two months taking the issues of the campaign to the people, the President explained, because he knew they would respond if they knew the principles at stake. He explained these, he said, "from my mind and my heart."

"I trust the people," Mr. Truman declared, "because when they know the facts they do the right thing. I have tried to tell them the facts and explain the issues."

Tuesday, he said, he and his family would vote here in Independence "as citizens of this Republic." And he urged all who were entitled to vote to do so because "when you vote you are in control of your Government."

The President again pledged himself to carry out the principles of the Democratic platform if the voters would give him "a Democratic Congress to help." He made his spectacular and strenuous fight for election, he said, because of "the things I believe in."

Beliefs Are Listed

These, he said, were:

1. "A free America—strong, indivisible.

2. "The principles of the Declaration of Independence that we the people shall govern ourselves through our elected representatives—that every man and woman has a right to an equal voice in the management of our Nation's affairs.

3. "That the Constitution, which rightly protects property, is still more deeply pledged to protect human rights.

Long Battle for Control

Contested Seating in Senate Presaged by Party Threats

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A long-drawn-out battle for control of the Senate, regardless of which party wins a nominal majority, last night was foreshadowed by angry election eve threats of contested seating.

Senator Scott W. Lucas (Ill.), chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, hotly accused the Republican-controlled Senate Subcommittee on Privileges and Elections of making "partisan" investigations.

Predicting Democrats will organize the Senate in January, Lucas hinted his own party has some "unprejudiced" investigating in mind and Democrats, too, will play at the game of contested Senate seats.

The election eve outlook was still for a Senate divided so closely that neither party will have secure working margins. In event of an absolute tie, or close to it, it may be weeks, or even months, before either party is sure of the saddle.

That's because seating on both sides of the aisle, particularly in close elections involving charges of ballot fraud, are subject to challenge.

Republicans already have intimated they may try to bar at the door, if elected, Senate Democratic Candidates Lyndon Johnson of Texas, Robert Kerr of Oklahoma, and possibly even Estes Kefauver of Tennessee.

Democrats yesterday darkly hinted their own party can, and probably will, play at the same sport.

"The Republicans who are making such (partisan) use of the Senate (Privileges and Elections) committee had better stop and think," Lucas said in a statement.

"Their control of this and all other Senate committees will be taken over in January by Democratic Senators who believe in fair, unprejudiced committee action, and who will not close their eyes to the election activities of Republican Senatorial candidates as the present Senate committee is now doing."

Senator William E. Jenner (R., Ind.), chairman of the Privileges

Foreign Policy to Mark Time Until January If Dewey Wins

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

From today until Inauguration Day on January 20, something like stagnation is almost sure to set in over four and possibly five main areas of American foreign policy.

Officials dealing with these areas will ruffle their papers and make the day-to-day decisions that cannot be avoided, but they will have to postpone any long-term commitments until the Republicans take over. Assuming of course, that Governor Dewey will be elected, the chief areas of indecision will be these:

1. Palestine, where almost any action invites brickbats, and where the old Administration will try to postnone any decisions until after January—if it can.

2. China, where the Republicans complain they were not consulted in the making of American policy, and where they may blame the Truman-Marshall policy for the present disasters in Manchuria. The military supplies now being rushed to China are part of a policy previously decided, but new decisions as to the amount and nature of further American support for the Chiang Kai-shek regime will have to wait until after January.

Caught in Log-Jam

3. Economic aid to Latin America, where the Truman Administration asked Congress to let the Export-Import Bank lend up to half a billion dollars. The request was caught in the end-of-session log-jam, and nothing was done. Latin-American governments are still clamoring for what they call a Marshall Plan for the American republics, but they will have to wait for their answer until Governor Dewey is in the White House.

4. The immense but still shadowy project of binding the United States to western Europe by a solemn treaty, and of giving or lending armaments to the western European nations. Since the Republicans have already indorsed this idea in general terms, military talks with the western Europeans may go on, and Government draftsmen here may try their hands at writing a mutual defense compact like the Rio Treaty of last year.

But there will be and can be no binding decisions until the new

'Good' Voting Day Forecast For D. C. Area

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

With the weatherman promising good voting weather, Greater Washington residents who have a vote will go to the polls to register it in presidential, congressional and local races today.

Latest official forecast last night predicted some cloudiness during the morning but a sunny afternoon and generally mild weather for both Maryland and Virginia. The bureau stated there might be "light" rain late in the day in the western parts of both States, but predicted it would have no material effect on the outcome of voting in the nearby States.

Both Federal and District employes will be excused from their jobs today for a "reasonable" time—a maximum of eight hours—to cast their ballots, without losing annual leave. Decisions on the "reasonable" time will be made by department personnel heads.

Virginia polls will be open from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m., and polls in Maryland counties will remain open from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m.

With leading contenders on both sides of the political fence predicting victory in nearby congressional races, the line-up seemed to favor incumbents Republican J. Glenn Beall over F. Byrne Austin (D.) in the Sixth Maryland congressional race, and Lansdale G. Sasscer (D.) over C. Maurice Weidemeyer (R.) in the Fifth Maryland congressional.

In Virginia's Eighth Congressional District, Representative Howard W. Smith (D.) was predicting his own reelection, but would not say by what margin he expected to be returned to office. Smith characterized his district's

Truman's Defeat By Wide Margin Seen; 51-Million Vote Expected

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

The great quadrennial drama of a presidential election comes to a show-down today.

With generally fair weather in prospect for the Nation, approximately 51 million voters are expected to go to the polls. Sometime tonight, the world will know of their choice for President of the United States.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, the Republican nominee, is regarded as a certain winner over President Truman. He is expected to get well over the 266 electoral votes needed to win.

Should it turn out otherwise and Mr. Truman be the winner, the polltakers and the prognosticators would be forced into the greatest crow-eating debauch in the annals of American politics.

Electoral College Vote

Brilliant as Dewey's prospects are, the 1948 result in the Electoral College may turn out to be the closest in 24 years.

Losers in the presidential races of the last 20 years have, without exception, fallen below the 100 mark in the Electoral College.

Alfred E. Smith, for example, got only 87 electoral votes in 1928, against 444 for Herbert Hoover. Hoover, swamped by Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932, got even fewer than Smith—59. Alf Landon got only 8 in '36. Wendell Willkie got 82 in '44 and Governor Dewey 99 in '44.

The last also-ran of a major party to get over the 100 mark was John W. Davis, the Democratic standard bearer of 1924. Running against Calvin Coolidge, Davis got 136 electoral votes.

See Truman Over 100

Hardly any polltakers or prognosticators expect President Truman to fall below the 100 mark today. If it were not for the fact that two of his opponents broke away from the regular Democratic Party—Henry Wallace and Gov. J. Strom Thurmond—the estimate of his electoral vote might be nearer 200.

In that case, it would be the closest Presidential election since the Wilson-Hughes thriller of 1916.

Gov. Dewey's popular vote, to judge from the Gallup Poll, may fall short of a majority over the votes of Mr. Truman and others in the field. Dr. Gallup gives the New Yorker 49.5 per cent of the popular vote, Mr. Truman 44.5 per cent, Wallace 4 per cent and Thurmond 2 per cent.

There are many indications, too, that the Democratic Party is stronger than its standard bearer in many parts of the country.

That is the reason that the Republicans, despite all the signs of a GOP Presidential victory, are worried about the United States Senate.

Tradition and, to a certain extent, logic say that the Republicans ought to hold on to their 51-45 Senate majority. Old-timers on Capitol Hill are unable to cite an instance in modern political history where a winning presidential nominee lost the Senate.

Yet it is a fact that it could happen today.

Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith, Republican Senator-elect of Maine, made an election-eve radio plea to the voters in which she conceded

Attorney Plunges to Death From Munsey Building Roof

James D. Heinlein, 34-year-old Washington attorney, plunged 150 feet to his death yesterday from the roof of the 12-story Munsey Trust Co., 14th and E sts. nw., at about 3 p. m.

Heinlein's body crashed into the brick-paved alley in the rear of the building toward F st. with such terrific force that it "bounced two feet in the air" according to eyewitnesses who narrowly escaped being hit.

The man's left foot struck the ground first and with such momentum that the shoe was torn off and whizzed through the air for several yards.

Passersby notified police who removed Heinlein to Emergency Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival at 3:20 p. m.

E. J. Quinn, a beer truck driver of 321 Anacostia rd. ne., said he had parked his truck in the alleyway and was standing nearby "when I heard a funny whirring sound. I turned and saw a man's body hit the ground with a plop only about six feet from me. It bounced about two feet in the air."

Another eyewitness, Joseph Perrell, 21, of 46 Farragut pl. nw., a truck driver, told much the same story. He, too, was only about six feet away when the body whirled through the air.

"He hit with his left leg extended," Perrell said. "His shoe was knocked off and went sailing through the air for several yards. I ran over and felt his pulse. He was gone."

Lime Footprints to Wife's Bed Hinted Affair, Broker Testifies

By V. R. Montanari

Simon Beloff, 66-year-old real estate broker, testified in District Court yesterday that he spread lime on a walk leading to the home of his estranged 31-year-old wife to catch her alleged lover.

Beloff, who is seeking a divorce on grounds of adultery and whose $100,000 alienation of affections suit is pending against 40-year-old Leon Spivak, also a real estate dealer, said he saw Spivak enter the house about 7 p. m. the day he spread the lime, and leave about 2:30 a. m.

Later that day, he said, he returned to his wife's home, which is at 1351 Spring rd. nw., and found footprints—"size 9 or 10"—leading up the stairway of the house, over the rugs and to the front of his wife's bed.

He had spilled the lime out of a sack from an alley to the rear door of the house, he said, because Spivak "always came in that way." He was fairly sure he would be there that night, he added, because Mrs. Beloff was baking one of his favorite cakes.

"That's what he lives on, cake and sodas," said Beloff.

The incident occurred on November 8, 1947, according to his testimony, and did not figure in his

Gen. Lin, Conqueror of Manchuria, Learned Tactics From Chiang Kai-shek

The Communist conquerer of Manchuria, Gen. Lin Piao (pronounced Lynn Bee-yow) is, ironically, a brilliant military disciple of that old master, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

The 40-year-old, slightly built commander of the Northeastern People's Liberation Army studied military tactics under the generalissimo when the leader of the Nationalist China was head of the Whampoa Military Academy, China's West Point.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
GEN. LIN PIAO
Communist troop commander

Lin was an outstanding student, and received training in politics as well as in soldiering from both Chiang Kai-chek and Russian General Bluecher, then Chiang's adviser.

Lin showed great promise, and by 1927 was at 19 already a colonel in command of a regiment.

Lin Rebels With Troops

In April of that year Chiang Kai-shek seized control of the government in a coup and purged the Communists. They retaliated a few months later. In August occurred the Nanchang uprising, which Edgar Snow ("Red Star Over China") has called the beginning of the Communists' armed struggle for power—a struggle which is still going on.

Colonel Lin led his troops over to the rebellion, and rose to be one of the leaders of Red China.

Lin Piao was born of a well-to-do family in Central China, province of Hupei, in 1908. He managed to get through middle-school (prep) before his industrialist father went broke. Then he entered Whampoa Academy and graduated four years later.

Known as Ever-Victorious

In the Red Chinese Army, Lin got to be known as a commander who never lost a battle. He participated in the famous "Long March" of the Communist forces, 6000 miles in 368 days, in which the Reds fought their way north to set up a base in North China in the fall of 1935. Less than 20,000 troops survived the hardships of the "Long March" across 18 mountain ranges, 24 rivers, 12 provinces, with skirmishes every day and 15 pitched battles.

Lin's command in this period was the First Red Army Corps, which because of his tactical skill and success in battle got to be known as the "iron troops." Lin was said to be a commander who never lost a battle."

When the historic march was ended, Lin was placed in charge of the newly established Chinese Red Military Academy in Shensi Province. It was an amazing institution, according to an on-the-scene report by Edgar Snow. One class of undergraduates had average age of 27 and each of the cadets had participated in an average of eight years on the front lines.

$100,000 Reward Put on Head

By this time—1935—General Lin's reputation as a tactician—he originated the "short march" maneuver very often used by the Chinese Reds—and had won recognition not only in China but in Russia and Japan as well. The Central government placed a $100,000 reward on his head.

For a two-year period, 1942-43, when the Communists and Central Chinese governments maintained an uneasy truce in the common war against the Japs, General Lin served as Communist representative at Chungking, the wartime capital. Later he was reported wounded and sent to Russia for treatment.

Lin next showed up in Manchuria in 1945 at the head of the Northeastern People's Liberation Army. His death was rumored in 1947, and the rumor was confirmed in Peiping by a National commander.

The rumor, obviously, proved to be false.

arms fire from the suburbs Monday morning.

This was interpreted to mean that some government units must have put up at least a token resistance. The firing died out during the afternoon.

Discipline among Nationalist troops was reported to have deteriorated rapidly. The roads swarmed with refugees fleeing the city of two million population, but comparatively few had a chance to get out.

[The Communist radio at Hantan, southern Hopei Province, reported more than 70 government generals had been taken prisoner at Mukden. The broadcast was heard in Peiping.]

The last government officials left Friday and the last air force planes Saturday.

Pro-government dispatches admitted the Communists held the surrounding countryside. The Communists themselves claimed also to have cut the road-wide escape corridor south to the port of Yingkow, 115 miles distant.

(In Peiping, some government pilots, who declined to be named, complained that on their last flight soldiers forced them at machine gun point to take out army people, leaving some air force personnel stranded).

Yingkow evidently remained in government hands. The cruiser Chungking was reported on guard there with her 6-inch guns. This largest ship in the Chinese navy is the former British cruiser Aurora of World War II fame.

There was no suggestion, however, that any large force from Mukden had broken away for a Yingkow "Dunkerque."

The government also held the port of Hulutao and some surrounding territory, but the Communists controlled the remainder of vast Manchuria.

Gen. Tu Li-ming, appointed government field commander for Manchuria on October 18 after the crisis began, was reported to have reached Hulutao with the remnants of his staff.

The American Government advised United States citizens to withdraw from six provinces of North China, but left the decision up to the individuals.

There are about 600 Americans in Peiping, 200 in Tientsin and 200 in Tsingtao, in addition to the American Naval and Marine personnell stationed at the Tsingtao base.

It appeared probable that Vice Admiral Oscar Badger, commanding the naval force at Tsingtao, would be asked to send a ship to Taku, near Tientsin some time in the future. The notices sent to citizens mentioned shipping facilities to be made available after November 15.

Embassy sources said planes would be used only as a last resort.

Premier, Finance Chief Attempt to Quit Posts

Nanking, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—Premier Wong Wen-hao and Finance Minister Wong Yun-wu submitted their resignations today because their economic recovery plan collapsed on the heels of military debacles. President Chiang Kai-shek rejected the resignations, asking them to "carry on during the emergency period."

Mme. Chiang Urges U. S. To Aid Currency Fight

Los Angeles, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—Mme. Chiang Kai-shek urged the United States today to take immediate steps to help stabilize the Chinese currency. Her appeal was made in a telephone interview with the Los Angeles Mirror.

The Mirror said the interview with Mme. Chiang "pointed up fears of an internal collapse of China as a result of Chinese Communist victories in the North."

Red Chieftain Reported Slain In Java Clash

Batavia, Nov. 1 (AP).—The Moscow-trained Indonesian Communist leader Musso was reported today to have been killed in a skirmish with Indonesian Republican forces.

Musso

Antara, the Indonesian news agency, said Musso was slain yesterday near Madioen where he launched an unsuccessful uprising against the republic September 18.

Musso disappeared after the revolt was crushed. The main forces of the insurgents fled to the hills, and unconfirmed reports kept cropping up that Musso and his comrad in revolt, former Premier Amir Sjarifoeddin, had fled the country.

A correspondent of Antara reported October 18 that Sjarifoeddin had been slain by fellow Communists. There was no confirmation, however.

Today's Antara report said an insurgent "recognized as Musso" was killed yesterday morning in the village of Soemanding, south of Madioen, Madioen, third largest city of the Indonesian Republic, served briefly as the insurgent capital before the revolt was ended.

The report said Musso was shot during an exchange of fire between a government patrol and five "rioters."

Two of the five were killed. Their bodies were removed to a hospital in Ponogoro, 15 miles south of Madioen.

Musso was reported to have arrived in Indonesia from Moscow August 10, a little more than a month before he declared a state of armed rebellion and announced he was setting up a "Soviet" government in Madioen.

U. S. Warned to Extend Its Cold War to China

San Francisco, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—Roger D. Lapham, chief of the American Economic Mission to China, today described the overall situation in China as "gloomy," and warned the United States must extend its cold war there to defeat the Communists.

"The best chance of avoiding a hot war is to spend money intelligently on a cold war," said the former San Francisco Mayor.

3 Generals Assigned to Air Command

Three Air Force generals yesterday were assigned to the Andrews Field Headquarters of Strategic Air Command.

At the same time, the USAF ordered Maj. Gen. James P. Hodges to duty at the headquarters of Gen. Lucius Clay, commander-in-chief of the European theater, in Berlin. Hodges has been on duty at Randolph Field, Tex., as commander of the flying division of Air Training Command.

Served Under LeMay

All of the three Air Force officers detailed with Strategic Air Command served on the staff of Lieut. Gen. Curtis LeMay, new commander of SAC, when the latter's B-29s demolished Japan's cities in 1945. They are:

Brig. Gen. August W. Kissner, who was LeMay's chief of staff both in the Pacific and during his recent assignment as commander of American Air Forces in Europe. He is expected to fill the same post at SAC. The headquarters is expected to move to Omaha, November 9.

Brig. Gen. John B. Montgomery, now executive to Secretary of Air Force W. Stuart Symington.

Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Power, now air attache at London. Power took part in the Bikini A-bomb tests two years ago.

General Burns Assigned

One of Gen. George C. Kenney's two general officer assistants at SAC Headquarters — Brig. Gen. David W. Hutchison—still remains. Kenney's deputy, Maj. Gen. Clement McMullen, was assigned as commander of the San Antonio materiel command, shortly after Kenney himself was made commandant of the Air University.

In still another shift, the Air Force assigned Brig. Gen. Robert W. Burns, Eighth Air Force chief of staff at Carswell Field, Tex., to be chief of staff, Air Training Command, Shreveport, La.

Dr. J. A. Doull Named to Head Leprosy Study

Appointment of Dr. James A. Doull of Arlington, Va., as research director of the American Leprosy Foundation (Leonard Wood Memorial) was announced yesterday by Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security Administrator.

The Foundation snupports epidemiological studies in the Philippines and a special bacteriological laboratory at Harvard Medical School.

Dr. Doull's former position in United States Public Health Service as chief of the office of International Health Relations will be filled by Dr. L. L. Williams, jr., USPHS specialists in malaria control, the announcement stated. Dr. Williams will also continue his present duties as USPHS liason officer to the State Department.

Defense Chief Moves to End Service Lobby

By The Associated Press

Secretary of Defense Forrestal told the Armed Forces yesterday they are not to carry to Congress any of their differences over proposed legislation.

He laid down the rule in announcing the establishment of a central clearing house for all proposed laws affecting the Army, Navy and Air Force.

One "integrated legislative program" will be prepared annually for all three services and then sent to Congress, he said.

Forrestal told the services to let him know if Congress or the Budget Bureau asks for comment on any bills. No department is to give its opinion on a bill direct to Congress without the approval of the Secretary of Defense.

If the departments cannot agree on legislation they are not to tell this to Congress, Forrestal said. Instead they are to report the differences to the Defense Secretary. He will decide what the unified answer is.

Last year, Forrestal ordered the Army, Navy and Air Force to submit legislation proposed by one for approval of the other two before sending it to the Budget Bureau or to Congress.

Under the new central-office plan all proposed bills will be put together and first offered for the approval of the Secretary of Defense. Thereafter, bills will be assigned to the department that has the major interest in preparing them and following them through Congress.

Forrestal said the legislative arrangements do not apply to appropriations or to legislation already submitted to Congress or to the Budget Bureau.

Cardinal Asks Truman To Stop Executions

Cologne, Germany, Nov. 1 (AP).—Josef Cardinal Frings appealed to President Truman today to stop the executions of German war criminals.

The cardinal said in a cable that the Landsberg gallows is throwing back by years a reconciliation of the nations.

Nine Germans convicted of war atrocities were hanged by the U. S. Army Friday at Landsberg, about 35 miles southwest of Munich, despite church protests. Their executions brought to 29 the number of Germans hanged at Landsberg prison since Oct. 15.

Johnston Finds Sense of Unity In Red Nations

By the United Press

Eric Johnston said yesterday the Communist nations of eastern Europe have set at least one good example which America should follow: they have given their people "a sense of belonging."

The president of the Nation Picture Association of America reported on his recent visit to Russia and other countries behind the iron curtain in an interview with U. S. News & World Report Magazine.

Johnston, a former president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, said "one of the things that impressed me behind the iron curtain was that the attitude of the people." He told this story to explain what he meant:

"In Belgrade (capital of Yugoslavia), they are building a great motion picture studio which will take until 1952 to complete. What do people say in Belgrade? Not that 'this is the whoosit motion picture studio' but 'this is our motion picture studio.'"

Other Impressions

He said that such an attitude can be developed in this country "but it will be a long process."

"We have got to let a man in this country develop a sense of belonging," he said. "It is a process that needs to be started."

Other impressions and opinions reported by Johnston:

"There has been 'some improvement in living standards' since he visited Russia in 1944, but there also is 'less friendliness for foreigners.'"

Differences Are Basic

People in Communist countries are certain that "we are going to have disunity within the United States" and are "surprised that this election has gone as smoothly as it has." They cannot understand why Henry Wallace has failed to roll up a tremendous following.

The differences between democratic nations and Communist nations "are basic and perhaps irreconcilable, but that doesn't mean we should stop trying to live in peace," because "we cannot eradicate communism by blind fury," and "war would not destroy communism."

"We could make progress (toward peace) if people of the West could come in contact with people in Russia and with those back of the iron curtain. The more contact we can have in the Soviet Union—through motion pictures, periodicals, radio—the better it will be."

U. S., British Zones Set New Mark in Industrial Output

Berlin, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—Gen. Lucius D. Clay reported today that industrial production in the combined United States and British occupation zones had established a new postwar record.

In his semimonthly report to Washington, the American military commander said production in September was 70 per cent of the 1936 level. In August production was 64 per cent, he said.

Production in four groups equaled or surpassed the 1936 gauge, Clay said. These were rubber, electrical equipment, gas and electricity and mining, except coal. However, he added, coal was 82 per cent of the 1936 level, 12 per cent higher than the overall average.

September is the third consecutive month since currency reform began to see a general rise in industrial activity.

Foreign Policy Lull Seen If Dewey Wins

administration takes office, even though the French and other European governments may plead for help and reassurance in the meantime.

There is also a fifth area of action that may feel the post-election blight if, by some unexpected twist, the Berlin crisis is settled at Paris between now and January 20. This is the field of future policy concerning Germany as a whole.

The lifting of the Berlin blockade would be followed, in accordance with repeated western assurance with repeated westent assurmeeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers to discuss German problems. Secretary Marshall is ready with the necessary "policy papers" to restate existing policy at such a conference, and he is of course ready to carry on the airlift and the gradual formation of a western German government between now and January 20.

Hands Largely Tied

But even if he has John Foster Dulles and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg at his side he can hardly take far-reaching new decisions in the name of an Administration that will leave office in a few weeks, or in the name of a Dewey administration that has not yet been installed.

Therefore a Foreign Ministers' meeting before January 20 can hardly be more than a debating session. If new decisions are to be taken, such as the withdrawal of occupation troops hinted by the British commander, Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, they will have to wait until the new Administration is in the saddle.

Incidentally, a Foreign Ministers' meeting after January may be held in the United States, perhaps in Washington. For if the brief Paris session on the Italian colonies in September can be regarded as a full meeting, the rule of rotation would bring the fatuul meeting on Germany onto American soil. Since the Foreign Ministers' meeting in New York in 1946, the Council has met in London, Moscow and Paris, and President Dewey might find himself playing host to an important international conference in his first weeks in the White House.

To Remain Unchanged

In other fields major policies will remain unchanged, but different individuals will be brought in after January 20 to deal with them.

The present crop of officials will instinctively put off long-term decisions that would commit their successors. In the same way, administrative actions like the long-heralded reorganization of the State Department will be put on ice until after January. And in the same way, too, foreign governments will tend to delay making new requests or proposals to the United States until they can deal with a government that will be in power for at least four years.

Yet the prospect of the next 11 or 12 weeks does not justify the dread with which some American and European officials look ahead to it. It will be an awkward time in foreign policy, but in many areas action will go forward as if no change-over were taking place. In the State Department many day-to-day decisions will be taken as before, especially when those decisions cannot wait until January and will not bind the new Administration.

Planners to Go Ahead

The policy planning staff, under George Kennan, will go ahead with its indispensable job, which is to foresee future developments and to recommend what the United States should do about them. In its history of 18 months the Kennan staff has drawn up between 30 and 40 major "policy papers" on future situations in all parts of the world. It is a fair guess that when Governor Dewey enters the White House he and his Secretary of State will find a sheaf of such recommendations awaiting them.

The Greek-Turkish program has been criticized from time to time by Republican campaign speakers, as if it needed an overhauling. But it has been carried out by the decisions of a Republican Congress, its execution has been in charge of a former Republican Governor, Dwight P. Griswold of Nebraska, and the work of sending economic and military help is going ahead without any perceptible change.

If the military phase of this program is being slowed down at all, it is not because of the election but because Greek-Turkish needs in the new year will have to be cut from the same cloth as the vastly larger needs of western Europe.

As for the European Recovery Program, the most important activity of American foreign policy today, the work is going forward as if there were no election at all. Rumors that Paul Hoffman may be superseded as Economic Cooperation Administrator are described as nonsense in informed quarters.

Hoffman's present plans are to go to Congress before Inaugration Day with a request for authorizations—first of all, for about a billion and a quarter dollars in supplementary funds needed from April 1 to June 30, and, secondly, for an estimated four and a half billion for the second fiscal year of the program.

Under the law, President Truman will have to submit an executive budget to Congress whatever the election returns may decide. Present plans are to submit this budget with a presidential message on January 3.

Some method of consultation with the Republicans probably will have to be worked out during the preinauguration period if this budget is not to be scrapped and all the work done on it wasted. Assordingly, a White House approach to Dewey may come immediately after the election so that the budget-makers can have some Republican guidance before sending their estimates to Capitol Hill.

Officials here understand perfectly that the new President will not want to take responsibility for the budget or for anything else until he assumes office. All the same, they argue that foreign aid programs will not wait, and that even informal consultation on the budget would not avert costly delay and confusion when Congress assembles.

Position on Workers Restated by Pope

Vatican City, Nov. 1 (AP).—The Catholic church continues its firm opposition to totalitarianism, Pope Pius XII said yesterday in a speech to 1000 auto workers from Turin and Rome.

The speech was devoted primarily to a restatement of the church's position on the place of workers in 20th century society.

The church stands for "full equality in human dignity," the Pontiff said, adding that religion is the true guarantee of the "dignity of the worker."

He criticized those who "do not defend the personal dignity of the worker, but made of his productive capacity a simple object of which 'society' disposes at its will.

"It has long been affirmed . . .," he said, "that religion makes the worker weak and relaxed in his daily life, in the defense of his private and public interests, lulling him entirely with the hope of a life beyond.

"Manifest error! If the church in its social doctrine insists always on the respect due to the intimate dignity of man, if that consists for the worker in a labor contract at a just wage, if it demands for him an efficacious assistance in his material and spiritual needs, what is the reason, if not that the worker is a human being, that his working capacity ought not to be treated as 'merchandise' . . .?"

German Charge

West Trains Saboteurs, Berlin Told

Berlin, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—Kurt Fischer, minister of interior for the Russian zone of Germany, declared tonight the western allies are operating training camps for saboteurs who are sent into eastern Germany on "wrecking" missions.

Fischer's charge coincided with the announcement that Rudolf Wagner, Russian sector deputy police chief, had "resigned." Western sources believed he had been eliminated in the purge of all police officials who are not strongly pro-Communist.

Fischer, as head of the interior department, is commander in chief of the new Russian-inspired German police army in the Soviet zone and eastern sector of Berlin.

The British-licensed Telegraf today reported an underground German resistance organization is disrupting the Russian plan to form a reserve "police force."

The German-language paper said many recruits had been "dissuaded" from joining when they received letters from resistance workers warning that their membership in the supposedly secret reserve force was known.

Speed Standardized In Aircraft Corridor

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—Air Force headquarters announced today that only four-engined planes will be permitted to fly in the Frankfurt-Berlin airlift corridor.

Object of the new order is to standardize the speed of air lift planes, enabling the Air Force to put more planes in the air at one time and increase the tonnage ferried to Berlin.

Cripps Finds Red Sabotage Tops Hitler

London, Nov. 1 (AP).—Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Stafford Cripps, declared today that Communist economic sabotage is more dangerous to western Europe than the destruction wrought by Hitler's armies.

Speaking in the House of Commons in support of his own domestic economic program, Cripps asked for cooperation "to combat the chaos-producing tactics of the Cominform fifth column which is today so active in all the democratic countries."

Apparently his words were aimed at citizens of nations across the English Channel as well as his fellow countrymen.

He declared the spearhead of the Communist attack has been against western Europe "because the Soviet Union hoped that by creating a state of chronic weakness they might be able to win over with the aid of their fifth columnists, as in Czechoslovakia."

Cripps said the situation emphasized the urgency for western European nations to "strengthen one another by the fullest economic cooperation." Britain's own domestic program, he said, is tied in closely with the organization for European Economic Cooperation (OEEC).

First District Draftees Enter Service Today

The first District draft registrants to be inducted under the peacetime Selective Service law—seven of 55 to be called up here this month—will enter the Army today.

With a 21-month tour of duty ahead, they will report at 8:30 a. m. to the Army and Air Force recruiting station, 403 10th st. nw. Processing and induction will follow.

On Thursday two Silver Spring registrants will be inducted at 9 a. m. at the recruiting station there to lead off drafting of nearby Maryland men. The first Virginia registrants from this area will be inducted at the Alexandria recruiting station November 22 and 24.

The District draftees, three of them white and four Negro, will leave here Wednesday morning to begin basic training. White draftees from Washington, Maryland and Virginia will be trained at Camp Pickett, Va. Negro inductees will be sent to Fort Dix, N. J.

Two Months of Basic

After eight weeks basic training, draftees may be sent to any Army station in the continental United States or overseas, an Army spokesman said yesterday.

The seven Washingtonians to be drafted this morning are William M. Mumaw, 2457 Tunlaw rd. nw., grocery store employe; Jesse S. Bowen, 1331 22d st. nw., pickup truck driver; Leonard L. Lewis, 1827 Kalorama rd. nw., postoffice laborer; Aurelio B. Collado, 3115 Quesada st. nw., salesman.

William I. Lee, 1624 S st. nw., bartender; Charles A. Reese, 1727 Massachusetts ave. nw., Army clerk, and Quintin A. Hill, 1763 Willard st. nw., clerk.

The Silver Spring men slated for induction Thursday are Emmet M. O'Grady, 1217 Linden lane, assistant clerk to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and James D. Rogers, 9807 Brunett ave., Capital Transit Co. dispatcher.

France Ready To Take Over Last of Mines

Paris, Nov. 1 (AP).—Massed police and army forces were preparing tonight to take over the last strongholds of the Communist-led coal strikers in northern France.

The government is counting on a back-to-work movement gathering strength tomorrow among the nation's 335,000 miners. It claimed 87 per cent of the miners in Lorraine were back on their jobs Saturday. Police seized the Lorraine mines more than three weeks ago, however.

An All Saints Day truce, tacitly observed today by both the Government and the General Confederation of Labor (CGT), was broken at Cransac, 60 miles northeast of Toulouse.

Strikers took the banel shaft from the police and were reported to have beaten a number of miners at work there. Troops later freed both the police and the workers.

At Carmaux, near Cransac, police were being reinforced to protect miners who plan to go back to the pits tomorrow morning.

In the northern city of Lens the regional headquarters of the CGT continued to talk of "victory" in the strike.

The coal strike which entered its fifth week today has cost France about 4,000,000 tons of fuel.

Troops at French ports are unloading coal assigned France under the European Recovery Program. Dock workers in sympathy with the miners have refused to unload coal ships.

Bribe Hearings Start Nov. 15 In Britain

London, Nov. 1 (AP).—Attorney General Sir Hartley Shawcross said today he would make a relentless probe into bribery and corruption charges involving high officials of Britain's Labor government.

Parliament has set up a special three-man tribunal to investigate the case. Shawcross told the tribunal that, although he is a minister of the government, his duties require that he present evidence to the court "with complete indifference as to the political or personal results."

The tribunal, headed by High Court Justice Sir George Justin Lynskey, convened today and announced it would begin hearing witnesses November 15.

The investigation is directed primarily at four specific allegations of actual or attempted bribery. The charges to be put before the court involve application for a license to import amusement machinery, application for a building license, a proposal to issue capital for formation of a football pools company and withdrawal of a prosecution for contravention of a paper supply order by a football pools company.

Shaw Sees Stalin 'Dreading' War

London (Tuesday), Nov. 2 (AP).—George Bernard Shaw said today Prime Minister Stalin has his hands full running Russia's domestic affairs and "obviously dreads nothing more than another imperialist war."

The 92-year-old Irish playwright expressed his views in a copyrighted article for today's edition of the Communist Daily Worker. It was part of a celebration of the newspaper's new headquarters and new full-size format.

"Stalin's frank and exact words last week were a breath of fresh air," Shaw said. He apparently referred to Stalin's statement accusing the Western powers of bad faith in reaching agreement over Berlin, charging them with trying to justify a war against Russia and asserting that such war talk would end in "ignominous failure."

Council Talks On Holy Land Due Thursday

Paris, Nov. 1 (AP).—United Nations officials indicated today the Security Council might meet Thursday to continue discussions on the Palestine problem.

The council's Palestine subcommittee will meet tomorrow afternoon to complete action on a resolution calling on Jews and Arabs to keep the truce in the Negev area of southern Palestine.

One of the proposals before the subcommottee is that the council may take further steps looking toward economic penalties against either of the parties which refuse to respect the ceasefire.

The U. N. took the day off today. It is All Saints Day, and the French observe it as a national holiday.

Morgenthau Sees Israel Bulwark Against Reds

New York, Nov. 1 (NYHT).—Henry Morgenthau, jr., general chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, said today upon his return from Palestine that the state of Israel will come through its present troubles and become "a hard core of resistance against communism in the Mediterranean area."

Morgenthau said he believed the Export and Import Bank should lend the Israeli government 100 million dollars and that the United States Government should advance "all kinds of encouragement" to the new state.

Commander Davis Returning Here As Navy Curator

Lieut. Commander Edward M. Davis, USN, present director of the Norfolk Museum of Arts and Sciences in Norfolk, Va., has resigned his position effective January 1 to return to Washington as curator of the Navy Department.

Commander Davis also has agreed to direct the proposed Truxtun-Decatur naval museum, Capt. A. D. Turnbull, secretary of the Naval Historical Foundation, said yesterday. The museum located in the Decatur House at Lafayette Square, is expected to be open to the public early next spring.

The Foundation recently rented the house for use as a museum under a 50-year-lease from its owner Mrs. Truxtun Beale. It will display the historical Navy relics the Foundation has been collecting for the past 20 years.

Turkey to Stay Armed, Inonu Tells Assembly

Ankara, Turkey, Nov. 1 (AP).—President Ismet Inonu said today world events have increased Turkey's determination to remain fully armed.

Opening the Grand National Assembly, he said the new budget must provide for needs of the army, which stands fully mobilized. He said aid and equipment from the United States Military Mission are bolstering its strength.

In New York Court

Reds' Trial Postponed To Nov. 15

New York, Nov. 1 (NYHT).—Judge Harold R. Medina of United States District Court assigned himself today to preside at the trial of the 12-man National Board of the Communist Party and set November 15 as "the actual date of commencement."

It was the third postponement granted to the leaders of the Communist Party, who are charged with advocating overthrow of the Governmen by force, but the setting of a definite date brought objections from defense attorneys during an hour's argument. Harry Sacher, attorney for John Gates, editor of the Daily Worker, shouted, "What's the reason for the airplane speed? Are you afraid the Government is going to be overthrown next Sunday morning?"

"Yes, I do," United State Attorney John F. X. McGohey interjected. "I think the Government will be overthrown by these people if they are given enough time. The security of this Nation rests on a speedy trial and I'm convinced the jurors of this district can try this case and try it honestly."

1000 London Reds Protest at U. S. Embassy

London, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—Approximately 1000 Communists swarmed in front of the United States Embassy tonight, clamoring for the release of 12 American Communist Party leaders, in a demonstration timed for the eve of the presidential electioon.

Heavy police reinforcements were summoned when the Communists, after individual demonstrations in the West End including Hyde Park, converged on the embassy.

Slogans shouted by the crowd, and displayed on banners, said "Release the 12 American Leaders," "Arrested Because They Want Peace," and "Down With Dollar Imperialism."

Romantic Trio At London Party For Danny Kaye

London, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—Princess Margaret Rose, Sharman Douglas and the young nobleman both of them date, the Marquess of Blandford, met unexpectedly tonight at a reception for American Danny Kaye. The Marquess was dating Sharman.

London's most-talked-about romantic triangle was unwittingly thrown together at the residence of Sharman's faher, U. S. Ambassador Lewis Douglas.

He honored Kaye at the reception after the comedian gave a triumphant royal command performance which further established him among royalty, the critics and the public as Britain's favorite American entertainer.

Princess Margaret attended the performance and arrived at the reception with Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh and her brother-in-law.

Italy Acquires Sites For U. S. War Dead

Rome, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—The Italian government today took over two plots of land to make them permanent burial sites for United States war dead.

All American soldiers who fell south of Rome will be buried at Nettuno, which adjoins Anzio. Those killed north of Rome will lie at Caciano Val di Pesa.

Dewey Is In, British Told

London, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—Britain's 48 million people were told today by their newspapers that to all purposes Gov. Thomas E. Dewey already has won the election.

So little interest is there, because of the apparent certainty of the result, that the British Broadcasting Corp. will give no election coverage beyond that in its normally scheduled news programs.

Newspaper dispatches were devoted mainly not to election news but to biographies of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey.

As the Daily Mail put it:

"We know little of Mr. Dewey in this country. But we should take pains to learn more because the destinies of the Western world may rest largely in his hands."

The News Chronicle said Mr. Dewey is competent and efficient, but it lamented that he "is a man of no outstanding distinction, of negligible international stature, who never originated a memorable idea and whom nobody professes to like very much."

Berlin Expects Dewey To Aid in Red Fight

Berlin, Nov. 1 (AP).—An anti-Communist Berlin newspaper predicted today that if Governor Dewey wins the American elections "we can reckon with strong new impulses in Washington's foreign policy," especially in strengthening the West against Communist expansion.

This estimate was given by the Socialist newspaper Telegraf, which said the non-Communist world greeted with relief the end of the United States election campaigns because the Russians had used this period to try to capitalize on what appeared to be differences of opinion in America.

Millions Can't Vote, Czechs Are Told

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—A radio commentator asserted today that 14 million to 20 million persons had been disenfranchised for tomorrow's American presidential election.

The commentator, after describing American voting procedure, emphasized that the place of residence, the poll tax and educational and property owning requirements would keep millions of the poor from the polls.

Dewey Urges All to Vote

ing an example to inspire men and women everywhere to seek the road to freedom, to go forward upon it and never willingly to stray from it."

While his speeeh was not a campaign address, Dewey stressed again some of the points he emphasized during the campaign. He said:

"I believe with all my heart that we Americans have made up our minds we are going to have a strong, united Nation—that we will meet the challenge of this time.

"We shall build a lasting peace in the world upon the rock of justice and human decency. That above all other objectives will be our goal.

"We will not rest until we have achieved it. Firmly and patiently, with an honest offer of friendship to all nations, we shall work for peace. We shall find peace."

Dewey said that in making America strong "we shall expand the opportunities for all our people."

Then he struck another of his campaign themes in saying:

"We shall assure a bright and growing future of opportunity to our youth. Meanwhile, we shall strengthen our safeguards against the hazards of unemployment, of accident and of old age."

That was a reference to his campaign promise to broaden the Social Security program and to increase present benefits.

The Republican nominee said "we have still before us the great, inspiring task of making America the land of promise and hope that it surely can be."

He added:

"We have a precious heritage to prepare for our children. We are altogether determined to find for ourselves and to pass on to future generations a stronger, more confident fellowship and a happier, more fruitful land."

Dewey told reporters this weekend at his farm home had rested and refresed him.

His campaign headquarters on the sixth floor of the Roosevelt Hotel was swirling with activity in preparation for Tuesday's election.

The activity there was in sharp contrast to the calm and quiet prevailing in his own suite on the fifteenth floor.

The Governor and Mrs. Dewey will be joined Tuesday by their sons, Thomas, 16, and John, 13. They are coming from Albany, where they attend school.

Truman Declares Result to Be Vital

lieve that through the Democratic Party all classes of our citizens will receive fairer treatment and more security.

5. "That the industrial workers, the farmers and the small businessmen of this country can best protect themselves against reaction and against inflation through the Democratic Party.

6. "That a Democratic Administration, pledged to continue the present policies of our country, is the best insurance against going back to the dark days of 1932.

7. "That Almighty God has intended the United States of America to lead the world to peace."

This Nation, he said, was in position 30 years ago to lead to peace but failed to do so. With World War II the result. This time, he continued, the United States must live up to its opportunity to establish peace "for the greatest age in history."

"We have two great goals," the President said. "One, to build a secure life for ourselves here at home, the other to build a lasting peace for the world."

Mr. Truman challenged all voters to ask themselves as they mark their ballots tomorrow if they are voting in their own best interest. He said all husbands should ask themselves:

"Is this best for my wife and family?"

Housewives: "Will this protect my home and my children for the future?"

All voters: "Is this the best way to insure a free and prosperous country?"

At a Shrine dinner at the Kansas City Club, Mr. Truman described himself as "the most important prisoner in the world" in the "finest jail in the world." He said only contact with people throughout the country enabled hi mto keep up the terrific pace of the last few months.

"You know," he said, "the President is the most important prisoner in the world. The White House is the finest jail in the world. I get up at 6:30 in the morning. I go to bed about 10 or 11 at night. I begin my day's work at 6 o'clock and end it when I find a chance to go to bed and call it a period.

"You see, the buck stops with the President. He can't pass the buck to anybody. He has got to make decisions when they come up to him. I have tried to make these decisons in the best interests of the country. Some people say I have not, but history will tell in the long run.

"People have been wondering how I could take this 31,100-mile campaign and make 280 or 290 appearances and shake hands with 150,000 people and still be able to take them on. The reason is that I am out of that great white jail and am enjoying myself."

Before driving here for his broadcast, the President spoke briefly at a colorful Shrine ceremony in Kansas City's Municipal Auditorium before 9500 delighted fellow townsmen.

The President told them solemly of his belief in "a just and lasting peace in the world" and described the grave decisions which confronted him upon his assuming office April 12, 1945. He described his job as "trying" and said it "takes something out of a man but it puts something into him also."

"I am just as sure as I stand here," Mr. Truman said, "that eventually we will get a just and lasting peace in the world.

"I am more than certain that the world, under no circumstances, can afford to go to war in this machine age—this atomic war age—again . . . I think it would be the end of our civilization. I don't think there is a country in the world—bar none—that wants to see that happen. I am sure that will not happen, because we have the machinery with which to attain the peace.

"It has been a trying job, of being Chief Executive of the greatest Nation on earth. It takes something out of a man. But it also puts something into him that he did not have before . . ."

Mr. Truman said he had spent "many lonely hours" studying the problems which have confronted him as President and upon whose solution depended not only the welfare of the United States but of two billion people throughout the world. He had made decisions, he said, which he thought "would be best for the future of the world as a whole and not necessarily for our own selfish best interests."

He asked his audience to "spend your time petitioning Almighty God that we may attain this peace in the world. Then our children and our grandchildren will not have to do what we had to do, and what our sons and daughters had to do."

While the crowd waited for the President's arrival, 14 brightly uniformed drill teams, bands and drum corps from Shrine temples at Kansas City and Springfield, Mo., Topeka and Leavenworth, Kans., and Pine Bluff, Ark., filed onto the floor of the auditorium. They were led by the Ararat Temple motor corps, 11 men on liberally chromium plated motorcycles with lighted wheels. As the units entered they massed on the floor in a broad aisle from the door to the rostrum.

Mr. Truman was escorted down this aisle while the Ararat concert band played "Hail to the Chief" and the crowd stood and screamed its welcome. The President spoke looking down on a sea of red, gold, green and white costumes and backed by a bank of white shirt fronts and red fezzes. The ceremony closed a day of Shrine activities in which he was the central figure.

A great Shrine parade which Mr. Truman was to have led at 1 p. m. was canceled at the last minute because of rain which fell steadily here all day. He had been the breakfast guest of the Red Cross of Constantine, a Masonic order, consuming melon, fruit juice, double lamb chops and bacon, strawberry preserves, omelet and potatoes.

Prior to breakfast, the President took a 15-block walk near his home here, greeting old friends along the way and stopping to speak with storekeepers he had known for years. He left for Kansas City at 7:45 a. m.

Mr. Truman spent most of the day in his penthouse suite atop the Muehlebach Hotel at Kansas City, lunching there with five friends. He left briefly for the Kansas City Club, where he sat during part of a luncheon with members of the Ararat Temple Shrine Divan and National Council officers. Then, at 2 p. m. he addressed a Harry S. Truman class of 500 Shrine initiates at a private ceremony.

He was guest tonight at an honorary dinner given by Ararat Temple at the Kansas City Club.

Mr. Truman said he would vote tomorrow at 11 a. m.., considerably later than his usual hour for going to the polls.

Jewelry Stolen From Luces' Waldorf Suite

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—Former Congresswoman Clare Boothe Luce was robbed of jewelry valued at $20,000 while she and her husband were asleep in their Hotel Waldorf-Astoria apartment early today.

Mrs. Luce

Mrs. Luce, author, playwright and former Representative from Connecticut, is the wife of magazine publisher Henry Luce.

She told police the stolen jewelry included an 18-carat marquise diamond ring valued at $18,000, a woman's gold wrist watch, a set of earrings, and a gold vanity case containing rosary beads and a gold compact.

Authorities believe the robbery took place between 2 a. m. and 8:15 a. m., when Mrs. Luce discovered the jewelry missing.

A building watchman discovered the door of the Luce apartment open at 2 a. m., but there was no sign of a forced entry, police said.

Mrs. Luce told police that before she retired at about 11:15 p. m., she placed the ring, watch and earrings in a small box on a bathroom washstand and left the vanity case on a bedroom dresser.

She said she, her husband and a maid, Mary Black, were the only persons sleeping in the apartment during the night.

Inquiry Hits Close to Marcantonio

By the United Press

House investigators are checking reports of election irregularities in New York City's Eighteenth Congressional District, where Representative Vito Marcantonio (ALP) is seeking reelection to a seventh term.

H. Ralph Burton, general counsel of the House Campaign Expenditures Committee, said his group had received "numerous" complaints that persons newly arrived in the United States have claimed voting privileges in the Eighteenth District.

Burton said the committee's investigators already had evidence of "some fraudulent registration in the district."

Burton said the complaints have been studied by investigators for some time because of "the great number of persons migrating to New York." He added that any evidence of actual irregularities will be presented to the House and the Department of Justice, "regardless of how long it may take."

Marcantonio, often assailed for following the Communist Party line in Congress, is running as a candidate of the American Labor Party, under whose banner he has been serving in Congress. He is opposed by John Ellis, Republican, and John P. Morrissey, Democrat.

Burton did not say which of the candidates, if any, would be affected by the reported irregularities.

Sen. Vandenberg Won't Serve as State Secretary

By the United Press

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg will not enter the Cabinet as Secretary of State if the Republican Party elects a President, it was learned yesterday.

Vandenberg definitely has taken himself out of Cabinet consideration, the United Press was informed. He is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and coauthor of the bipartisan foreign policy.

and Elections Subcommittee, whose staff has been investigating close races in Texas, Oklahoma and West Virginia, meanwhile called a meeting of his group, to develop plans for handling any postelection contests.

Jenner said only that the committee will consider "important matters now pending," and added: "It would be safe for us to assume that we will continue to be busy."

Lucas predicted today's election will return a "comfortable majority" of Democrats to the Senate. Senator John Townsend (R., Del.), with equal assurance predicted a "safe" Republican margin.

In event of an absolute 48 to 48 tie, Republicans would retain nominal control without any need of Gov. Earl Warren's vice presidential vote to break it. A Senate motion always loses on a tie. It would be up to the Democrats to upset the GOP's present sway.

The test, if one is made, probably would come on a Democratic move to displace Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) as Senate President pro tem.

Who the Democrats would put up against Vandenberg hasn't yet been decided. Senator Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.) was President pro tem until Republicans took over control in January, 1947.

Some of McKellar's friends don't expect him to make the race again. These and others believe the Democrats could make their best solid front showing by nominating Senator Alben W. Barkley for the top Senate post. Catch there is that Barkley is now Senate minority leader, and his promotion would probably touch off a sharp Senate fight for his leadership post. Senate Democrats are still trying to find the answer with a minimum of party friction.

Meanwhile, the question of contested seating, which may determine in the end who really controls the Senate, boiled over in these other developments:

1. Two Democratic members Representatives Carter Manasco (Ala.) and Frank Wilson (Tex.) denied the Republican-controlled House Expenditures Committee had authority to make a current inquiry into the New Mexico Senate race.

2. First Assistant Postmaster General Vincent C. Burke said the Postoffice Department is investigating complaints that Senator Chapman Revercomb (R., Va.) mailed quantities of election material under his senatorial mailing privilege.

Representatives Manasco and Wilson made their statement in reply to a telegraphed protest from Clinton P. Anderson (D.), running against Pat Hurley (R.) for the New Mexico Senate seat. Anderson complained last week that a committee aide, Richard Hodson, was preparing to report that nine persons in New Mexico are violating the Hatch Act.

Anderson wired Chairman Forest A. Harness (R., Ind.) of the House committee:

"Your committee neither authorized or empowered to investigate conduct of Department of Interior employes unless political activity is involved. But laying aside propriety of your investigation, I demand that complete identification of nine persons by your investigator be made public at once."

Manasco and Wilson wired Anderson:

"We first learned of this investigation through the press. No meeting of our committee has been held to authorize such investigation and we do not feel that our committee has jurisdiction over such matters.

"Other committees of House and Senate have jurisdiction over elections and we feel that our committee should stay clear of anything that might subject us to criticism for trying to influence an election one way or another."

In striking out at the same time at the Senate Subcommittee on Privileges and Elections, Senator Lucas charged Republicans are making "frantic, last-minute efforts" to save the Senate.

"It is very strange that only the campaigns of the Democratic candidates are being investigated," said Lucas. "This is especially peculiar in view of the fact that official records show that Republicans have spent far more money for the election of their candidates for the Senate . . ."

The Illinois Democrat charged that, in the last two reports filed by each group, the Republican Senatorial campaign committee listed well over $300,000 as spent for GOP Senate candidates, while his Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee spent only "a little more than $42,000."

Warren Welcomed At Hometown Rally

Oakland, Calif., Nov. 1 (AP). — Governor Earl Warren was welcomed to his hometown of Oakland tonight in an election-eve rally climaxing his Republican vice presidential campaign.

With his family, the Governor was greeted by thousands gathered at Oakland Municipal Auditorium in a "welcome home" party.

Before crossing the bay from San Francisco tonight, he took part in a national Republican coast-to-coast broadcast.

"I am sure that when the election is over tomorrow night," he told his radio audience, "regardless of the result, Americans everywhere will accept it as the voice and the will of the free people of America."

The American people, he said, are "in fine spirits.

"They are concerned about the problems of American life but their concern is of a kind that makes them want to get together and see that things are done.

"They are not so concerned with how these things came to be present-day problems as they are about how we can best solve them.

"They are not literally partisan. They are looking for leadership—leadership that is sure-footed, forward-looking and confident of its ability to solve our problems within the spirit as well as the letter of our American institutions.

"I believe the vast majority of them have concluded that such leadership is to be found in our standard bearer, my friend and colleague, Tom Dewey."

Warren arrived late this afternoon from Sacramento and took up headquarters with his family in a hotel suite in San Francisco.

He returned to San Francisco after the Oakland rally, and is remaining there overnight. He will receive the election returns there tomorrow night.

With Mrs. Warren, he is to vote early tomorrow morning at his home precinct in Oakland's Piedmont district.

Dewey Deemed Sure Winner

that her party was in "great danger" of losing the Senate.

The Democrats need to pick up only four Republican seats, and hold what they have, to gain control of the Senate. They've got one nailed down—the GOP seat in Oklahoma. They say they are reasonably sure of getting others in Minnesota, Wyoming, Kentucky and West Virginia.

That would give them a gain of five, and they could thus afford to lose a seat. The indications are that they will lose one—in Montana. The betting odds out there favor Tom Davis, the Republican, to defeat Senator James Murray, the Democratic incumbent.

Special correspondents of The Washington Post, reporting by telegraph over the weekend, gave the Democrats the edge in Oklahoma, Minnesota, Wyoming and Kentucky, and Republican Davis the edge in Montana.

If it worked out that way, the result would be a 48-48 tie in the Senate. This would leave the Senate in the hands of the Republicans; and, contrary to a widespread belief, there would be no necessity for Gov. Earl Warren, the prospective Vice President, to cast his vote to break the tie.

So far as the House of Representatives are concerned, the Democrats are making no claims to taking it away from the Republicans. Impartial observers think the Democrats may pick up as many as 10 House seats, another indication of the vitality of the party of Jefferson and Jackson.

When they go to the polls today, the voters also will elect 32 Governors and settle a number of vexatious problems in the various States.

South Carolinians will vote on whether to permit divorces in their State. In 1895 they amended their constitution to prohibit divorces.

Make New Victory Claims

Democratic and Republican leaders made new claims last night, expressing complete confidence that their presidential and congressional candidates would be put in office in Tuesday's election.

Senator J. Howard McGrath, Democratic national chairman, said that if 60 million voters go to the polls a vote of that size would insure the election of President Truman and a Democratic Congress.

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, the candidate of the States' Rights Democrats, said he was sure the voters would veto the "subversive civil rights proposals" of Mr. Truman and Governor Dewey.

Here is what major party leaders and spokesmen had to say the night before the polls opened:

McGrath—"I hope that we will have at least a 60 million vote to demonstrate to the world the virility of American democracy. Such a great demonstration of the interest of Americans in their Government and in the great issues of this campaign will penetrate the Iron Curtain and show the Soviet leaders how badly they have misjudged the temper of the American people."

Republican National Chairman Hugh Scott: "The people are on the march and are about to regain their Government from the hands of the tired and frustrated people who have demonstrated that they simply do not know what is good for the country. The workers from the Dewey-Warren team will be out in tremendous force tomorrow. We should carry more than 34 States, and I would not be surprised to see us carry 36 States and upward. We expect positively to regain control of the Senate and should gain one or two seats."

Henry A. Wallace—"The only important vote in this election is the Progressive Party vote and nobody knows that more than the managers of Dewey and Truman . . . we will have a real party to fight for peace in 1950 and 1952 and to oppose the bipartisans in the Eighty-first Congress as they try to advance the cause of reaction."

Junior Misses Have Their Fling

Associated Press WIREPHOTOS

Miss Widener Miss Clark

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 1 (AP).—Two girls, members of socially-prominent Kentucky and Pennsylvania families, forfeited $200 bonds each as the result of an egg-throwing incident early Sunday. Neither appeared in Police Court on fraud of peace charges.

One of them, 21-year-old Nancy Clark of Philadelphia, is accused of flinging two eggs inside police headquarters at 1:30 a. m. yesterday. Her companion was listed as Ella Widener, 20, Haverford, Pa. Both spent an hour in the city lockup until bond was arranged for them. Magistrate Foster Beatty, who ducked just in time to miss catching both eggs head-high, said policemen apparently were ready to "forgive" the girls.

"They apologized," he said, and explained they had nothing against the police but were just playing a Halloween trick."

Electors' Vote 'Open Secret' Until Jan. 6

The 531 presidential electors who are to be chosen today will meet in the various states on the first Monday after the second Wednesday in December.

They will cast their ballots for President and Vice President, and send them to Washington.

On Jan. 6, in the House of Representatives, the presiding officer of the Senate will open and count the returns and announce the result before a joint meeting of the Congress. That will make it official.

The term Electoral College has been used informally since about 1821. According to the Encyclopedia Americana, it probably was suggested by the College of Cardinals of the Catholic Church.

As originally ordained, the electors were meant to constitute a council of the ablest men of the country, who would use their independent judgment to select a President and Vice President.

The theory has never been fact for a moment, and since the third election not even a pretense. Today, as is well known, the electors accept their offices under a tacit pledge to vote according to the popular will as expressed in the balloting.

Undersecretary of State Lovett yesterday sent letters to the State Governors reminding them to notify him of the election returns.

Acting for Secretary Marshall, Lovett made the request as part of traditional duties of the Secretary in all Presidential elections. A law passed in 1792 makes the Secretary the channel of communication between the Federal and State governments.

Once the election returns have arrived here, the Secretary of State will send them to Capitol Hill. The ceremony of January 6 will follow.

Thurmond Fires Final Blast At Truman on Civil Rights

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 1 (AP).—Governor J. Strom Thurmond, States' Rights presidential candidate, tonight ended his campaign with a final broadside at President Truman's civil rights stand.

"Regardless of the outcome of tomorrow's election we will have paved the way for the reorganization of the Democratic party and its rededication to the principle that the States shall govern their internal affairs," the South Carolina Governor declared.

Thurmond's speech was prepared for radio network (ABC) broadcast.

"We will have made it unprofitable for any candidate for President to barter away liberty of the American people to win blocs of racial votes," Thurmond said.

"We will have crystalized sentiment against the so-called civil rights program and made its passage improbable.

"We will have brought about recognition for the South in the political affairs of the Nation which it has not fully enjoyed since the War Between the States," he continued.

He spoke from the Governor's mansion here and asserted President Truman's "misnamed" civil rights message to Congress was "designed to enable President Truman to outbid Governor Dewey and Henry Wallace for blocs of minority votes in doubtful States."

Thurmond Warns Revolt Will Continue

New York, Nov. 1 (NYHT).—An election eve warning that Southern Democrats will continue their revolt against Northern colleagues was issued tonight by Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, Presidential candidate of the Dixiecrats.

By telephone from Columbia, S. C., Governor Thurmond predicted his vote would be large enough in the South to "accomplish our objective" of defeating President Truman and disciplining the Northern elements of the Democratic Party. The South Carolina Governor is on the ballot in 15 States; all but Minnesota and North Dakota are in the South.

Governor Thurmond repeated his warning to Northern Democrats that the Dixiecrats—technically the States' Rights Democrats—will not return to the national party unless their theory of States' Rights is recongized. The Southern element stalked out of the party after Northern Democrats pushed through adoption of a strong civil rights platform plank at the Democratic National Convention in July.

100 Tennessee Voters Report 'Klan' Threats

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 1 (U.P.).—Mayor Thomas L. Cummings said today "more than 100" persons, most of them Negroes, have telephoned him they have received letters warning them not to vote tomorrow.

He said two of the letters were brought to his office. Printed in red crayon, he said, they read: "Stay away from the polls November 2. KKK. The Klan knows you."

Cummings said the two letters he had bore excellent fingerprints.

New Workers' Party Urged by Thomas

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—Norman Thomas called tonight for a "new political alliance" that must be "in the truest sense of the word a workers party."

Winding up his sixth campaign as the Socialist Presidential candidate, Thomas assailed Democrats, Republicans and Progressives, and called for "a new movement that will fly its own banners."

"It must be," he said, ". . . a workers' party, but not a party which is the plaything of labor leaders."

He said "we have come to a time when civilization with its material and cultural benefits cannot be safe for anybody unless increasingly it is made the possession of all men and nations on earth."

3 States Affected

Liquor Sales Will Be Issue In Elections

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Liquor will be issue in today's elections for millions of voters—an issue beclouded by the interest in the presidential and congressional races.

Three States will have Statewide elections, while scores of smaller communities will vote on permitting the sale of liquor.

In Kansas, a vote will be taken on a proposal to repeal the 68-year-old constitutional prohibition laws. Kansas turned down a repeal measure in 1934, when most other States were voting for liquor's return.

Reports from the Sunflower State are that the liquor question has overshadowed the other races—most conceding the State to the Republicans. The election campaign has seen a wide split in the State.

Control Council Pushes Repeal

On one side is the Kansas Legal Control Council, which claims a membership of 10,000 of the State's prominent citizens, and has opened its lists to public inspection. Joining with the council in its efforts for repeal have been two of the State's leading clerics, the Right Rev. Mark K. Carroll, Catholic Bishop of Wichita, and the Rev. Samuel E. West of St. James Episcopal Church at Wichita.

On the other side are the majority of the Protestant churches, with two Methodist bishops, W. E. Hammaker of Denver, head of the Methodist Board of Temperance and Morals, and Donald H. Tippett, leading the fight.

Even if the measure carries, the job of returning liquor to legal sale in the State rests with the Legislature. The proposed repealer provides that the Legislature may provide prohibition "in certain areas" and further states that the open saloon be prohibited.

Indorsed by Gazette

One interesting feature of the race was the indorsement of repeal by the Emporia Gazette, a long-time foe of liquor. In 1934 William Allen White, editor, predicted that "Kansas will stagger to the polls and vote dry,"—and they voted dry by a majority of 89,000. This year White's son and successor, William L. White, is urging repeal.

In Massachusetts and New Hampshire the legal sale of liquor will be voted on in every town—a biennial performance required by law. A similar election was held in Maine September 13, when 493 towns voted on the question. The drys won by a slight edge. Twenty-four wet towns with a population of 11,415, voted dry, while 20 dry localities, with 9887, voted wet.

California will vote on two amendments to its liquor laws. One will provide that city councils or county boards of supervisors may vote their communities dry. The second, proposed by the wets, provides for better enforcement of the State's dry laws, and puts the job of enforcement entirely upon local officials.

In Colorado a slam-bang battle is being staged over a local option amendment offered by the drys. Supported by the Inter-Church Temperance Movement of Colorado, it will provide that any community now wet may vote dry, but does not permit a dry community to vote wet.

In Illinois, five Chicago wards are voting on local option—to ban all sale and manufacture of liquor within their areas. In Michigan, Lapeer County, with a population of 32,116, will vote on a similar measure. If the drys win, it will be the first break in Statewide legal sale of liquor in Michigan.

In New York State 12 small towns with an aggregate population of 12,600 will vote on whether to continue the legal sale within their boundaries. Five others will vote on whether to remain dry.

In Ohio, 68 voting units with a total population of 80,190, will vote on local option. All are now wet. Seven communities, with a population of 7700 that are now dry, will vote on returning legal sale.

In addition to all these communities, more than 100 voting units in the country will vote on whether to permit the sale of beer and wine.

Although drys in most areas where the voting is taking place are importing speakers and outside help, liquor proponents are staying out of all the fights, they claim. Whenever either workers or money has been imported into a State to help the wets the action has been used, with good effect, by their opponents.

3 Va. Schools Split in Vote For President

Truman won in Fairfax County, but Dewey cleaned up in Arlington yesterday—in mock elections conducted in three Virginia schools.

Dewey was top man at Arlington's Claude A. Swanson Junior High and at Washington-Lee High School. The President won at Mount Vernon High School in Fairfax.

The vote at Claude Swanson gave Dewey 251, Truman 189, Thurmond 48, Wallace 22, and Socialist Candidate Norman Thomas 5 votes. A total of 515 voted.

Washington-Lee High's balloting was limited to the senior civics classes, with 71 students for Dewey, 51 for Truman, 11 for Thurmand, and 2 for Wallace.

The classes voted 92 to 17 in favor of Arlington's proposed $4,750,000 bond issue; gave Arlington County Board candidate I. Lee Potter 62 votes compared with Alfred E. Frisbie's 55.

The students "unseated" Sen. A. Willie Robertson (D., Va.) and put GOP Contender Robert Woods in his place. But they returned Rep. Howard Smith (D., Va.) to his House seat with 77 votes compared with Republican Tyrrell Krum's 55.

At Mount Vernon High in Fairfax, Truman stole the honors with 225 votes against Dewey's 109. Thurmond received 50 student tallies, while Wallace trailed with 12.

D. C. Boys Club Gives Truman 226, Dewey 38

President Truman got 226 votes last night in the first presidential poll—a mock election—of the Boys Club of Washington, 261 17th st. sw. Governor Dewey received 38. Thurmond got 6 votes, Thomas 2, Wallace 1, Winston Churchill 1, and three boys voted for themselves, according to William R. Hinckley, assistant director of clubs and classes.

Many State Issues Facing Voters Today

By the United Press

Birth control in Massachusetts, a proposed divorce law for South Carolina and bonuses for World War II veterans in 10 States top more than 175 State issues facing voters Tuesday.

Voters in 32 States will chose Governors. Eighteen of these States now have Republican Governors and 14, Democratic.

Republicans appeared to have their best chances of winning Democratic governorships in Washington and Utah. But Democrats have hopes of supplanting GOP Governors in Ohio and Indiana.

Division Now Equal

Turnovers in those four States would leave the division of Governors equal—24 Republicans and 24 Democrats—as they are now. Maine elected a GOP Governor September 13. Ten holdover Governors are Democrats and five, Republican.

The Planned Parenthood League of Massachusetts is sponsoring a proposal to permit doctors to give birth control advice to married women "for protection of life or health." The Catholic Church opposes it and the Legislature has rejected it.

Massachusetts also will have up three propositions concerning labor. One would ban union and closed shops.

Bonuses for World War II veterans will be voted on in Indiana, Iowa, Louisiana, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Oregon, South Dakota, Washington and Wisconsin.

Individual bonuses would range from $250 to $650, and would total about one billion dollars.

Special Issues Involved

Louisiana led with the number of proposed constitutional amendments or special propositions—41. Many of them would give more political power to Gov. Earl Long, brother of the late Huey (Kingfish) Long.

California will have 19 special issues on the ballot and Georgia, 17.

Four States—California, Louisiana, New Jersey and West Virginia—are submitting proposals for public works estimated to cost 285 million dollars.

'Good' Voting Weather Here

situation as "confused" by so many candidates.

Tyrell Krum has made victory predictions on the assumption he will pick up anti-Smith votes, as well as Dewey landslide votes, to carry him to a safe margin over his Democratic opponent.

In Arlington County, no last-minute activity changed observers' predictions that the school bond issue—$4,750,000 for new classrooms—would be voted in today and that I. Lee Potter, Independent candidate for the Arlington County Board, has a good chance to nose out incumbent Alfred E. Frisbie. Others in the race are Francis J. Clair, free-lance writer, and Jacob Bechtel, 71-year-old retired carpenter.

Over the river, in Montgomery County, Md., where another hot local issue is to be decided today, there were conflicting contentions on the charter, home-rule plan from Plummer Shearin, executive secretary of the Charter Committee, and Montgomery County Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter, one of the principal opponents to the plan.

Charterite Sees Close Result

Shearin predicted a charter victory "by at least 2500 votes." He said the precinct workers have been ringing doorbells for votes "since Labor Day."

Sauter declared, "Upon careful checking, we predict the charter will be defeated by about 3500 votes."

In Virginia, results of the contest were expected to come in slower than from many sections of Maryland where voting machines have been installed.

Unless the vote for Dixiecrat Strom Thurmond is negligible in Virginia, Truman is predicted to lose the State to Dewey. Senator A. Willis Robertson is not expected to encounter too much difficulty in the five-man Senate race. The Republicans have hopes of picking up seats in the Second District, where Republican Walter E. Hoffman, Norfolk, opposes Democratic incumbent Porter Hardy, jr., and in two other congressional districts: The Seventh, where incumbent Democrat Burr P. Harrison is opposed by Staunton Republican Stephen D. Timberlake, and the Ninth, where "Tom" B. Fugate of Ewing, a Democrat, is in an open race with T. Eugene Worrell, Bristol Republican.

Dewey Victory Seen in Md.

In Maryland, Dewey is conceded winner unless Truman has a big Baltimore vote turnout. Elsewhere in the State, incumbents are conceded the edge in all contests except the second, where, in an open race, State Senator William P. Bolton, Towson Democrat, has slightly the upper hand over his Republican opponent, former State Senator A. Earl Shipley.

Virginia veterans who wish to vote today were warned yesterday that if their registration was completed before the October 2 deadline, they must also bring their discharge papers and the required poll tax receipts. For veterans discharged in 1945, receipts for 1946 and 1947 taxes would be needed. If discharged in 1946, the 1947 receipt would be needed. If discharged in 1947 or 1948, the discharge papers would be sufficient.

380,000 Virginia Vote Likely

Predictions of Virginia's vote today are set at about 380,000, slightly below the 1944 total. Of this number, 40,000 votes are expected in the nearby areas of Alexandria, and Arlington and Fairfax Counties.

In Maryland, veterans require no special procedure for voting, other than the standard registration required of all State voters. The Free State is expected to vote between 625,000 and 650,000 persons today. Of this number, 75,000 are expected to be in the nearby counties of Prince Georges and Montgomery.

In voteless Washington, where an estimated 124,000 residents are expected to vote by absentee ballot in the election, Democratic National Committeeman Melvin D. Hildreh yesterday made his own prediction of the vote — "overwhelming" for Truman. Said Hildreth, "It will not be a landslide for reaction."

All Maryland will be tightly closed today while the balloting is in progress. The same is true of Arlington County, Va., but in Alexandria, schools and city government offices will remain open with civil and police court operating half a day. Banks and liquor stores will be closed.

Schools, banks, courts, state and county offices and liquor establishments will be closed in Maryland and Arlington.

Liquor establishments in Prince Georges County must be closed while the polls are open, 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. Grocery stores which sell liquor or beer must cover their stocks during these hours even if they remain open for other sales.

The County Liquor dispensaries in Montgomery County will be closed as will beer establishments.

In voteless Washington, Election Day will be like any ordinary Tuesday.

Forrestal to Shun Dewey Post, Friends Say

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Defense Secretary James Forrestal has informed friends that he will not accept a post in the Dewey Cabinet if offered, it was learned yesterday.

This word from intimates of the national military establishment chief grows out of rumors that he might continue as Secretary of Defense if Governor Dewey defeats Mr. Truman for the Presidency.

Forrestal, these sources declared, made the statement unequivocally. They quoted him as saying he had had enough after more than eight years in Washington official life, and would not stay on under any circumstances.

But these same sources believe the statement should be qualified. They feel the defense chief would certainly stay in a dire national emergency, if asked to, and might accept a draft to remain temporarily even without any change in world conditions, if made to feel that it would be in the national interest.

Forrestal declined yesterday to comment on his plans. However, it is known that not only Forrestal but the three other Defense Secretaries expect to stay at their posts, if Dewey is elected, until the new President is inaugurated.

Army Secretary Kenneth Royall, Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan and Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington agree with Forrestal that national defense should be kept out of politics.

If there is a shift of Administration they want to see as smooth a changeover of civil command as possible, and if asked to, probably would remain as long after next January 20 as might be necessary to let their successors get settled, their friends believe.

Any premature resignation or refusal to cooperate would be inexcusable under the current international situation, according to Pentagon sentiment.

Both Old Parties Evil, Says Wallace

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—Henry A. Wallace, in a pre-election statement, said tonight a vote for either President Truman or Gov. Thomas E. Dewey "is a wasted vote."

The Progressive Party nominee summed up his campaign by saying:

1. "A vote for Dewey is a vote for reaction. It is a vote for policies that will temporarily increase Wall Street's super-profits while leading us straight to war and depression. For anyone except a corporation banker, a vote for Dewey is a wasted vote."

2. "A vote for Truman is also a wasted vote. Truman is going to lose. Truman's managers, who opposed his nomination, know he will lose. They're running him only as a stalking horse for reaction. They are running him only to confuse millions of progressive-minded Americans."

"Between the two old parties there is no lesser evil. They are both very great evils."

Wallace added "the only important vote in the election is the Progressive Party vote—and nobody knows that more than the managers of Truman and Dewey. That is why we are attacked as 'Communists' and the news of our campaign buried in the press."

Wallace ended his campaign with four meetings in the Bronx.

Later he spoke over the network of the American Broadcasting Co. In his prepared election eve broadcast, Wallace said:

"Tomorrow, when you go to the polls, you will be voting for one world at peace or two worlds in conflict."

He added:

"Only one party, the Progressive Party, the party led by (Vice Presidential Candidate Senator) Glen Taylor and myself, stands for one world united to end poverty and war.

"The Democrats and Republicans stand for two worlds fighting each other politically, economically, and finally with full force of arms.

Wallace's last word to voters was a prediction:

"In a shorter time than any of us realize, the Progressive Party shall become the first party of our country."

Wallace and his wife vote tomorrow at South Salem, N. Y., where the Wallace farm is located.

MY WIFE HAVING LEFT ME
Sue, I sure do miss you. And I admit I've been hard to take. But, hon, there was a reason for my mean disposition. I was "out of order" and depending upon harsh laxatives. Now you'd see a big change. Yes, I've found relief from constipation caused by lack of bulk in the diet—by eating right. Every day now, I have me a bowlful of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN and follow through by drinking plenty of water. What relief, what joy, to be able to give purgatives the go-by! That crisp whole bran tastes just fine and keeps me regulated. But, Sue, life isn't right without you. Come back, you're the only girl for me. Your loving JOE.

Brannan Sees Reshuffle of Farm Program

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

A prediction that the whole long-range farm program will be reopened in the new Congress was made by Charles F. Brannan, Secretary of Agriculture, yesterday.

Brannan, just back from making 80 speeches for the Democratic ticket in farm areas, said he found "great apprehension among farmers on what the farm program will be.

"No matter what the outcome of the campaign," Brannan said, "it has stimulated the farmers to more thought of farm programs."

Particularly he heard complaints of lack of storage for farm crops as a result of changes this year in the Commodity Credit Corp. charter, and concern over complaints about farm price supports.

He asserted that the international wheat agreement is "dead." A new agreement can be obtained from the other countries signing the agreement only on renegotiated, and less favorable terms, he said.

He also reported no complaints about the size of American grain exports, adding, "I saw no evidence of isolationism in the Midwest."

President Truman's farm secretary declined to predict the election outcome on the grounds he had limited his observations to farm areas.

"Mr. Truman will get a surprisingly large section of the farm vote," he added. "More farmers will vote Democratic than at any time since 1936. They are studying issues now. The old ancestor worship in the Midwest, where farmers voted Republican because their father and grandfather did, is dying out."

Dewey Will Solve Rights Problem, Stassen Predicts

Charlotte, N. C., Nov. 1 (AP).—Harold Stassen predicted tonight that the election of Thomas E. Dewey as President tomorrow "will solve the difficult balance between States' rights and human rights."

The Republican candidate, Stassen said, will "work intelligently in settling those differences," with a great deal of help from the South's leaders themselves.

Lookout Set For Possible Rob Slayer

Police last night broadcast a lookout for a possible suspect in the slaying of a Southwest theater manager as District theaters offered a $500 reward for the slayer's arrest and conviction.

Police declined to discuss the importance of the lookout beyond indicating that every possible angle is being checked.

The manager, James E. Washington, 51, was shot to death Saturday night as he left the Rosalie Theater, 218 F st. sw., which is one of the District Theaters chain, with a bag containing about $400 in receipts.

A bystander, Herbert Smith, 35, of 1224 7th st. nw., was fatally shot during an ensuing exchange of gunfire between the bandit and police. Three youths were wounded by stray bullets.

Police reported yesterday that a .35 caliber automatic Winchester rifle, used by the bandit in the shootings, was found, along with a dark brown coat in a Southwest lumber yard near the scene of the shooting.

They believe the bandit hid in the lumber yard immediately after the shooting and later escaped under the protection of the heavy fog which had started to set in.

The coroner's office, following an autopsy yesterday, failed to recover the bullet which mortally wounded Smith. Police said, however, that the large size of the bullet wound in his chest indicated he had been struck by a bullet from the bandit's gun and not from any of the policemen's guns fired during the gun battle.

The gunfight took place, immediately after Washington was shot, when two policemen, who were at a police call box a half block away, rushed to the scene, and the bandit opened fire on them. Two other policemen responded in a scout car and also were fired on, one of them returning fire.

The engineroom telegraph of the Washington steamer District of Columbia was on "full ahead" just before the vessel crashed into the tanker Georgia in Hampton Roads at 7:05 a. m. Sunday, Coast Guard probers were told yesterday.

This was told the board of investigation at Norfolk, Va., by Capt. Edward H. Eaton, 46, skipper of the steamer. Eaton's employers said it was his first accident in 25 years of service.

The engineroom telegraph had been set full ahead to give the ship steerageway, Eaton said, because she had just left the Old Point landing and had gained a speed of only 8 miles an hour.

Killed in the fog-shrouded collision was Miss Marian E. McWhorter, 24, Atlanta field representative of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Miss McWhorter had just completed two weeks training here.

The injured were Lynwood Sartorius, 43, of 1704 Allison st. nw., leg injuries; Nelson H. Walton, 40, of 4313 Old Dominion dr., Arlington, fractured arm, and Earl F. Duke, 41, of Norfolk, leg injuries.

Capton Eaton, who lives at 3602 Nichols ave. se., said the visibility in a pea soup fog off Old Point Comfort was about 100 feet.

Making no attempt to assert that a flood tide had carried him off course into the quarantine anchorage where the gasoline and oil laden tanker had anchored for safety, the skipper said he had taken a course approximately southwest by west from the Old Point landing.

This course carried him across the foot of the quarantine area to the spot where the tanker lay.

Heard Fog Bell

Eaton testified he heard the tanker's fog bell after he cleared the landing about 7:02 a. m. The sound was put at from 12 to 25 degrees on the steamer's right.

The captain asserted he then ordered the seamer's course deflected to the left. He said he heard only two bell warnings before the accident—the second signal when he was literally upon the tanker.

J. Allen Riordan, vice president of the Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Co., operator of the passenger vessel, disclosed the steamer was not radar equipped. "We never thought it was necessary," he said.

cross-complaint for divorce, filed in August, 1947.

Beloff said he became suspicious before his wife, May, left him in April, 1947, and used to return to their home at 1611 Decatur st. nw. from the office twice a day.

"I was watching all the time," he testified, "One day in March, when I came home, Spivak dashed out the side door and I went in and saw my wife dressed in a red silk robe. About a week before Easter, I came home again about 2:30 p. m., Spivak ran out the side door, I went in and found my wife, with no nightgown on, just a robe."

Another time, in April, he saw Spivak pick up his wife in a car and go to a rooming house in the 1800 block of Columbia rd. nw., he said.

Beloff said he had seen Spivak kiss Mrs. Beloff once when he was ill in bed. It was when Spivak had brought her a bottle of perfume, he added. He also saw them together in Far Rockaway, N. Y., where Mrs. Beloff had gone to stay with her parents when she left him in April, 1947, he declared.

The pudgy, excitable real estate man, who is also asking custody of a 4-year-old daughter, Sylvia, became so voluble on the stand in describing his suspicions and the alleged lovers' actions that Judge F. Dickinson Letts finally asked his attorney, John Alexander, if he had found "how to turn off this phonograph."

In cross-examination, Beloff admitted he had "told the world" that he would kill Spivak if he "got" him.

Spivak Also Being Sued

Spivak, who met Mrs. Beloff while he was renting desk space in Beloff's real estate office, is himself being sued for divorce on grounds of cruelty. He has not testified yet in the case being heard. He lives at 1634 Longfellow st. nw.

Mrs. Beloff, whose divorce suit against Beloff charging cruelty was dismissed by Judge Letts last Friday for lack of evidence, has denied the adultery charges.

Yesterday's hearing was adjourned until 10 a. m. today after cross examination by Edward J. Reamer, attorney for Mrs. Beloff, and while he was being cross-examined by David H. Thompson, Spivak's counsel.

Md. Farmer Shot to Death

Berlin, Md., Nov. 1 (AP).—Cleve Jones, prosperous Eastern Shore poultry farmer, was shot and killed today on a lonely dirt road near his Worcester County home.

His son-in-law told police Jones was shot in the head after they stopped their light truck to pick up a pistol and a tire wrench lying on the road.

The son-in-law, Edward Early, said that the unknown assailant may have shot fro ambush.

He gave this account of the shooting at an inquest held by Dr. N. E. Sartorious, assistant State medical examiner for Worcester County:

Early and Jones were driving along the dirt road off the Stephen Decatur highway shortly after 1 p. m. in search of wood chips for the chicken farm.

They spotted the pistol and lug wrench lying in the road.

Early stopped the light pickup truck and Jones got out and retrieved the pistol and tool.

Just as Jones got back into the truck, a bullet shattered the left window. It was followed immediately by another shot. They apparently were fired from an embankment on the left of the road.

The 60-year-old Jones slumped over.

Early said he scrambled out of the truck and ran nearly a mile through the woods to a farmer's house.

The farm owner and his wife drove Early back to the shooting scene. They arrived as a blue sedan drove away. The pistol and lug wrench were no longer in the truck.

roof. That was the last Broyles saw of him until he heard police sirens shortly after.

The roof of the building is encircled by a ledge two feet thick and three to four feet high.

Heinlein was married and recently moved with his wife and two children, a son about 3 and a daughter about 6, to 2105 Belvedere dr., Silver Spring. The family formerly had lived with Mrs. Heinlein's father, Coleman Moore, in Forest Glen, Md.

Police said they learned Heinlein had been despondent over domestic difficulties and had threatened to commit suicide several times.

The attorney, engaged in general practice, rented desk space in the office of E. H. Bond, patent attorney, room 442, Munsey bldg.

In addition to his law practice, Heinlein worked as a master of ceremonies at the Tick-Tock Tavern, University lane and Ridge dr., Hyattsville, Md.

Mrs. Betty Gibson, proprietor of the establishment, said yesterday that Heinlein, who worked there under the name of Jimmy Daniel, was in good spirits as he entertained until midnight Sunday. He returned to the tavern at about 9 a. m. yesterday to pick up a topcoat, chatted pleasantly for a few minutes and left for his office, she said.

Mrs. Gibson said that Heinlein also appeared on television from time to time, over WTTG, Washington. He also had worked one time as an entertainer on Radio Station WGAY.

Business acquaintances of the attorney said he had been trying to secure employment with the Department of Commerce or the Maritime Commission.

Heinlein, who served in the merchant marine during the war, was employed by the Maritime Commission for a while after his discharge.

The attorney was born in Chicago, May 18, 1914. He attended Western Military Academy at Alton, Ill., the University of Illinois and the University of Indiana. He was a member of the bar of those two States and was admitted to the District bar, June 4, 1947, and to the District Bar Association September 3, 1947.

Police said no notes were left behind nor were any found on the body.

Plan Drawn for New Public Works Dept.

A controversial plan to centralize Government construction activities—including the civil functions of the Army Engineers—into a new Department of Public Works is slated to be presented to Congress in January.

Such a recommendation has been made to the bipartisan Government Reorganization Commission, headed by former President Herbert Hoover, by its public works "task force" under Robert Moses, New York park commissioner.

Adoption of the plan by the commission is believed assured, inasmuch as Hoover is known to favor it. He made a somewhat similar proposal to Congress 16 years ago just before leaving the White House. It was defeated by the then Democratic House.

Is Still "Hush-Hush"

The Moses plan—still in the hush-hush stage—is understood to include:

(1) Creation of a Department of Public Works headed by a Secretary receiving $25,000 a year, an Undersecretary at $20,000 and four assistant secretaries at $15,000. It would take over all or most of the Government construction activities no wperformed by a number of departments.

(2) A major plank of the program would remove rivers and harbors and flood control activities from the Army Corps of Engineers, which has had charge of such work since 1824.

(3) Assignment of not only Army, but also Navy and Air Force officers, to this civilian department to "direct and be engaged in public works tasks commensurate with their rank and experience."

Critical of Engineers

Informed sources quoted a confidential memorandum from Moses to Hoover which said:

"The Army Engineers continue to control part of the rivers and harbors and flood control spheres at a time when reclamation in the broad sense, power development and other phases of engineering work involving rivers and harbors should be a part of the same program."

Moses was critical of the Army engineers' present manner of handling of civil functions, declaring the job was too important to be approached from the point of view of old school tradition." He also contended that Pentagon chiefs have enough to do handling defense matters and should not have their hand in power development, reclamation and such questions.

Some of the rivers and harbors work handled by the Army, says Moses, "is, if anything, a Navy function with no relation to Army strategy but some bearing upon navigation. Other phases of this work have no real relation to either the Army or the Navy and involve only private or at any rate commercial development and usage."

Rough Sledding Ahead

The proposal will have rough sledding on Capitol Hill. There is much truth in the charge made by President Hoover in 1933 that the defeat of his reorganization plan was largely political. The incoming Democrats did not want the executive branches of the Government revamped by the outgoing GOP President.

As for the civil functions of the Army engineers, however, Congress since then has gone on record against any change. Many Republicans voted to exclude it from any reorganization plan.

Backers of the present system contend it provides a much more efficient, nonpolitical method of handling such important development and conservation work than if turned over to a Federal bureaucracy.

Where, except among the career men of the Army Corps of Engineers—the West Point elite—could the Government get topflight engineers at Federal salaries, they ask? Many of the present officers drawing $6000 to $10,000 a year, could step out anytime and make $25,000 to $30,000 in civil life, it is said with considerable truth.

Cite Low Overhead

And where, outside of the engineers, has the Government developed a vast Nation-wide organization with such a low overhead in Washington, these sources contend. Less than 200 persons—officers, civilian engineers, clerks, typists, etc.—are assigned to civil functions work in the office of the chief of Army Engineers here, they state.

More important, say opponents of the Hoover-Moses plan, is the national defense angle. Handling the construction of great dams, levees and other projects gives Army engineers practical training they could get in no other way.

Such work has developed the Army engineers into the world's best military engineers. The civil functions assignment is the envy of foreign army engineer chiefs. And it has produced some of the Nation's greatest military strategists. Gen. Robert E. Lee, Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Gen. Lucius Clay are listed as products of the Corps of Engineers' river and flood control work.

The efficiency of the present system was demonstrated in 1941-1942 when the Engineers were put in charge of the Army's 11-billion-dollar construction program. Previously, the building of posts, airfields, etc., had been under the Quartermaster Corps, which was geared to the Army's minute peacetime post construction program and couldn' handle the huge wartime building. Fear is expressed that if the Engineers are confined to such a peacetime role, they, too, might not measure up in an emergency.

The present decentralized setup of the Engineers permits the corps to know the Nation's construction industry thoroughly. They, therefore, can mobilize quickly, pulling in Reserve officers for key jobs and plancing orders rapidly with firms they are sure can produce.

Could Continue, Says Moses

Moses contends this benefit could continue under a civilian Department of Public Works.

"The argument that rivers and harbors work can only be directed by the Army engineers becomes even more absurd when it is realized that fewer than 200 Army engineers are involved and the remainder of the personnel under their control numbering over 30,000 are civilians who supply most of the detailed knowledge and continuing direction," states his memorandum.

"If the Army engineers supply unusual ability and obtain invaluable training by contact with this responsibility there is no reason why the same and even better results cannot be obtained by assigning them and corresponding officers from the Navy and Air Force on a proper, dignified and respected basis to a central consolidated works department."

Opponents, however, urge that if the tradition, esprit and top management of the Army Engineer organization is removed and the job taken on by a Government bureauracy, the presence of some Army engineers on loan in subordinate positions would mean little.

Tiny Atom-Smasher Made to Count Neutrons

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

CANNED NEUTRONS — Dr. Kuan-Han Sun, Chinese-born physicist at the Westinghouse Research Laboratories, displays the newly developed neutron counter that operates like a miniature atom-smasher. An ordinary paint can is used to house the electronic device

When you give . . . give enough! Contribute to your Community Chest.

An atom-smashing machine, so small it operates within a gallon-size paint can, has been developed by Westinghouse scientists to detect and count neutrons.

Strictly a research tool, it is expected to enable physicists to probe more deeply into the structure of atoms and perhaps eventually solve more of the mysteries of the powerful forces at work within atoms.

The new device, containing a minute quantity of uranium-235, generates a series of tiny atomic explosions to reveal the presence and behavior of nutrons, and perhaps the even more elusive mesons.

Called a neutron counter, the instrument was developed jointly by Dr. William E. Shoupp, manager of nuclear physics and electronics at Westinghouse Research Laboratories, and Dr. Kuan-Han Sun, Chinese-born research physicist.

Neutrons, among the chief building blocks of matter, comprise more than 50 per cent of the earth's mass, Dr. Sun explained. They, alone, have defied all ordinary means of detection and study since they are neutral—carry no electrical charge—and have escaped direct detection by electrical means.

In the newly-developed neutron counter, uranium-235 (the atom bomb ingredium) is mixed with a special light-producing phosphor. The mixture is coated on the surface of a photo-electronic tube, and the device encased within the with a 2-inch thick wall of parwith a two-inch thick wall of parafffin to "slow down" fast moving neutrons.

"When a neutron passes through the paraffin shield and strikes the uranium-phosphor film on the tube," Dr. Sun explained, "it splits the uranium atom or atoms—just as happens in the atomic bomb but on a smaller scale. Nuclear fragments are hurled off and strike the phosphors, producing light rays.

"These light rays," he continued, "hit a photosensitive plate to produce electrons (readily detectable). Thus, neutrons are recorded as flashing peaks of light on a fluorescent screen and can be observed directly, or the electric impulses can be transmitted to electronic circuits that give an accurate count of the atomic explosions taking place."

6 Chicago Cab Companies Win Antitrust Case

Chicago, Nov. 1 (AP).—Six Chicago cab companies and an official of one were acquitted today of antitrust conspiracy charges.

The suit, filed by the antitrust division of the United States Department of Justice, had charged monopoly in the sale of taxicabs to companies in Chicago, New York, Pittsburgh and Minneapolis.

The suit also said the defendants sought to monopolize transportation of railroad passengers in Chicago.

Federal Judge Labuy held that the Government had not proved its case.

The defendants were Yellow Cab Co.; Chicago Yellow Cab Co., Inc.; Parmelee Transportation Co.; Cab Sales & Parts Corp.; Checker Taxi Co.; Checker Cab Manufacturing Corp. and Morris Markin, president of Checker Cab Manufacturing Corp.

Police Adjust 102 Citations

Traffic tickets were "fixed" for 100 motorists and two pedestrians in Washington last week, the Police Department reported yesterday.

The two pedestrians were granted warnings. They were Dorothy Youman of 5225 Connecticut ave. nw., who told police she became confused by the traffic, and Frances Z. Kluge of 1412 17th st. nw., who said she was a stranger in the city.

Tickets were cancelled for five motorists because of diplomatic immunity. They were:

Roman P. Garcia, Philippine Embassy, parking in a "no parking anytime" zone; Gaston Larranaga, Embassy of Uruguay, parking in a "no parking from 4 to 6 p. m." zone; Terence J. Hayes, Indian Embassy, parking abreast; Violetta Bertina, Argentine Embassy, parking in public space, and Shou Eng Koo, Chinese Embassy, parking in an alley.

Rita, Indian Prince, Fly To Mexico, He Vanishes

Mexico City, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—Rita Hayworth and Aly Khan, whose names have been linked romantically since last summer, flew into Mexico today and the wealthy Indian prince immediately disappeared.

The auburn-haired screen star refused to talk about her plans.

Miss Hayworth's divorce from Orson Welles does not become final until November 10, while Aly Khan, son of the wealthy Aga Khan of India, has a wife there.

'Poison Gas' Found Over Town Where 19 Met Death in Smog

Donora, Pa., Nov. 1 (AP).—A State health official reported tonight he had found "small quantities" of poison gas in the air over this industrial town where 19 asthma-cardia sufferers died suddenly over the weekend.

Dr. Joseph Shilen of Harrisburg, head of the industrial hygiene bureau of the State Board of Health, said his preliminary tests early yesterday showed both sulphur dioxide and sulphur trioxide.

He declined to say whether the "small quantities" of gas he found would be sufficient to cause death.

Meanwhile, citizens held an old-fashioned town meeting to seek ways of combating smogs, which many believe responsible for the 19 deaths.

For five days the town has been shrouded in sooty fog.

United States Bureau of Mines representatives arrived in this highly industrialized town of 13,500 to study the situation. The Army also sent an observer.

Meanwhile rain washed the air for nearly 24 hours, dispelling the smog. There were no new deaths reported today and no new cases of the strangling asthmatic condition.

But Dr. William Rongaus said that six of the 12 patients he visited today had new symptons—"sore chests, sore backs, burning throats and severs abdominal pains."

Eighteen of the more than 400 residents affected remained in Charleroi-Monessen Hospital. At Monongahela Hospital there were 10.

Some industrial smokestacks were idle today.

Peat Smog Snarls Milwaukee Traffic

Milwaukee, Nov. 1 (AP).—Two men were killed in traffic accidents today as billowing waves of peat smoke mingled with a heavy fog to snarl traffic in the greater Milwaukee area.

RKO to Split Up In Anti-Trust Case

In Bosch Suit

Swedes File Answers to U. S. Queries

Litigation over the wartime ownership of the American Bosch Co. and control of proceeds from shares of its stock advanced another step yesterday with the receipt of 26 answers to "interrogatories" sent to representatives of the Swedish plaintiffs.

The issue is whether there existed at the outbreak of war with Germany an arrangement between a Stockholm bank and the Bosch interests for purchase of the American Bosch Co., manufacturers of airplane and machine accessories, with the understanding that it would revert to German control two years after the war was over.

The Alien Property Custodian of the United States seized the 535,00 shares of the American Bosch Co., which was one of a number of the German firm's subsidiaries. They were sold publicly in 1946 to the Amara Corp. of New York for $6,129,748.

The Stockholm Enskilda Bank, one of the leading financial institutions in Europe, and two of its affiliates are plaintiffs in the litigation.

Answers to the Government's "interrogatories" were filed in Federal District Court yesterday, as ordered by the court October 8. They were drawn up after the court delayed a decision on whether the Government lawyers may take depositions from central figures in the case, Marcus and Jacob Wallenburg, officials of the Stockholm bank.

When hearings resume November 9, the Government is expected to renew its request to take depositions from the Wallenbergs.

The Government will then attempt to establish that the Bosch arrangement was a "cloak" to hide actual German ownership of the stock during the war in return for a $650,000 fee.

The Justice Department yesterday announced it had accepted the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation's plan for meeting terms of an antitrust judgment against it.

The move is designed to divorce RKO's local motion picture exhibition business from its production and distribution businesses within one year.

Action arose from the antitrust suit against eight leading motion picture concerns having interests in the production, distribution and exhibition fields.

Upheld by High Court

The Supreme Court last summer upheld the Government's claim of monopolistic practices.

RKO's plan provides:

1. Depending on stockholders' approval within 90 days, RKO will be dissolved into two new companies, one to operate theaters, and the other to hold its production and distribution assets. These will be the new picture company and the new theater company, both owned by existing stockholders.

2. Howard Hughes, now a controlling stockholder in RKO, will sell his interest in one of the new companies.

3. RKO will sell its interest in theaters jointly held with independents.

4. The two new companies will be controlled and managed independently of each other.

5. RKO also will be bound by a provision making all future theater acquisitions subject to approval by the district courts.

First Settlement

It is the first settlement agreement the Government has reached with a defendant in the motion-picture antitrust suit.

The suit also seeks to divorce the exhibition business and the production and distribution businesses of four other major movie companies—Loew, Paramount, Warner and Fox.

In addition to five major movie companies, RKO, Loew, Paramount, Warner and Fox, the suit was directed against Columbia Pictures Corp. and Universal Corp., which produce and distribute, and United Artists which distributes only.

Court Refuses Ban On Producer Operation

Philadelphia, Nov. 1 (AP).—A U. S. district judge rejected today a plea to order Warner Brothers Pictures and 10 other major film companies to give up ownership of motion picture houses in this district.

The divestiture order was sought by William Goldman Theatres, Inc., operator of a chain of independent theaters in Philadelphia.

Judge William H. Kirkpatrick also rejected a petition of Goldman that the defendants be restrained from licensing their films to theaters operated by any of the other defendants.

Goldman has said the device of cross-licensing enabled the larger companies to block first-run films from his independent houses.

Goldman was awarded a triple-damage verdict of $375,000 under the Clayton anti-trust act in a previous case.

Big Task Force Heads for Arctic To Test Strength

Boston, Nov. 1 (AP).—A huge naval task force is churning north to test its postwar strength in the frigid waters of the Arctic.

A hundred ships manned by 36,000 men, 543 aircraft and 17 submarines will engage in mock battle to attempt a few questions about the possible course of naval warfare in the future.

Commanding the surface vessels, according to reports received here today, is Admiral William H. P. Blandy, commander in chief of the Atlantic Fleet.

Out to waylay and "destroy" this fleet are the 17 subs, commanded by Rear Admiral James Fife, Jr.

Every phase of the operation will be conducted under simulated wartime conditions.

Finally, the second task fleet is scheduled to proceed into Davis Strait in the face of submarine wolfpacks and on into the waters off Greenland before returning to Norfolk, Va.

18 Hurt in Train Crash

Chicago, Nov. 1 (AP).—Eighteen persons were injured tonight when a North Shore electric train and a Chicago Transit Authority elevated train collided in suburban Evanston during a mounting fog.

Pre-Election Month Was Foggier Than Normal, and Cooler and Rainier

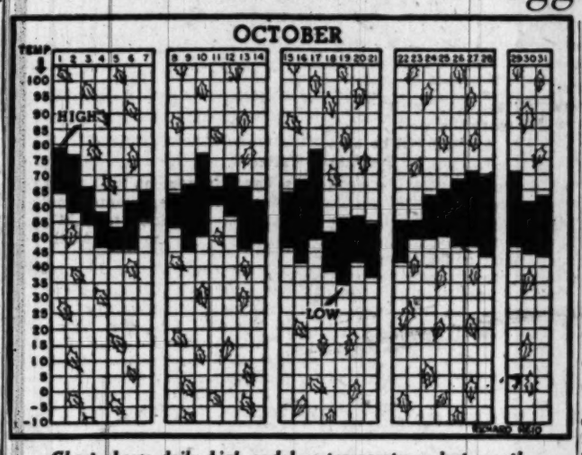

Chart shows daily high and low temperatures last month

Thirteen days of fog—eight days more than normal—were recorded here during October, the Weather Bureau reported yesterday.

The bureau attributed the pre-election fogginess to colder air, more rain and lengthening nights. Most of the fog, the bureau added, was of the light ground variety, with zero ceiling reported only last Saturday.

The month's record showed 3.09 inches of rain compared to the normal 2.84 inches, and an average temperature of 56 degrees compared against a normal average of 57.4.

Measurable rain fell on eight days—the 5th, 6th, 8th, 13th, 17th, 18th, 23d and 31st. Traces of rain, less than 1/100 of an inch, dribbled down on six days—the 1st, 7th, 11th, 14th, 24th and 25th. This amounted to some rain almost every other day.

The highest temperature was 79, on the 1st; lowest was 34, on the 19th; average high was 64.4; normal average high has been 67.2; average low was 47.7; normal average low has been 47.5.

Incidentally, the over-all monthly tempearture average of 56 was the coldest October since 1940, when the average was 55.7.

On the brighter side of the record let it be noted that the sun shone about every day but three—the 5th, 11th and 23d. It appeared for 174 hours and 13 minutes during the month, out of a possible 362 hours, which was 50 per cent of the possible time. Normal for October is 61 per cent.

Prevailing winds were northeasterly, while the usual prevailing winds in October are northwesterly. Average hourly velocity was 8.9 miles per hour with top speed 36 miles per hour on October 5.

A solar halo was observed on the 21st, and a partial halo on the 2d. A lunar halo occurred on the 16th, again on the 21st and 22d. Halos, the Weather Bureau says, are caused by refraction of light rays, from the sun or moon, passing through ice crystal clouds.

Gag in Grand Manner Costs Joker $1000 Bill

Detroit, Nov. 1 (AP).—It seemed like a good gag at the time but Alphonsus Harper of Highland Park, said it wasn't a bit funny any more.

He told Detroit police that an acquaintance tried to borrow a dollar from him onthe East Side early today. Harper reached in his pocket and handed the man a $1000 bill, according to his complaint.

"It was a joke," detectives quoted him. "I thought it would be funny to give him the grand and then watch him faint."

But the friend did not faint. He ran. And he held onto the $1000 bill, according to Harper.

Nurses' Pay Raise Plan Is Submitted

An agreement raising wage levels of about 1000 nurses in Washington area hospitals has been submitted to the District Graduate Nurses' Association, it was announced yesterday.

Product of nine months study and negotiation, it provides pay scales "generall in line" with those sought by the association, according to Robert Bryant, executive secretary of the Hospital Council of the National Capital Area.

Because of the complexity of wages, involving board, lodging, laundry and other services, Bryant said, it is virtually impossible to arrive at an average pay increase as result of the agreement. He added however, that it increases wages above current standards of "all other cities of comparable size."

The agreement was worked out for the hospital council through a committee comprising Arkell B. Cook, chairman (Carfield); Sister Marie (Providence); Leo Schmelzer (GWU); Col. N. L. McDiarmid (Columbia); John Martin (Children's), and Arthur Lambert (Suburban).

Acceptance Expected

Miss Edith M. Beattie, executive secretary of the association, said the proposed standards have been turned over to the personnel policy committee and "probably" will be accepted with "perhaps a few minor changes." The agreement, it was said, will be retroatcive to October 28.

The contract provides that general duty nurses employed in Washington area hospitals be paid a minimum base rate of $205 a month, with $5 increases at the end of six months' and one year's service. Basa hourly rates would be $1.08, $1.11 and $1.13.

Present scales for general duty nurses in local hospitals range from a minimum of $165 a month to $247.90, for an average of $197.50. The higher rates prevail, Bryant said, in Federal and municipal hospitals, whereas voluntary (nonprofit) hospitals have been paying, generally, between $165 and $175. Exceptions, he said, are Georgetown and George Washington Universities' new hospitals, where minimums are $200.

Lodging and Meals

The agreement provides, at the nurse's option, for payroll deductions of $25 a month where the hospital provides lodging, nominal charges for meals, and $5 a month laundry expense for a maximum of four uniforms a week.

A differential of $10 more a month for general duty nurses working from 3 to 11 p. m., is outlined in the agreement. Similarly, a $5 a month differential is provided for the 11 p. m. to 7 a. m. tour.

Provided also is $10 a month more to nurses working in operating and delivery rooms, Bryant said. The differentials are generally similar to those already in effect, it was explained.

Based on 44-Hour Week

The proposed standards are based on a 44-hour work week, exclusive of meal hours, as compared to the present 48-hour week, which includes three hours allowed for eating.

Six holidays, or alternate days off with pay, are provided, as well as paid vacations ranging from 12 to 18 work days annually for one to three years' service.

The standard also sets minimum rates for nurses up the line to the top minimum provided for directors of nurses, at $260 a month. These include:

Assistant head nurses; $210 at start, $215 after first six months, and $220 after one year.

Head nurses; $220, $225 and $230.

Assistant supervisors; $225, $230 and $235.

Arundel's Chief to Question Suspect

Glen Burnie, Md., Nov. 1 (Spl.).—Police Chief John H. Souers of Anne Arundel County, Md., will make a second trip to Woodbury, N. J., in a day or two to question a suspect in the September 17 murders of John H. Mahlan and Mary C. Kline of this town.

Souers spent several hours Sunday talking to police in Philadelphia and New Jersey and found "nothing positive" to link the Woodbury prisoner with the Glen Burnie slayings. But he did not talk to the prisoner, Albert H. Collins, 37, of Philadelphia, who New Jersey authorities say has admitted murdering a girl near Woodbury and has been connected with a number of other assaults and shootings of persons in automobiles on lonely roads.

"I've arranged to go back to Woodbury in a day or two and talk to the prisoner himself," Souers said tonight.

FBI Official to Speak At Elks Luncheon Club

The Washington Elks Luncheon Club speaker Wednesday will be Inspector Lee Penington of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, who will discuss the work of that agency. The meeting will be held in the Antlers Room of the Elks clubhouse, 919 H st. nw., beginning at 12:15 p. m.

John Russell, Elks house committee chairman, will preside, and Guy A. Caponnetto, exalted ruler of the Washington Elks, will be master of ceremonies.

Month's Yield Of Md. Sales Tax Is $2,375,692

Baltimore, Nov. 1 (AP).—Maryland collected $2,375,692 on its 2 per cent retail sales tax in September.

Walter E. Kennedy, chief of the sales tax division of the State Comptroller's office, pointed out this brought collections to $9,147,086 for the first 3 months of the fiscal year which started July 1.

The September collections were $178,634 above August.

Reds' Catholic War Excites O'Boyle Ire

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, archbishop of Washington, last night lashed out at Soviet Russia for its "three-fold anti-Catholic program" in Poland.

He declared the Soviet government has established a "rigid censorship" of the Catholic press there, is "exerting pressure" to abolish religious instruction in Polish schools, and is nationalizing Catholic institutions of charity.

Archbishop O'Boyle, speaking before more than 1000 persons at the first of a series of Knights of Columbus "anti-Communist" meetings, called upon Catholic Americans to keep their "glorious country strong, virile and great."

Same in Other Satellites

"What I say of Poland is true of Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Romania," he continued. "The same pattern is being followed." In Hungary, the archbishop said, the Soviet has "gone a step further—no outside relief is permitted."

He congratulated the Knights of Columbus for the "splendid job it is doing in the Washington area and particularly for the work it is doing in this forum."

Dr. Stefan T. Possony, professor of geopolitics at the Georgetown University graduate school, described the Stalinist theory of government and declared it had been responsible for the death "by purge" of at least 50 million persons.

Soviet Leaders "Criminals"

He said the Russian government is composed of individuals who, by the law of all nations, "must be considered criminals." The USSR, he added, "is not a dictatorship of the proletariat."

He said power is held by the Communist Party and the Secret Police, which, in turn, are tightly controlled by the 14 members of the Politburo.

"But if you look closer," he continued, "you find just one man—Stalin." Thus, Russia is a "one-man dictatorship, precisely as the fascist dictatorship was."

The "kinds of governments and the growth of 'isms'" was discussed by Dr. Miriam T. Rooney, associate professor of law at Catholic University. Dr. Rooney declared that the "isms" now current "are nothing but the fruit of fallacious thinking."

Hits Marx's "False Emphasis"

She said that the United States Government has always emphasized the value of "personality" rather than property in its regulations for the common good. Karl Marx, she asserted, did the opposite, with a resultant "false emphasis on material rather than spiritual values."

Another speaker, Washington Attorney Joseph A. Cantrel, spoke on the origin and object of government.

The meeting, attended by a near-capacity crowd, was held at Gonzaga auditorium, 17 I st. nw., and will be succeeded on the first Monday of each month through next June by related forums.

The Washington General Assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, is the sponsor of the "Town Hall" meetings, which are designed to "fight the menace of communism."

School Health Work Urged By Speaker

Inadequacy or absence of health programs in many schools and communities was deplored here last night by William L. Hughes, director of health and physical education at Temple University.

Addressing the third of four seminars sponsored by the Washington area office of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, Hughes said:

"The schools need more administrators and teachers, leaders who are crusaders for health and facilities that will provide healthful school living conditions. But what schools need most is the active support of the citizens of the community."

Chairman of the meeting in the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 900 Massachusetts ave. nw., was Dr. Hobart M. Corning, District school superintendent.

Dr. Niebuhr to Address ADA Meeting Thursday

Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, professor at the Union Theological Seminary, will address a meeting sponsored by the Washington chapter, Americans for Democratic Action, at 8:30 p. m. Thursday at Pierce Hall, 16th and Harvard sts. nw.

Dr. Niebuhr will report on the meeting of the World Council of Churches in Amsterdam last August, where he was an American delegate, and discuss the effect on the church of the present world situation.

McNamara Is Named Assistant U. S. Attorney

Martin J. McNamara, jr., 27, of 2515 13th st. nw., has been appointed an Assistant United States Attorney here, it was announced yesterday.

McNamara will be assigned to Municipal Court for the present. He is a native Washingtonian, married and has one child. His father has been an attorney here for 35 years.

McNamara, graduate of the Georgetown University law school, is continuing studies there for an advanced degree.

Pinball Machine Licensing Deferred

Licensing of pinball machines in the District, scheduled to begin yesterday, has been tabled for a month, License Superintendent Chatham T. Nottingham revealed last night.

The month's delay was made to permit completion of processing of more than 800 applications and checking by police of the character of applicants.

Mrs. Maynor Takes Chrysanthemum Show Honors

A District woman who exhibited winning chrysanthemums in 59 separate classes of the Woodridge Garden Club's "Mums" Show last night captured the coveted Stump and Walter Medal and three other club prizes.

In the show that included some 500 exhibits by 50 chrysanthemum enthusiasts, Mrs. H. C. Maynor, 2605 Brentwood rd. ne., received 65 points for 41 classes in the Special Blooms Division. She got 36 points for 5 classes in the Collection Division and 23 points in 13 classes under Quality Exhibits of baskets and vase arrangements.

Other winners at the show in the McKendree Methodist Church, Rhode Island ave. and South Dakota aves ne., were:

Mrs. J. J. Sazama, 6324 9th st. nw., who collected seven blue ribbons and one red ribbon to win 46 points in 15 classes of the Artistic Arrangement Division; Mrs. N. J. Hanson, 6135 Utah ave. sw., with an Indianapolis White chrysanthemum measuring nearly six inches in diameter, won the Best Exhibition Type Division; Mrs. Maynor with an arrangement of Pink Doty pompoms also won the Best Spray Type Division.

Mrs. H. A. Linger, 1725 Otis pl. ne., with an arrangement of pink chrysanthemums in a blue victorian vase received the Club's prize for the best flower arrangement in the show; H. J. Clay, 2603 Monroe st. ne., arranged a sweeping yellow chrysanthemum in a flat container and took the judges' eye for the best arrangement by men; Nancy Clark, 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Clark, 1721 Otis pl. ne., edged out her six-year-old sister, Janet, for first place in children's arrangement

8-Letter word for "Sensation"—DYNAFLOW

ONE thing that 1948 has demonstrated—when better drives are built Buick will build them.

Ever since we introduced Dynaflow,* back in the early months of the year, things have happened to prove how true a statement this is.

Newspapers gave it headlines. Magazines wrote whole articles. Crowds gathered at gas stations to look it over. Proud owners insisted that friends slip behind their wheel and get the thrill of this new way to transmit power.

"No gears ever shift at stop lights," they explained. "No gears ever shift to give you a jack-rabbit getaway. No gears ever shift in a full day's drive. You just sit there, feed gas, and steer."

Happy owners found they could stop halfway up a steep hill—wait for a safe chance to pass—then scoot smoothly on their way and sprint over the top just by gas-treadle pressure.

They found, when they parked, their cars would stay exactly where they left them.

They found they had out-of-this-world control on slippery pavements.

And they found that they got a "sweetness" to the whole feel of the car on straightaway cruising.

There's just one way for you to share this thrill through every mile of driving.

That is—place your order now. It will be for future delivery, of course. But when the happy day comes, you'll get your new Buick, with or without a trade-in.

Tune in HENRY J. TAYLOR, Mutual Network, Mondays and Fridays

U. S. Prelate to Head Orthodox Church

Istanbul, Turkey, Nov. 1 (AP).—The Holy Synod of Archbishops today elevated Archbishop Spyrou Athenagoras of New York to Patriarch of the Greek Orthodox Church.

Archbishop Athenagoras

Now Primate of the Orthodox Church in North and South America, the 62-year-old prelate will become spiritual leader of the world's 140,000,000 orthodox.

He succeeds Maximos V, who resigned as Patriarch October 18 because of ill health.

Athenagoras got 11 to the 17 votes in the synod. The other six votes were blank, reflecting a split between those favoring Athenagoras and those backing Joakim of Derkos, who withdrew in the final heated meeting.

Athenagoras was in New York when the balloting took place. He said he could not comment on his election until he received official notification.

He is the first American citizen elected to the ancient patriarchate, which dates back more than 1000 years. He became a United States citizen in 1938, seven years after he was made archbishop.

When he takes over his new post, he must become a citizen of Turkey.

Voteless D. C.

Most District residents probably realize that, even if the home-rule bill had been approved by the last Congress, they would not be voting today. The municipal elections that would have been authorized by that measure were carefully timed not to coincide with the Nation's quadrennial choice of a President. The reason is obvious. Municipal policy-makers ought to be chosen on their own merits and should not ride into office on the coattails of a popular presidential candidate. But the interest of District residents is no more confined to local issues than are those of any other citizens. The denial to them of a voice in the selection of the President who is supposed to represent all the people is a discrimination to which they will never be reconciled.

The irrationality of keeping residents of the Capital voteless is the more evident now that the city has outgrown its boundaries. Political observers estimate that 115,000 residents of Greater Washington, all of them living in nearby counties of Maryland and Virginia, will vote today. Many of them are employed in Washington. Thousands of them work for the Government. Their claims to fair treatment by the Government are precisely equal to those of several hundreds of thousands of citizens living on this side of the District line. Yet one group has a full voice in local, State and national elections. The other is denied even the privilege of casting rubber-stamp ballots that exists throughout the iron-curtain countries.

It is absurd to say that this critical defect in our system cannot be corrected. If Congress does not wish to let the District vote as a separate unit, it could doubtless pass an amendment to the Constitution permitting the District to choose its own Congressmen and vote with Maryland for Senators and presidential electors. What is lacking is not feasible means of correcting the defect, but the will to accommodate obsolete instruments to living principles. Even though they cannot speak through the ballot box, we hope District residents will never cease to protest this indefensible discrimination.

Higher Transit

Living costs for the people of this community who use Capital Transit Company facilities have been raised a bit higher by the fare increases that became effective Sunday. To be sure, higher fares entail hardship; but they are the unavoidable result of a general inflation of prices that has raised the operating costs of public utilities as well as all other businesses. It is estimated that the new scale of charges will yield revenue no more than sufficient to cover expenses and produce a modest return on the investment—considerably less than the 7½ per cent that the PUC had previously set as fair. Yet some protesting residents, whose own incomes are probably far above prewar levels and who are probably spending at least twice as much for food as they did a few years ago, are denouncing the Transit Company as a conscienceless exploiter of the citizenry and inveighing against the PUC as a pliant tool of regulated corporate interests.

Such distorted views result no doubt from ignorance of the basic principles of sound rate regulation. This is designed not only to protect users of regulated services from excessive charges but also to insure a fair deal for the sellers of such services. Owing to a widespread disposition to emphasize consumer protection at the expense of ownership rights, increases in the charges of regulated utilities, such as the Capital Transit Company, invariably bring accusations of favoritism on the part of regulatory agencies and of greed and inefficiency on the part of the regulated.

This uncritical attitude of mind is reflected in a statement of the acting chairman of the Washington Committee for Consumer Protection. The statement attacks the PUC for "unjustly and arbitrarily saddling the public with an unwarranted and extortionist fare increase." The committee is now considering "the possibility of developing a program for a Government-owned and operated transportation system which will meet the needs of the entire metropolitan area for adequate service at reasonable rates." The implication that public ownership would be more efficient and less expensive is, of course, not borne out by the record. Publicly owned utilities are no less immune to pressure from mounting operating costs than are privately owned utilities. The chief difference is that when publicly owned and operated utilities incur deficits, it is possible to cover them at the expense of taxpayers, whereas the privately owned company is faced by bankruptcy.

If a community is prepared to subsidize the patrons of publicly owned transit facilities, either by meeting deficits from tax funds or forgoing its right to a reasonable return on public funds invested in such facilities, people may ride in public conveyances for less than cost, but they pay in other ways for this dubious privilege, as the people of New York City, to cite an outstanding example, have good reason to know. Moreover, the cost of actual operation of publicly owned utilities is usually greater than it would be under private management because management's incentive to reduce operating costs is weakened, while opportunities for political graft are encouraged.

Cockpit Of Asia

Explanations of the loss of Manchuria to the Chinese Communists will be both legion and colored by prejudice. Of first importance, of course, is the fact that control of Manchuria was one of Soviet Russia's war aims in entering the war against Japan. And we catered to it. At Yalta, in February, 1945, President Roosevelt, subject to the concurrence of China, agreed to place the Soviet Union in a position in Manchuria substantially the same as that enjoyed by Czarist Russia before the Russo-Japanese war of 1904-05. This meant that, in addition to control of a naval base at Port Arthur for 30 years and a 30-year lease of half the port facilities at Dairen, Moscow acquired joint and equal ownership and control of the key Manchurian railways. In no other area does railroad control spell actual control as in Manchuria, so that China really lost Manchuria at Yalta.

At the same time these concessions—unnecessary, as we have repeatedly declared—were not made to Soviet Russia without a quid pro quo. We don't mean entry into the war against Japan to which Secretary (then General) Marshall attached such an inflated value. We mean the assurance that Moscow would support the reorganized National government of China under Chiang Kai-shek. This was put on paper in a solemn covenant with China on August 26, 1945. Therein the Russians pledged "moral and material" support and aid to the National government under Chiang Kai-shek, in return for China's validation of the Yalta concessions. No sooner had this agreement been signed than the Muscovites proceeded to treat it as "a scrap of paper." The Russians deindustrialized Manchuria with locust-like speed and thoroughness—clearly intending the region to be a food and raw materials source for Siberian Russia. They let the Chinese Communists take over Japanese arms after the surrender of Japan's army in China, and, far from giving Nanking "moral and material" aid, encouraged Nanking's enemies, i. e., the Communist regime at Yenan, to overrun Manchuria. Never can there have been a more immediate or a more complete violation of engagements in international intercourse. It is as inglorious and as cynical an episode as you can find in history.

Alas, the overturn in Manchuria has been assisted by the weakness of Chiang Kai-shek and the lack of support he has in China. The great mistake of Chiang's life is that he imagined he could run all China, including Manchuria. China, however, has never lent itself to central rule, not even in the palmiest days of the dynasties. In deference to his overweening ambition, the stubborn Chiang rushed the worst type of administrator to Northern China and Manchuria after the surrender, and with American participation. His carpet-baggers completely alienated the Manchurians, who are the descendants in the main of venturesome Chinese from the northern provinces of China proper. This lack of statesmanship deprived Chiang Kai-shek of the support of the countryside, a factor which, put alongside the better-led Communists (thriving on the American arms they freely picked up from the tatterdemalion troops under Chiang Kai-shek and the moral, if not material, support of the Russians), accounts for the abrupt and formal extrusion of Chiang Kai-shek from Manchuria.

The lesson is clear. It is foolish to throw good arms after bad as long as the present regime remains both unrepresentative and addicted to the politics of a will-o'-th'-wisp unification. When the new Administration takes over, there will have to be a revision of American policy toward China, one based upon realities instead of hopes—avoiding, on the one hand, the worse than useless, almost criminal, half-measures of the present Administration, and, on the other hand, the ambitious plans of American Sinophils, who would bankrupt this country in a wild goose chase to make a viable state out of a great and alien civilization which is in historical travail.

Squeeze On Peru

There is a wry twist to the ouster of President Bustamente of Peru by a Rightist military coup d'etat less than a month after his government had put down a similar threat from the Left. The attacks from both extremes are indicative of the moderate, middle-of-the-road administration that Bustamente attempted to give Peru. They also are indicative of the squeeze play against the middle, or liberal elements that is all too prevalent in Latin America. The forces of reaction—usually wealthy landowners in combination with the army—are working along with the Communists and other agencies of the far Left to bring about the eclipse of constitutional democracy.

The most recent chapter of constitutional democracy in Peru was a brief and somewhat frustrating experience. A lawyer and diplomat by profession, President Bustamente was persuaded to run in Peru's first really free election three years ago. His accession was made possible by support from the powerful Apra, or Peoples Party. Bustamente's difficulty was that he was too independent, and this independence brought upon his head the enmity of both extremes. Conservative senators thwarted him by refusing to allow the Congress to be organized; the Apristas criticised him for not moving fast enough in the matter of reform and for not giving what they considered adequate representation in the government. Hence Bustamente ruled virtually by decree from the start of his stormy tenure, and he revoked many of the civil liberties he had championed.

Paradoxically, the Rightist coup was an indirect result of defections on the Left. Last summer Bustamente revamped his cabinet to eliminate some of its military influence. Among those purged was Gen. Manuel Odria, the head of the new junta. But this did not mollify his Aprista critics, and early in October dissident Aprista members participated in a revolt. Following the suppression of this challenge, Bustamente outlawed the Aprista Party. But the Rightists justified their seizure of power on the ground that he did not deal firmly enough with the Apristas.

What is disconcerting about the reversion to revolution in Peru is that the army is again in the saddle. Every single cabinet post is filled by a military man. This is a step backward in the struggle for popular government in Latin America. If stable government is ever to evolve in countries such as Peru, then some means will have to be found to insulate the army from politics. The most obvious means is to broaden the base of the electorate so that the military does not hold the balance of power, and to speed up the social reforms which are desperately needed. Until this is done, the army will remain the tool of any group that can buy its favor—and the hemisphere arms program which our own military men are pushing would abet just the sort of thing that has happened in Peru.

Today's Election

As the presidential campaign closed last night, there seemed to be general agreement among independent observers on two points: First, that Governor Dewey will win by a substantial margin in today's balloting. Second, that the campaign has been duller and less significant than any similar contest in recent years. A majority of the voters appear to have swung over to the Republican camp without any enthusiasm for either its standard-bearer personally or for the campaign he has waged. If the general forecast of a Republican victory proves correct, the outcome will be due more to a cracking up of the Democratic Party than to Republican regeneration.

President Truman himself has waged a fighting campaign and indications are that he has improved his position since last July, some observers say considerably. Considering the fact that he was nominated reluctantly by his party and that even the Democratic National Convention was in the doldrums until the President lifted it up by his fighting acceptance speech, he has done well to capture 44.5 per cent of the straw votes. Many circumstances, entirely aside from his own mistakes, have worked against him. The New Deal Party that President Roosevelt built on the foundations of Democratic conservatism in the South and the radical big city machines of the North has finally gone to pieces. For many years that coalition was held together by the cement of a large independent vote in a few critical States and by the pressure of the war crisis. It took a skillful hand to manage such a loose aggregation of divergent political groups, and Mr. Truman has demonstrated far less skill in this respect than did his predecessor.

Probably more important as an explanation of the dissolution of the New Deal Party is the natural tendency of such movements to disintegrate once the purpose that called them into being has been served. Both the depression which the Roosevelt coalition was elected to deal with and the war emergency which caused the perpetuation of that regime have passed into history. Mr. Truman tried desperately to revive the issues of the thirties, but the indications are that a majority of the voters were little interested, knowing that most of them were irrelevant. New problems have arisen, and the efforts of the Democratic coalition to deal with them brought the splitting off of the Wallace faction on the left and the Thurmond faction on the right. It would be a miracle if the remaining central faction, deprived of any burning issue and wedded to a candidate of something less than towering stature, could win the presidential election in this fourth postwar year.

Fiscal Outlook

Tax collections for the first quarter of the current fiscal year, notwithstanding the recent cut in individual income taxes, were higher than in the same period last year. This was due to an increase of more than half a billion dollars from corporation income taxes which offset a decline in personal income taxes by 322 million dollars. In face of this unexpectedly good showing, the 1949 operating deficit of 1.5 billion dollars forecast by the President last August may have to be revised downward. However, there is no assurance that the peak point of the expanded defense and foreign aid program will be achieved in the present fiscal year. On the contrary, a rise is indicated. Nor does there seem much room for reductions in nondefense outlays. Moreover, the high level of tax revenues is being precariously maintained by steadily expanding incomes resulting from mounting inflation.

With the best of luck, therefore, we shall be fortunate if the 1949-50 budget can be kept in balance at present levels of taxation. There is little reason to hope for any substantial surpluses that could be used by the Treasury to draw down commercial bank reserves by retirement of Government securities. In short, tax reduction legislation has deprived the country of the most effective weapon of credit control that it had at a time when credit expansion is proceeding at a rate alarming to the comparatively impotent Federal Reserve officials, who are trying to curb credit inflation with inadequate weapons of control.

Arlington Schools

Harley Williams, in his letter of October 27, states that the Arlington referendum for the nonpartisan election in May is a "machine trick." Mr. Williams conveniently forgets that in the May 21, 1947 issue of the Virginia News he wrote as follows: "Acordingly, the school committee recommended to the (Civic) Federation at its May meeting that a letter be addressed to Dr. George H. Denny, chairman of the Virginia Education Commission, which had been created by the 1944 Assembly, urging that the commission recommend to the Assembly that the methods of selecting school boards be changed so as to require that part of the board members be elected at a special nonpartisan election in the spring of every second year with the candidates to be nominated by petition. The committee making this report consisted of W. G. Watt, chairman; T. M. McCabe, R. P. Dodge and Harley M. Williams." Was this a piece of "machine trickery?"

Last year, prior to the time that the leaders of the Citizens Committee in school improvement were bitten by the political bug, they too were advocating the nonpartisan, separate election of the school board and were quoting the National Educational Policies Commission as follows:

"The only sound policy is that which frees the members of the board of education from any allegiance except that which they owe to the whole public. Such freedom can best be assured through nomination by petition and election on a nonpartisan ballot at a special school election." Was this a "machine trick?"

I hope, for the sake of our schools, that the people of Arlington will cast their vote on this issue based solely on its merits.

Dorothy Kilmer

One would have to go far to find a weaker editorial than your "Precedent for Shooting" of October 29. Carrying your logic to the ultimate the taxpayers should make good for every drunk who shortens his life by continually frequenting liquor joints. Your doctrine that Government is in any degree or manner responsible for the acts of its agents who are not operating within the scope of their legitimate activities is indeed novel and puerilish.

Your editorial, "Precedent For Shooting", is timely and well put.

As far as the appeal for funds for Dorothy Kilmer goes, it is a fine idea to help the young woman—but what happens to her afterward when the money has all been spent?

Dorothy Kilmer has lots of spirit. She impresse me as the sort of person who would be far happier doing something to earn her own living and undoubtedly there are certain things she can do—even to knitting afghans.

But what of the policeman? Must he be let free of any responsibility in the matter? Will he allow everyone else to assume his strong moral obligation? Why does he not see to it personally that Miss Kilmer receives at least $10 a week from him for as long as he or she lives?

If more people who foolishly handle guns knew that they would spend the rest of their lives repairing damages, they might use a little more common sense to begin with.

Columbia Investigation

Marquis Child's article of October 23 calls attention to a "report" that the Committee on Un-American Activities is planning to investigate Columbia University. He does not say whose report or what report.

Proceeding upon this unsubstantiated "report," Mr. Childs proceeds to build up a case against the Committee on Un-American Activities to show that this would be "in accord with the pattern established by this headline-hunting body." In other words, Mr. Childs has consistently condemned the committee on the ground of allegedly smearing people, has already condemned this body even though there is no scintilla of evidence to show that it proposes to engage in the activity which he condemns.

Montgomery Charter

So many misstatements and unfounded implications are contained in Mrs. Jesse Nicholson's letter of October 28 about the Montgomery County charter that I feel obliged to reply.

1. "Duplication" will in no way arise. Mrs. Nicholson supplies neither fact nor fancy to support her curious charge.

2. The county council under the charter would be elected for four years. No change is proposed from the present term of four years.

3. The county manager would not and could not be a "virtual dictator." He would be hired and fired by the county council, the elected representatives of the people.

4. The national political parties are not involved in the home-rule charter issue. The charter folks did not have a "slate of office holders" in 1946. The charter committee has never endorsed any candidate or group of candidates. It soon will, however, endorse candidates for election January 6, and probably some will be Democratic and others Republican.

5. If Montgomery County were actually "one of the best governed counties in America," there would not be a vigorous, widespread, nonpartisan, 10-year-old movement to bring the county government back to the people.

Latin Threat To The Peace

In the past few days we have been reading about the controversy between Mr. Sumner Welles and some of the representatives of Venezuela, Costa Rica and Guatemala.

In all his articles, I have found no reference by Mr. Welles to the plight of the people of the Dominican Republic, Nicaragua and Honduras. The "slaves of the atomic era" who have their domicile in these countries, are being constantly subjected to the worst indignities any human being could suffer on the hands of tyrants.

Men arrested, subsequently informed they are free and upon leaving the premises, shot in the back. Mr. Welles knows about the so-called: "Ley de Fuga." The excuse given afterward is that they tried to escape. Somoza's older son could give Mr. Welles, better information or a more clear one on this "minor" problem.

Nevertheless, Mr. Welles does not want the American people to worry about such trivialities; our main interest lies in the defense of the Panama Canal.

It is not surprising to see Mr. Welles siding with little dictators. As Undersecretary of State, he liked to dictate orders to the governments of other nations. So implies Mr. Ruiz Guinazu, former Foreign Minister of Argentina, during the administration of President Castillo.

Tacho Somoza of Nicaragua now accuses other nations of attempting to overthrow his regime. Hs is accusing them of trying to do what he actually did himself, intervene with his forces, during the revolution of Costa Rica and thus give aid to the Communist forces in control of the government at the time. History tells us what strange bedfellows circumstances make of Fascists and Communists. Somoza's attitude now is quite interesting.

Mr. Welles depicts Somoza as the "guardian angel" who came to our rescue in the past war. This little Central American butcher, educated and trained by us and given the presidency of his country after the assassination of Sandino, would have been quite ungrateful had he not placed his "powerful" forces at the service of democracy.

Was it to save a democracy which he despises or simply to solidify his position? Had he done otherwise, where would he be today? Another President (Arias of Panama) tried to defy us, and, although he was duly elected to that office, his deposition came about soon after. Where was Mr. Welles when the case of Arnulfo Arias happened? I never heard of Mr. Welles demanding action because that was intervention.

Mr. Welles considers this Central American problem to devolve upon the obligation of these states to abide by a contractual obligation of nonintervention. I disagree as to what the issue really is.

If it were a contractual obligation of nonintervention, it carries with it an undue burden. A contractual obligation which destroys all human liberties is null and void. A contractual obligation that condones assassinations for political reasons, promotes deceit and inmorality, eliminates due process of law, cannot be observed or complied with, by civilized people.

Mr. Welles sums up with a solution that I am happy to quote. He says: "The proper solution is for those governments that believe themselves endangered by the policies and activities of their neighbors to appeal officially to the Organization of American States so that these threats to peace of the hemisphere may be impartially investigated and so that remedial action may be taken."

The issue concerns where is the threat of peace. It has escaped Mr. Welles. He claims it is in the threat of force on the part of Costa Rica, Guatemala and Venezuela. My contention is that this is a result of the conditions existing in Nicaragua, Honduras and the Dominican Republic, which in themselves are the basic threat to the peace of the hemisphere.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Before January 20

THE TRANSITION period between November 3 and January 20, coming at a time of world turmoil and uncertainty, has a great many people worried. Unless all the pollsters and prophets are confounded, an Administration repudiated by the voters will hold power for nearly three months.

Moreover, even if through some unprecedented political miracle President Truman should be reelected, a major adjustment would be necessary. During the battering, bruising weeks of the campaign, a widening split has grown up between the President and the men who execute Administration foreign policy.

It began with the unhappy proposal to send Chief Justice Vinson to Moscow to talk to Stalin. It has been widened by the President's stand in favor of giving the state of Israel boundaries greatly in excess of the Bernadotte Plan indorsed by Secretary of State Marshall.

The truth is that the President and the men immediately around him have come to look on the State Department as a kind of Trojan Horse. Their attitude, ironically enough, is something like that of Henry Wallace, who considers the department to be an arm of Wall Street.

To certain of his good friends Marshall has indicated that he intended to resign, regardless of the outcome of the election, shortly after November 2. That was before he left for Paris and the United Nations session. What has happened since would be likely to confirm his intention.

MARSHALL indicated that he hoped to see Undersecretary of State Robert Lovett step into the No. 1 position. Lovett has been Acting Secretary during long periods when Marshall has been out of the country. It is most unlikely, however, that Lovett would be moved up, since he is regarded with suspicion by the White House.

Marshall might well time his resignation to coincide with the end of his duties in Paris in connection with the U. N. President Truman would then have the opportunity to bridge the gap in policy by naming John Foster Dulles, Governor Dewey's chief adviser on foreign affairs, as Secretary of State.

Whether the President would do this, or whether Dulles would accept, is a question. Dewey has made it very clear that he himself intends to remain aloof from Washington in the transition period, shunning what he fears would be responsibility without power.

In another department—National Defense—there is also great concern over what may or may not happen in between Administrations. Difficult decisions are being taken with the realization that they may later be reversed, or they are being held in the if, as and when file.

Secretary of Defense James Forrestal is being told that he must stay on in a new Administration for at least the first months to insure continuity. Forrestal replies that new brains and new imagination are needed to solve the big problems ahead.

HE HAS HIS OWN formula for avoiding a break that would make it difficult for an incoming Administration to pick up the threads of rearmament, budget, unification. It is Forrestal's hope that almost immediately after the election Dewey will designate the three men who are to be Secretaries of the Army, Air and Navy.

These three men would then be invited to sit in with Secretaries Royal, Symington and Sullivan, who would retire in January. They would thus become familiar with work in progress and could come into office with knowledge and experience.

Few people, and this includes many members of Congress, realize that an incoming Administration cannot begin from scratch. For example, months of work have gone into preparing the budget of the armed services. Thick volumes are filled with detailed calculations on which appropriation requests are based.

If Dewey should ask Forrestal to stay on, which seems unlikely, he would say no. Forrestal would agree, however, to sit in with his successor and help him in every way possible.

At the start of the presidential campaign now concluded, thoughtful observers feared that in the heat of partisanship the bipartisan foreign policy would take a lacing. The world would get the mistaken idea of a deep division.

While the feuding on this score has been sharp, it has not gone to destructive lengths. The damage has been less than had been feared. Perhaps likewise in the transition period ahead, it will be possible to show the world that America can go through a political unpheaval and yet preserve the essentials of unity.

Where Credit Is Due

Above the storms of criticism and insinuations that are hurled at alleged deficiencies and waste in the Federal establishment, let me offer a shining example of rebuttal based on personal experience. One only has to visit the regional office dental clinic of the Veterans Administration here in Washington to be afforded the pleasant surprise of not only prompt service, but genuine courtesy and an atmosphere of personal friendliness.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

"Strong, Clear Policies"

GOVERNOR Dewey concluded his campaign with a promise that he would "wage the peace patiently and firmly, with intense labor and a new devotion" and that to do this he would enlist "Americans of the highest order of competence" and would "follow strong, clear policies." These words are, of course, generalities, and but for the fact that Mr. Dewey is an executive of great precision and concreteness, they might be overlooked or forgotten along with the rest of the campaign oratory.

LIPPMANN

It would be easy to do that because we have become so used to public men who say so much more than they mean, and promise much more than they can perform. But there are grounds for thinking that in the field of foreign policy, the extreme restraint and moderation of Mr. Dewey's campaign utterances have been due to the fact that not only does he grasp the enormous gravity of the situation but also how difficult, how delicate, how necessary—if we are to cope with it successfully—it is to make changes in the planning and in the administration of our policies.

A SPECIFIC case will illustrate an important, perhaps even the fundamental, difficulty which Mr. Dewey will have to overcome if he is to carry out his promise to "follow strong, clear policies." Just one month ago, in a letter of transmittal dated October 4, President Truman submitted a report to Congress on Assistance to Greece and Turkey. In it the President was made to point with pride to "the conspicuous success of this program in enabling the people of Greece to meet the military and economic crisis which confronted them." In the introduction to the report it says that "although internal security has not yet been fully restored, the Greek forces have been provided the means of carrying the guerilla campaign to a successful conclusion, and the outlook for the early reduction of this problem to police proportions is promising."

Hardly had this official estimate been published when Secretary Marshall was compelled to fly to Athens, was asked by the tottering Greek government for another 30,000 men, and out of Greece came the news that the number of Greeks now in arms against the government is actually larger than it was a year ago.

NOW WHO wrote the official estimate of October 4? Not the President, who was somewhere in the West campaigning, though he signed it. Not, we may assume, Mr. Marshall or Mr. Lovett, though they were responsible for advising the President to sign it. It is evident that this report must have been written and approved by the specialists on Greek affairs inside the State Department.

How then could the President, the Secretary and the Undersecretary of State be expected to follow a strong, clear policy in Greece when the information, and the estimates of what the information means, on which they depend was so wildly inaccurate and misleading? A policy cannot be better than the information on which it is based. It is impossible to form a sound policy and develop effective plans without accurate information correctly appraised. Yet, in the case of Greece, that is precisely what Mr. Marshall and Mr. Lovett have not had.

THE GREEK case is spectacular. But it is not exceptional. The predictions of the specialists as to what would happen in Palestine after partition and the end of the British mandate have in all their essentials been proved by events to be quite wrong. But these are not the most important instances where our policy has been confused and uncertain because the fundamental estimate on which it rested has been uncertain and unreliable.

The crucial case is Germany where for much more than a year, until very recently indeed, the specialists have made it their basic assumption that the Russians would maintain their military occupation indefinitely. To those who pleaded with them to put this country in the position of the liberator of Europe by demanding the evacuation of Germany, they replied that this was a pleasant idea but that the Russians would never leave. Thus they built a German policy on the notion that the occupying armies would never leave Germany. And now, faced with a strong probability that the Russians will steal our thunder, will propose, or even carry out a withdrawal, they are hurriedly improvising a new German policy, which may or may not be acceptable to the British and the French.

NO WONDER Mr. Dewey will be compelled to ask for what will be in effect a moratorium on major decisions until his own men can reexamine the situation.

There is no escaping it, inconvenient and even embarrassing though it be. For the realities of the world, as events are developing, will compel him to review the estimates and judgments on which much of our current policy is based. But in addition, the tremendous imbalance between our commitments, actual and prospective, on the one side,—our resources on the other—will make unavoidable a thorough review and reconsideration.

Poling Urges Churches Join In Peace Effort

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president of the World's Christian Endeavor Union, last night urged church members to transcend denominational differences in a united effort to preserve peace.

Speaking at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, Dr. Poling told more than 350 members of Washington churches that we are living in a "shrinking one-world" but that it is divided morally, politically and psychologically.

Our hope and strength, Dr. Poling said, is unity not in forms of worship, not in the separate denominations, but in a mobilization rally of all people under the teachings of Christ.

Dr. Poling, who recently returned from the World Council of Churches in Amsterdam, said the meeting there was a heroic beginning in an attempt to achieve unity and understanding among the peoples of the world.

We are justified in being calm in the present world situation, Dr. Poling said, if we are strong. Unity without the frontiers of race, color or religion, he said will give us that strength.

Leap From Plane Caught in Tree Fatal to Pilot

Baker, Ore., Nov. 1 (AP).—A plane cruising for elk herds crashed and fatally injured the pilot—but it wasn't the crash that caused his death. It was the jump to the ground.

Leon Bendixen, 38, Halfway, Ore., lay in a hospital with both legs broken and a broken arm today, and told how he and Pilot Arnold Ludiker waited helpless in the snow nearly 24 hours after a freak accident.

Their light plane struck a tall pine Saturday and caught in the branches, sixty feet above ground. Neither man was hurt.

Then the plane burst into flame, forcing them to jump. The leap broke Bendixen's legs and arms. Ludiker suffered internal injuries.

Unsighted by search parties, they lay in the snow until an elk hunter heard them call Sunday afternoon. He summoned help, but Ludiker died as he was being carried to the nearest town.

3 Puerto Ricans Battle to Last

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—The hotly-fought campaign to name Puerto Rico's first popularly-elected governor will continue until eight hours before the polls open Tuesday.

The three-way battle among supporters of Luis Munoz Marin, Francisco Susoni and Martin Travieso ended last night, but leaders of the island's six parties will make last-minute appeals to the voters until radio stations sign off at midnight tonight. Puerto Rico's 5930 polling places will open at 8 a. m. Tuesday.

The candidates and Gov. Jesus T. Pinero have appealed to voters for orderly behavior, and Col. Salvador Roig, chief of insular police, said today he "anticipates no incident which could interfere with normal voting."

Miss Sorel Wins Over Critical Group

By Paul Hume

Claudette Sorel is a pianist who was born to play that instrument and play it well.

The young protege of the late Olga Samaroff Stokowski played last night under the auspices of the Rybier Music Club, before an extremely critical audience. Playing in the Washington Club, she drew consistently high praise from her hearers, and rightly so.

Her tone is large—large enough that she should stop forcing it today, and never push it beyond its natural limits again. Her technique is one of those facile affairs which needs to pay small heed to problems that stump many pianists. But she ought to undergo a stringent discipline of permitting no wrong notes to creep in as they do a bit too frequently at present.

Because with her natural musicality, Claudette Sorel is destined to play the piano for many decades to come. She should be content with no less than the greatest in pianism.

Meanwhile, the Phillips Gallery was enjoying a recital of flute sonatas played by Betty Wood, assisted by Audrey Gage. Chamber writings of Handel, Loeillet and Gaubert displayed a fine, even tone and excellent style in an instrument whose limitations became negligible under Miss Wood's ministrations.

We seldom have the opportunity to enjoy the flute alone. It is a pleasure to realize some of the beauties of its literature. Miss Wood's playing was exemplary in every way. Audrey Gage, who accompanied her and added a group of solos, tends to pound the piano a bit more than politeness permits, but her style in phrasing was a model.

Disgruntled Partner Halves Boat, Is Fined

Miami, Fla., Nov. 1 (AP).—Dewey Frazier was fined $50 today for sawing a rowboat in half and taking home the part he owned.

His attorney told City Judge C. C. Curry the fine was paid under protest and would be appealed.

Frazier and George Ford owned the boat jointly until last Wednesday, when Frazier settled a dispute over ownership and maintenance by use of a saw.

"I've got a new boat now," Frazier told the court. "And a new fishing partner. George wasn't much of a fisherman, anyhow."

U.N.'s Three Years

By Sumner Welles

Cake And The Eating

THE CELEBRATION of the United Nations' third anniversary coincided with the submission to the world organization of the gravest issues it has so far faced. The fear and uncertainty that envelop the Paris Assembly have not unnaturally impeded confidence. They have prevented any popular appreciation of the value of the United Nations—of what it has done, and of what it is doing.

Yet can anyone believe that if it were not for the United Nations the basic cleavage of which the Berlin dispute is but a symptom would not long since have resulted in war rather than in a debate around the council table?

It was heartening to find tonic realism in the anniversary address of the Assembly's president, Dr. Herbert Evatt, the Australian Minister of External Affairs.

No member state has done more to strengthen the United Nations than Australia. Time and again her representatives have fought ably and courageously for the Charter's basic principles. Time and again Dr. Evatt or Colonel Hodgson has rallied the smaller countries when the major powers have followed the road of self-interest or expediency.

MANY AMERICANS seem to find a peculiar satisfaction in alleging that the United Nations is a "flop." They might well remember, as Dr. Evatt said, that in the last three years the United Nations has not only saved the independence of such countries as Iran, but has stopped, or drastically limited, fighting in Palestine, Indonesia and Kashmir. They should study its "record in relieving economic and social disaster and working toward the raising of living standards throughout the world" as a means of easing political tensions.

It is a pity they cannot be compelled to respond to Dr. Evatt's challenge: "We should try to imagine what might have happened if the United Nations had not existed, if there had been no organization to bring the great and small powers together regularly, and with the specific purpose of working together to find agreed solutions to international problems, according to the principles of a universally accepted Charter."

What have unfortunately been making the headlines this past month are chiefly the "incidents" in Berlin, Vishinsky's tirades and the twenty-seventh Soviet veto.

Little attention has been paid to the effective way in which the Security Council is now functioning; little heed has been given to the fact that the true significance of such recent developments as Stalin's outburst is the evidence they afford that Moscow has been compelled to recognize the power of the Assembly as the agency of world public opinion; and all too little emphasis has been laid upon the most important development of all, the growing authority of the smaller powers in the United Nations and their realization of their responsibility for the preservation of peace.

THERE is no need to quarrel with the major premise in the speeches delivered in Paris last week by Secretary Marshall and Mr. Dulles. The Soviet Union has unquestionably been primarily responsible for the frustration of the United Nations and for its failure to promote world recovery. The Charter was drafted with full knowledge that the cooperation of the major powers during the first postwar years would be essential to the success of the United Nations. The Kremlin has impeded such cooperation at every step.

But is the somewhat unctuous self-righteousness of the official viewpoint indicated in these American addresses wholly justified? Has the United States actually based its policy on the United Nations, as Washington so often asserts?

The other members of the United Nations are not likely to forget, even if we do, that the Truman Administration wholly ignored the United Nations when it asked the Congress to authorize help for Greece and Turkey, or that within the last 11 months this Government has adopted four different Palestine policies, all of them in flagrant disregard of the Assembly's partition resolution of November, 1947, for which the United States itself was responsible. They will certainly remember that after the Berlin controversy had been submitted to the United Nations the President wished to flout the authority which this Government had itself invoked by his plan for bilateral negotiations in Moscow.

Every such act has weakened the United Nations and jeopardized its chances for success.

AS DR. EVATT has pointed out, while the United Nations is greater than all the countries that comprise it, its success or failure rests solely on the governments that make it up.

The American people and their Government cannot have it both ways. The Truman Administration has made use of the United Nations when that seemed to serve its purposes. It has been willing to endanger its very survival when for purely selfish reasons that seemed to be more expedient.

So long as the United States continues to be the world's greatest power, and retains its present influence upon the other Western democracies, there can be no assurance that the United Nations will succeed unless our national policy consistently respects the spirit as well as the letter of the charter.

Hyattsville City Council Asks Review of Kindergarten Permit

Reconsideration of a permit for two Hyattsville kindergartens, granted by the Prince Georges County Commissioners last week, was asked last night by the City Council of Hyattsville.

A delegation of 15 persons, appeared before the council to protest operation of the kindergartens, both at Pinkney Memorial Church Parish Hall, 4102 Gallatin st., Hyattsville.

The delegation, led by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith, contended the children were noisy, disturbed the neighborhood, and that the concentration of so many small children creates a traffic hazard. Moreover, they said, the kindergartens depreciated the property values.

The council voted 5 to 0 to ask reconsideration by the commissioners. Two councilmen did not vote.

Wire to Bancroft Heralds Arrival Of First Born

New York, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—Mrs. Doris Furst, 24, red-haired ex-model from Houston, Tex., who staged a sitdown strike in a millionaire's home last July because he refused to marry her, gave birth to a daughter at Woman's Hospital today.

She promptly telegraphed wealthy manufacturer Joseph Bancroft:

"Your daughter arrived this afternoon at 2:27 p. m."

Charging that Bancroft lured her from Texas with promises of marriage and then abandoned her when she refused to have an abortion, Mrs. Furst moved into his Westchester country estate last July 29 and changed the locks so Bancroft couldn't get in. She stayed only a few days, moving out after Bancroft had the water and other utilities cut off.

Last May, she said, she signed a paper "in full settlement" of all paternity claims against Bancroft under which he agreed to pay her $1,500. After she returned to Texas, she said, she thought it over and decided to return and demand that Bancroft acknowledge his responsibility for the child.

Exploratory Operation Performed on Reuther

Durham, N. C., Nov. 1 (AP).—Dr. Barnes Woodhall, Duke Hospital neurosurgeon, performed an exploratory operation on Walter Reuther, president of the United Automobile Workers, CIO, here today and reported the union leader "doing very well."

The operation was to determine damage to the radial nerve in Reuther's right arm.

Dr. Woodhall treated the labor leader last April in Detroit following a shotgun blast by an assailant which severed the nerve.

Boy Who Killed Father Aiding Sister Absolved

Logan, Ia., Nov. 1 (AP).—A coroner's jury took only two minutes today to reach a verdict absolving 12-year-old Frankie Longman in the shotgun slaying of his father early Sunday.

The three-man jury held the boy "was fully justified" in shooting after Harry Longman, 57, repulsed the lad's efforts to intervene when the father choked the boy's sister, Wanita, 17.

Convicts Tunnel Way 35 Feet to Freedom

Pittsburgh, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—Three convicts escaped from Western Penitentiary today through a 35-foot tunnel they dug with a hoe and two shovels from the prison's boiler house.

Warden Stanley Ashe said it must have taken months for the trio to dig their way from the floor behind an electric panel board in the boiler house, under a walk and beyond the prison wall. The tunnel ended in a vacant lot.

U. S. Vessels Awaited

Buenos Aires, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—The U. S. Carrier Huntington and the destroyer Douglas H. Fox, are expected here tomorrow on a good-will visit. The Huntington is the flagship of Rear Adm. James H. Foskett, commander of the 12th Cruiser Division.

Three Capital Utilities Show Rising Incomes

By S. Oliver Goodman

With one exception, Washington's major public utilities share in the improved earnings trend for the first nine months this year as compared with the same period of 1947.

Washington Gas Light Co., latest to report, displayed net earnings of $877,003 for the first nine months against $618,198. Including subsidiaries in nearby Maryland and Virginia, the gas company's net for this period totaled $1,243,873 against $791,838 in the same 1947 period. September resulted in a seasonal deficit larger than last year because of amortization charges in connection with the changeover to natural gas.

Potomac Electric Power Co. showed net of $2,138,356 for the first nine months, against $2,251,385 in the same period last year. However, for the past two months earnings have turned up sharply because of a rate increase. September net of Pepco was $355,555, against $230,899 in the same month last year.

As reported previously, C. & P. Telephone Co. showed net of $2,909,503 in the first nine months, compared with $1,843,766 last year. The upturn resulted from a sharp increase in plant investment during the postwar period. Actually, the company's return on investment is only slightly higher. September net of C. & P. totaled $337,545, against $138,243 in the corresponding 1947 month.

Capital Transit Co. reported net of $273,280 for the first nine months, against $245,729. September operations resulted in a net loss of $36,406, against net income of $50,047 in September, 1947. The transit line this week is charging higher fares and is expected to reverse the downward trend of recent months caused mainly by a wage increase.

APPOINTMENT: Robert E. L. Johnson has been put in charge of Woodward & Lothrop's newly created position of branch store planning. Johnson previously was associated with branch operations of Strawbridge & Clothier, one of Philadelphia's largest department stores. He was general manager of a Strawbridge branch in Ardmore, Pa., when he left in 1942 to enter the Navy. He served for 3½ years, reaching the rank of lieutenant commander. After leaving the Navy, he was connected with the Good House Stores, Philadelphia, as executive vice president.

MARKET HOLIDAY: The Washington Stock Exchange, along with principal securities and commodity markets throughout the country, will suspend operations today in observance of Election Day. Local banks and building and loan associations, however, will remain open as usual.

ODD LOTS: Holders of participating policies of the Aetna Life Insurance Co. will get 11 per cent more dividends next year because of a declining mortality rate . . . Dumont station WABD of New York has initiated daytime television programs . . . Magazine 'Sales Management' yesterday predicted for November a 6.5 per cent gain in dollar volume of retail sales over a year ago after allowing for an extra shopping day . . . Steel operations this week are estimated at 98.9 per cent of capacity, unchanged from previous week . .

ENROLLMENT: Registered are 42 insurance men for the first class of the Life Underwriters Training Council. The course will start tomorrow on the third floor of the Acacia Mutual Building. If more than 50 enroll in all, a second class will be formed to handle the overflow, according to William J. McCausland, second vice president of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association, which is sponsoring the educational program.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Paul R. MacAlister, producer of the famous "Plan-a-Room" kit, has resigned from Montgomery Ward & Co. and returned to the private practice of interior decoration and industrial design . . . S. F. Boykin has been elected president of Coca-Cola International Corp. and will continue to serve also as treasurer . . . F. W. Lafrentz, 89, board chairman of the American Surety Group of insurance companies, was honored last night with a reception and dinner on his fifty-fifth anniversary with the group .

Court Dismisses Mrs. Jillson's Suit

Judge Matthew F. McGuire yesterday dismissed a $100,000 damage suit brought by Mrs. Kathryn S. Jillson, who charged she was wrongfully committed to the Gallinger Hospital psychiatric ward by Dr. Frank S. Caprio.

The judge ruled there was a lack of evidence to show that Dr. Caprio was negligent or malicious.

But Judge McGuire offered Mrs. Jillson "the most profound sympathy."

The commitment was made in 1945 while Mrs. Jillson, who is 38 years old and lives at 1841 R st. nw., was having domestic difficulties with her now-divorced husband, George J. Jillson, 39. After her commitment she was adjudged sane and obtained a divorce and the custody of her two children.

The judge stated further:

"The plaintiff may be the victim of a clever and diabolic scheme on the part of her husband to impair her health. But this defendant had no part of any plan nor did he go hand in glove with it.

"The record fails to show the doctor made any mistake nor can one be inferred from this record. There is not even the slightest piece of evidence indicating anything in the nature of an agreement between this defendant or her husband, but that the defendant was merely called in by him."

Dr. Caprio, who was represented by Attorney H. Mason Welch, testified that he diagnosed Mrs. Jillson as suffering from "manic depressive" psychosis.

It was Mrs. Jillson's contention that she was of sound mind and suffered "extreme embarrassment" at being subjected to the psychiatric ward where she was with 37 women "of all types" for 12 days.

Annual Conference Of Historic Group To Open Thursday

Preservation of the treasures of American history and architecture will be the theme of the second annual meeting of the National Council for Historic Sites and Buildings to be held Thursday and Friday in the auditorium of the National Gallery of Art.

More than 100 historians, archaeologists, architects, city planners, anthropologists, museum executives, geographers, archivists and antiquarians from throughout the United States are expected to attend.

A highlight of the program will be the report on the National Council's proposed subsidiary, the National Trust for Historic Preservation in the United States, for which a charter will be sought from the Eighty-first Congress, its objective being "preservation, maintenance and interpretation of sites and structures significant in American history and culture."

Variety Club Elects Jake Flax As Chief Barker

Jake Flax, branch manager for Republic Pictures, was elected chief barker of the Variety Club Tent No. 11 at a meeting in the Congressional Room of the Willard Hotel yesterday.

Other officers elected were: Wade Pearson, first assistant chief barker; Morton Gerber, second assistant chief barker; Sam Galanty, treasurer; Jerry Adams, property manager; Nathan D. Golden and Fred S. Kogod, delegates to the 1949 convention in San Francisco; J. E. Fontaine and Pearson, alternates.

School Program Talk

Prince Georges County Superintendent of Schools G. Gardner Shugart will discuss the Prince Georges school building program at a meeting of the Advisory Committee on Education at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the Bladensburg High School.

New York Cotton

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—Cotton futures were 15 to 40 cents higher when the market closed today.

The trading volume lagged, partly due to preelection influence. Some liquidation developed among traders who felt that the market would be under selling pressure until the peak crop movement has passed.

One on the Aisle—

Aussie Marvels At Movie Love

By Richard L. Coe

PEOPLE ABOUT TOWN: Ron Randell, the Australian Columbia is putting on the screens of the Nation, marvels at how American love-making differs, perforce, from the love-making one sees on the screen. . . . "Why," he bubbles, "there wouldn't be anything left of the country. . . . I do think, though," he contiues, "that the University of California is doing its part in proving that lovers don't behave in that I-must-tear-away-now style documented by the movies." . . . Randell admits, though, that it took a Stanford girl of 21 to inspire him into the only careful planning of his life. . . . He married her three weeks ago in Connecticut, on a Thursday, just as they'd planned a few weeks before. . . . When it came to the ceremony, Ron kept remembering the scene he did at the altar with Ginger Rogers in "It Had to Be You." . . . Then he had to say as his response to the minister: "I do, I do, I do!" . . . When it came to the real thing, he added another word to the rite: "YES! I do," cried Randell. . . . The guy, as you may have gauged, is a lot of fun, looks a bit like James Mason, talks a literate blue streak, dotes on America and his California wife (as Helene Randell, she's working on becoming an actress) and laughingly forgives this reporter for having printed that Randell's the guy who plays the picador in Rita Hayworth's "The Loves of Carmen." . . . Ackchully, as Ron might say, Randall plays Glenn Ford's brother officer in the picture's early scenes and a taller fellow with a much longer nose is Lucas, John Baragrey. . . . Two Randell movies are upcoming, "The Lone Wolf and His Lady" and "Make Believe Ballroom." . . . Ron began on the stages of Down Under then spent four years in the Aussie army, now has hopes to do a play, and if he's half as much fun on the stage as he is as a luncheon companion, he should have the success of those fellow countrymen he admires so much, Leon Errol and Cyril Ritchard.

BESS DAVIS SCHREINER, the Theater Guild's gal, now is also GW's . . . Miss Schreiner, besides her multiplying Guild operations (elsewhere.), is now an associate in the speech and drama department, teaching a course in theater management . . . The ebullient Bess this semester will be explaining the complex, confusing operations of press agentry, subscription founding, house managing, audience coddling and player pleasing . . . About these things Bess knows . . . A native Washingtonian, she went to the American Academy of Dramatic Art, returned to become a leader in D. C. theatricals, from Ram's Head days to her yearly Christmas pageant, "The Other Wise Man," at the Luther Memorial Church . . . So next time you see her, call her Prof.

EVALYN TYNER is pulling up her Aurora Hills stakes; she's finally landed a New York apartment . . . Mayhap she'll even sell her Virginia home before this week ides away the midnight hours . . . at her piano is completed on the Capitol stage . . . Evalyn's got her mind on television a lot these days and she seems like a natch for it . . . "Out of the saloons into the living rooms for me," sighs Miss Tyner, referring to those plush potteries wherein the Tyner tin-No disrespect to the Plaza, to be sure; just a longing for decent sleeping hours.

WALTER KERR, the lively C. U. prof, has started work on the drama group's next production, a new version of Aristophanes' "The Birds" and, across town, you'll find more Kerr in the mill . . . This is the Mount Vernon Players' production of his "Stardust," which originally was produced at C. U. as "Art and Prudence." . . . "Stardust" will play November 18 through December 4 at the Mount Vernon Little Theater, 900 Mass. ave.: "The Birds" will open a two-week run at C. U. December 3, which probably will make it hard for the Mount Vernon folks to lure the author over for a view of his earlier brainchild.

MARLENE DIETRICH'S not in town yet, but she'll be here Wednesday, the 17th, to sell Christmas gifts at the French Embassy . . . This is the annual bazaar of American Aid to France, proceeds of which go to the sick and needy of all Gaul . . . Marlene the Magnificent will be waiting on the public at various tables from 11 a. m. to 7 p. m., and I'll bet there won't be a stick or a shred left of anything by the time 7 o'clock rolls around.

RALPH DUBROWEN, of WINX, is in a tizzy about what a swell vehicle Edward Havill's novel, "Big Ember," would make for Ingrid Bergman. . . . This six-month-old novel tells of Scandinavian pioneers in settling Minnesota and Dubrowen is conducting a one-man campaign to cast Ingrid as Guri Erikson. . . . Hollywood papers, please note.

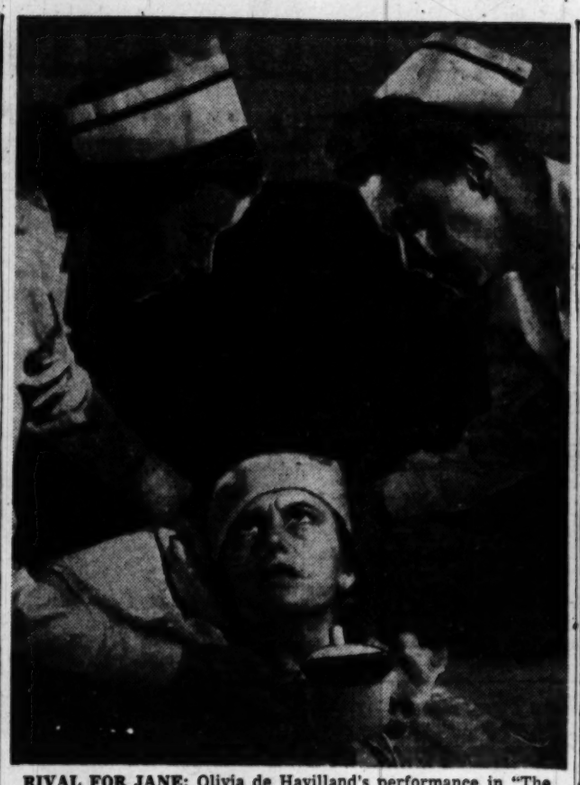
THE FOUNDRY THEATER Players are at the dress rhearsal stage of their "Barretts of Wimpole Street," which will be played Thursday and Friday nights at 8:30 in the auditorium of the Foundry Church, 16th and P sts. . . . Mrs. Eugene F. Frey is Elizabeth Barrett; Elliott Taylor, Robert Browning, and Marion Beasley, the lady's father, directed by Jane Plummer Rice.

THE GUNTON TEMPLE Players are repeating their "Night Must Fall' Thursday and Friday nights at the Lewis Memorial Methodist Church, 4th and Hamilton sts. nw. . . . Gordon Wallace plays the whistling Dan.

TWO MAURICES are today's luncheon guests, at geographically separated tables, alas . . . Maurice Evans will be over from "Man and Superman" in Baltimore for the Women's National Press Club luncheon in the Press Building, and up at the Statler, Maurice Wolf of Metro will be talking to the Washington Advertising Club on "Motion Pictures Are My Business."

Crime and Punishment

Waukesha, Wis. (U.P.).—The law of averages finally caught up with Melvin Jones. He was arrested after his car crashed into another. He was fined for drunken driving. He told the court he had been driving for 15 years without a license.



RIVAL FOR JANE: Olivia de Havilland's performance in "The Snake Pit" requires, as you can see, that she do one of her scenes in a hydro-therapy tub, but it's also brought her to the fore as an Academy Award contender in the film which will be seen here shortly. Closest to the Oscar so far, however, is Jane Wyman's performance in "Johnny Belinda," which today begins another downtown run at the Metropolitan NAVY DEPARTMENT—Navy's ragged football forces, battered into defeat in their last 11 games, are being re-formed this week for another suicide charge. They'll move against Michigan, no less, on Saturday at Ann Arbor.

POVICH

The might of Navy with its murderous schedule hasn't slackened the determination of the Academy's high braid to take on the game's giants. Navy's situation provokes the memory of the late Marshal Foch's declaration at the first Battle of the Marne in 1914 when he said: "My right is crushed, my left is in retreat, I am attacking with my center."

Navy qualifies for one superlative: It's the bravest team in the land. Its 1948 schedule is a punishing list that embraces all of the Nation's top teams except North Carolina. The Middies were racked up in succession by California, Cornell, Duke, Missouri, Penn and Notre Dame. Coming up is Michigan. After that, Columbia and Army.

Navy's first six opponents of the season have lost a total of three games thus far and the Middies now find themselves in the role of trial horse, the yardstick by which the greatness of other teams is measured.

The national champion could be the team that beats Navy worst. Unbeaten California can show a 21-7 win over the Middies. Notre Dame topped that with last Saturday's 41-7 thing. At ann Arbor, Michigan will really be trying to pour it on and reclaim from Notre Dame the No. 1 rating it lost to the Irish last weekend.

JUSTICE DEPARTMENT—The hottest article in college football now appears to be Charley Justice, North Carolina's 165-pound tailback who has grabbed up the mantle discarded by Johnny Lujack and Charley Trippi, now playing with the pros.

Before the season opened, Doak Walker of Southern Methodist was acclaimed as the man most likely to succeed to the prominence of Lujack and Trippi, but Justice has glittered even more sensationally. Maryland's Jim Tatum calls him "the most underrated and the best football player on any college team."

At Knoxville last weekend, Justice demonstrated against Tennessee that his talents are not confined to running the ball better than other backs and passing the ball better than most. He quick kicked one punt 65 yards and banged another 73.

He's the target of every team Carolina plays, but only once in three seasons have they called a time-out for injury to Justice. Coach Carl Snavely calls him "an old-fashioned single-wing tailback who can do everything."

Down in Carolina they rank Justice with Ace Parker of Duke, who also could do everything, and he has the poise of a pro. They booed him at Knoxville when he signaled for two fair catches with Tennessee's big, glint-eyed ends poised to sunder him. Tennessee was out to see Justice done, and done-in, something he himself had diagnosed.

Despite his mere 165 pounds, Justice is a line cracker, and perhaps the fastest starting back in the land. Not since Bill Omanski and George McAfee were in their prime with the Bears has a player been blessed with as rapid a getaway.

DEPARTMENT OF AIR—Sammy Baugh was never more proficient than last weekend when he angled, floated and buzzed those 11 pass completions into the hands of Redskin teammates in 24 pitches against Boston. At 34, if he's slowing up, it is visible neither to the customers nor the opposition.

It was no coincidence that Dick Todd caught five of Baugh's passes. They know each other's habits from 10 years on the Redskins together—the little fakes and the special talents of each. It must have been revealing, too, to Redskin coaches who for too many seasons were deluded by the idea that Todd's chief value was on defense.

Baugh gets another favorite target in the acquisition of Steve Bagarus by the Redskins. The Redskins were never so popular as when Bagarus was delighting the fans with his fancy snatches of Baugh's pitches and whirlwind break-aways.

Bagarus comes back to the Redskins with a leg that was broken last year in the Packers' game against the Rams. He was out for the rest of the season, and this year it was reported from the Coast that he was too slow to make the Rams. It's no surprise, though, that the Redskins signed him. There were 7000 empty seats in the Stadium Sunday. Bagarus is a magnetic name for Washington fans. He'll help the gate, if he doesn't help the team.

Irish Lead Michigan by Three Votes

By Jack Hand

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—Notre Dame was elected No. 1 football team in the Nation today in the weekly Associated Press poll of sports writers, barely nosing out Michigan by a margin of three votes.

Although the Irish drew only 56 of the 208 first-place ballots to 68 for Michigan, they moved into first place with the help of second and third-place votes.

The points, figures on the basis of 10 for the first, 9 for the second and so on down to 1 for the tenth, gave Notre Dame 1762 to 1759 for Michigan. Last week the Wolverines were first by a comfortable 275-point margin.

North Carolin's powerful Tar Heels, who were first on 36 ballots, polled 1458 points to easily retain third place. Army, rapidly gaining support, advanced a peg to fourth place, displacing California, which finished fifth.

Georgia Tech and Pennsylvania clung to last week's positons, respectively, sixth and seventh, but Southern Methodist hopped from eleventh to eighth in the outstanding gain of the week. The Mustangs were followed by Missouri and Northwestern in that order, with Nevada, last week's tenth-place team, sliding into eleventh position.

There were few changes in the top 20. Baylor, unbeaten but once tied, dropped out and Wake Forest moved in.

Notre Dame's smashing 41-7 romp over nonwinning Navy appeared to impress the writers much more than Michigan's 28-20 close call with Illinois. North Carolina lost only a little of its first place strength on the 14-7 win over Tennessee and Army drew new backers by rolling over Virginia Tech, 49-7.

Nevada and Clemson were the only two members of the nine-team unbeaten, untied contingent that were not ranked in the top 10. Clemson, first on six ballots, was twelfth.

Saturday's schedule does not pair any of the first 10 clubs but it includes an important clash of seventh-place Penn and fourteenth-place Penn State at Philadelphia.

Notre Dame meets Indiana while Michigan gets a chance to see what it can do against Navy.

How They Rank:

The standings of the teams, points figured on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis (first place votes in parentheses):

1. Notre Dame (56)	1762
2. Michigan (68)	1759
3. North Carolina (36)	1458
4. Army (5)	1249
5. California (16)	1132
6. Georgia Tech (7)	1109
7. Pennsylvania	575
8. Southern Methodist (1)	432
9. Missouri (4)	382
10. Northwestern	371

11, Nevada (6), 300; 12, Clemson (6), 189; 13, Georgia, 153; 14, Penn State (1), 136; 15, Oklahoma (2), 81; 16, Oregon, 59; 17, Michigan State, 53; 18, Wake Forest, 47; 19, Minnesota, 46; 20, Tulane, 34.

Others receiving votes were: Baylor, 24; Mississippi, 16; Vanderbilt (1), 13; Cornell, 9; Dartmouth, 8; Duke and Kansas, each 7; Appalachian State, 6; Illinois and Tennessee, each 5; Iowa, 4; Princeton, 3; Maryland and William and Mary, each 2, and North Carolina State, 1.

WALKS RIGHT IN— Steve Bagarus, dancing darling of Redskin fans two years ago, walks into the Redskin office yesterday. He signed as a free agent to play the remainder of this season with the 'Skins

Leg, Once Broken, Now OK, He Says

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

The darling of Washington Redskin fans in 1945 and 1946, Steve (Buggsy) Bagarus, came "home" yesterday.

Slim, personable Steve, the pass-catching and running ace who wore big "OO" on his jersey, came back more quietly than he left. There was an all-is-forgiven atmosphere around the team he left in 1946 after a little name-calling all around.

He flew in from his home at La Jolla, Calif., motored to the Redskin office and 10 minutes later signed a contract to play out the 1948 season with Washington.

No salary figures were available, as usual, but the suspicion was that Buggsy will get well under $1000 for each of the last six Redskin games and perhaps a bonus for an outstanding performance. An option on his 1949 services was contained in the contract he finally was given yesterday, after first asking to be taken back while the 'Skins were on the West Coast for training.

It was the most startling, and yet the most obvious, move the Redskins could make. They sorely need his kind of breakaway running. But the first question asked the six foot, 175-pounder, was the key to his return to favoritism among Redskins followers.

"How's the leg?" Steve was asked.

"In perfect shape," was his answer.

Broke It in 1947

Reference was to the leg Steve had broken in his second game of the 1947 season, while he performed with the Los Angeles Rams. For 17 weeks the break, six inches above his left knee, was in a cast. He sat out the remainder of '47, worked out with the Rams in spring training this season, but was unable to catch on.

Los Angeles finally asked waivers on him; nobody accepted, and yesterday Steve got his old Redskin job back as a free agent.

"Bagarus will be with us the rest of the season," said Owner George Marshall. "We're giving him a chance for a comeback. All he's got to do is play football and behave himself."

During his 2-year stay with the Tribe, Bagarus played a lot of good football but had a horrible time keeping out of trouble with the 'Skins bosses.

In 1945 he set a local record by catching 35 passes, good for 623 yards and six touchdowns. The next year he grabbed 31 passes for 438 yards, and led his team in pass interceptions (four), kickoff returns (13 for 332 yards), and punt returns (18 for 192 yards).

But his off-the-field activities were what led to his departure for Los Angeles in a trade for Backs Tom Farmer and Ralph Ruthstrom.

Steve was what his mates called a "loner." He did a lot of solitary thinking and came up with various ideas Owner Marshall didn't like.

He asked for raises in pay too often. He kicked because he wasn't used in enough plays in a game. He talked too forthrightly to sportswriters. He had a picture taken in a bar in violation of Redskin rules. He disappeared from the club's hotel. His name was linked romantically with the wife of another former Redskin, Frank Filchock, and he married her after her divorce.

There were other incidents, too, that kept Buggsy in hot water.

But the lean halfback, 29 years old but in condition from two

Doctor Says Steve Can Play Sunday

Dr. Robert E. Moran, Redskin team physician, last night made it official that newly signed Steve Bagarus is in physical condition to play against the Yankees in Boston Sunday. He made a thorough examination of the leg Steve broke early in the 1947 campaign and called it "sound."

Pick-The-Winners Lineup This Week

PENNSYLVANIA VS. PENN STATE in what probably is the East's top game Saturday.

This game is among the tough ones in this week's Pick-The-Winners contest sponsored by The Washington Post.

This contest is designed to reward those who know their teams well, and study the accounts of games week by week.

The winner of each weekly contest will receive two (2) tickets to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia, November 27, and an all-expenses paid trip to the big game for two persons.

The person submitting the most accurate entry each week also will receive four (4) tickets to a major college or professional game in this area. This game will be selected by The Washington Post.

The contest each week will include 20 of the major college games. Each contestant will select the winner (or tie) of each of these games.

A twenty-first (21st) game is listed on which the "Probable Score" will be given by each contestant.

List Will Not Be Carried Election Day

The list of games in this week's Pick-The-Winners football contest will be carried Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, skipping Wednesday because of the election.

CONTEST RULES

All entries must be in the hands of the FOOTBALL CONTEST EDITOR not later than 4 p. m. Friday of each week. Entries should be left at the Service Counter in the lobby of The Washington Post Building, 1337 E St. N. W.

The person submitting the most accurate entry each week shall be declared the winner. In case of ties, all persons sharing in the tie will receive duplicate awards.

The decisions of the judges shall be final.

Entries submitted must be legible, with the selections listed in the order they are announced in The Washington Post.

Entries may be handwritten or typewritten. However, carbon copies and mimeographed copies or copies made by any other duplicating machine will NOT be accepted. You may submit as many entries as you wish.

No employe of The Washington Post or member of his immediate family is eligible to participate in this contest.

No person will be eligible to win the weekly contest twice.

Bassler's 68 Stroke Off Pace In North-South

Pinehurst, N. C., Nov. 1 (AP).—Dick Mayer of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Charles T. Bassler, pro at the Rolling Road Country Club in Catonsville, Md., disrupted the calm of the qualifying round for the North and South Open golf tournament today by blasting par to pieces.

Mayer finished the 18-hole qualifying test with a score of 32-35—67, five under par and Bassler was a stroke behind with 33-35—68.

Another stroke back at 69 was John O'Donnell, pro at the commissioned officers club at Norfolk, Va.

Joe Taylor of Bristol, Tenn., had an even 70 for fourth place. George Stuhler of Livingston, N. J., and Leo Walper assistant pro at the Congressional Country Club in Washington, D. C., came in with one-under 71's and five others matched par 72.

Among them was Al Houghton, veteran Washington, D. C., pro at the Prince Georges Country Club, who finished early, and held a temporary lead until Mayer came in.

Charlie Price, Kenwood Country Club, 75, and Harry Griesmer, pro at the Bethesda Country Club, 77, were the other Washingtonians who qualified.

Scores of 77 or better were good enough to qualify for the first round of the tournament proper tomorrow. In all, 54 players made that grade and the 56 who were exempted will complete the field.

Scores of Washington area golfers:

Gibson Wins On Foul, Moore Disqualified

Archie Moore, St. Louis light heavyweight, was disqualified in the fourth round of his scheduled 10-rounder with Lloyd Gibson of Cincinnati last night and Gibson was declared the winner on a foul.

The end came 20 seconds before the fourth round was completed with Gibson flat on his face in the center of the ring.

Moore, a 3-1 favorite, had been penalized in the second and third rounds by Referee Charlie Reynolds for low blows.

Gibson was carried to his corner by his handlers where he was examined by Dr. Leon Gordon, boxing commission physician. He was granted the customary five-minute rest, but was unable to continue.

He received a bruised right groin and was suffering from nausea in his dressing room after the short fight.

Moore, who weighed 173½ against 172½ for Gibson, was leading all the way when he was disqualified.

Moore receives an automatic 30-day suspension in all NBA States for his disqualification.

A crowd of only 801 paid $1540 to see the Turner's Arena card.

Four round preliminary results: Dick Barber, Washington, 162, defeated Nay Palmer, Washington, 164; Bradley Jim, Baltimore, 158, defeated George Brooks, Washington, 155; Ben Harrison, Washington, 199, scored TKO in third over Lindsay Womble, Washington, 191; and Spike Graham, Washington, 145, and Tommy Butler, 147 Washington, drew.

In a five-rounder, Holly Mims, 158, Washington, outpointed Walter Roane, 155, Richmond, Va.

Indianapolis Wins BAA Opener

Indianapolis, Nov. 1.—The Indianapolis Jets, newcomers to the Basketball Association of America, opened their season here tonight by defeating the St. Louis Bombers, 84-80.

Sonny Boy West Whips Jim Carter

Baltimore, Nov. 1 (AP). — Sonny Boy West, 132, of Washington, won a unanimous verdict from Jimmy Carter, 134, of New York tonight in the ten-round main event on the fight card at the Coliseum.

West's unorthodox, buzz-saw style seemed to puzzle Carter, who was on the defensive most of the way. It was West's 19th victory in 21 Baltimore starts.

Rose Bowl Group Seeks Rule Change So Michigan Can Play

Pasadena, Calif., Nov. 1 (AP).—The Tournament of Roses Association unofficially started an effort today to bring the No. 1 football team of the Midwest's Big Nine Conference into the Rose Bowl New Year's Day against the Pacific Coast Conference champion.

That probably would be Michigan versus California.

Under the existing Big Nine-Coast Conference agreement, a Big Nine team may not appear in the Rose Bowl oftener than once in three years. Thus Michigan, which swamped USC, 49-0, last Year's Day, cannot return to the Rose Bowl next January 1 even though the Wolverines come through their Big Nine season undefeated.

Lathrop K. Leishman, chairman of the association's football committee, said he understood the rule change would be sought, but hadn't been officially informed yet that his own executive committee wants him to take up the matter with the Coast Conference.

Harold C. Schaffer, president of the association and chairman of the executive committee, is out of town.

"When Schaffer gets back I assume he will communicate with me," Leishman said. "If that's what the association wants I will go to Dean Stanley Freeborn of the University of California (president of the Coast Conference) and to Bill Hunter of USC (chairman of the PCC's Rose Bowl committee) to see if we can get some rule changes made.

"It isn't just Michigan, but personally I feel, and I know others do, that we must have the best in the Big Nine here each year for the Rose Bowl.

Terps Delight in Spoiling Homecoming Parties of Foes

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Maryland has spoiled the event for every team it has met on homecoming day this year . . . The Terps ruined the afternoon for old grads of Delaware, George Washington and Miami and are favored to do the same at Columbia Saturday when they meet South Carolina in the Gamecock homecoming . . . Ironically, Maryland's lone defeat, 13-12, by Duke, happened on Maryland's homecoming . . . Navy Coach George Sauer calls the 1948 Notre Dame eleven "the best college team I have ever seen". And Sauer saw plenty of the Irish Saturday as they walloped his Middies, 41-7 . . .

While other Virginia alumni were overcome with shock when they learned of the Cavaliers' 55-14 rout at the hands of Princeton, Dick Turner was able to restrain himself . . . Turner, Virginia publicity man, still remembers the 72-0 walloping Ohio State dealt Virginia years ago. He played on that Virginia team . . . In addition to being homecoming for the Gamecocks, Saturday's Maryland-South Carolina game will also be "homecoming" for Jim Tatum . . . He launched his Maryland coaching career last year in Columbia as the Terps squeezed by South Carolina, 19-13. . . .

It may be a source of satisfaction to Jim Tatum, who wants bigger crowds to attract bigger games, to know that his Terrapins have played before more people in the last two weeks than the Redskins . . . Only 13,000 saw the Skins play the Packers in Milwaukee while over 16,000 watched the Terps and G. W. here the day before . . . Friday night, 35,000 sat in on the Maryland-Miami tussle in the Orange Bowl, 6000 more than the 'Skins-Boston game attracted at Griffith Stadium Sunday . . . Hooks Mylin, who brings his NYU team to town Friday for a go against Georgetown at the stadium, was

Homecoming For 3 GW Grid Coaches

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S Colonials visit The Citadel Saturday and they plan to make it a happy homecoming for three members of their coaching high command.

In 1940-42, Head Coach Bo Rowland and Line Coach Bo Sherman guided the Charleston, S. C., team to 13 victories in 24 games.

Their meal ticket was a flashy halfback named Andy Victor, whose touchdown and two conversions led Citadel to a 14-2 win over G. W. in 1942. Victor is now at G. W. as backfield coach.

The three former Bulldogs make no secret of their special desire to whip Citadel. Rowland, himself, scouted Citadel as it lost its opener to Presbyterian, 7-0.

"The folks at Citadel treated me swell," says Rowland, "but I guess every coach likes to knock off his former employers. My only fear is that Citadel will be up for us."

Coaches Rowland and Sherman and Halfback Victor parted company during the war, but rejoined forces at Oklahoma City University in 1946 for a highly successful season. Victor led the Nation in scoring with 127 points, including 40 points after touchdown.

Victor became backfield coach at O. C. U. under Rowland in '47, and came to G. W. this year in the same capacity with the two Bo's.

After losing to Presbyterian, Citadel beat Newberry, 14-0, and Erskine, 19-0, and lost to Davidson, 14-6, and Furman, 10-0.

Irish Will Play Michigan Anytime, Krause Says

Chicago, Nov. 1 (AP).—Notre Dame still is ready to play Michigan any time, any place.

The point was made today at the Herald-American Quarterback Club meeting at which Notre Dame's (Moose) Krause grappled with questions from the floor.

Krause, assistant Irish athletic director, was asked "why can't Notre Dame and Michigan play each other at Soldier Field?"

Krause replied:

"As Coach Frank Leahy said before this same meeting last year, Notre Dame is willing to meet Michigan any Saturday, Sunday or Monday afternoon."

(Athletic Director Fritz Crisler of Michigan last week said that Michigan's schedule commitments would not permit a game with Notre Dame.)

My Celeste Second, One Length Back

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 1.—Showing a liking for the Old Hilltop track, as did her sire, Mrs. Albert Sabath's Alsab's Day came through with a stretch punch today that won the $15,000 added Marguerite before a crowd of 12,000.

The daughter Alsab, the rags-to-riches in 1942 winner of the Preakness, turned back seven rivals in the fourth running of the test for 2-year-old fillies.

Alsab's Day, ridden by Jockey R. J. Martin of Baltimore, came into the wire a length in advance of Miss Constance Morabito's My Celeste, a rank outsider and an additional length and a half in front of C. V. Whitney's pace setting Silver Crest.

Winner Pays $16.20

While backers of Alsab's Day rushed to the payoff windows to collect at the rate of $16.20 for $2, Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt was in the winner's circle to present a trophy to Albert Sabath, husband of the owner—breeders of the Marguerite winner.

Jockey Bobby Martin rode Alsab's Day for the first time and his handling of the big bay filly could not be faulted.

He had Alsab's Day away with the leaders, but dropped back to third position to save ground on the first elbow. He moved his anxious mount up to second place in the back stretch and then asked the filly for her best speed at the head of the stretch.

Alsab's Day's time of 1:45 for the mile and a sixteenth was not fast compared to the track record of 1:42 3/5 established by Capot on Saturday.

Not So Good At Laurel

Alsab's Day had won a stake at Arlington Park in July, but her three races over the Laurel Track were nothing to write home about. She finished only fifth, beaten 18 lengths, in the Selima Stakes, won by Foxcatcher Farm's Gaffery.

The Chicago-owned lass is one of the leading money winning juvenile fillies of the season. However, she earned $27,640 in today's race and increased her total gleanings to $66,970.

Greentree Stable's Boomdeay the 6-to-5 choice in the Marguerite, finished fourth.

The third track record to fall here in two racing days was that for the oft-run 6 furlongs. Henry H. Hecht's The Pincher proved equal to the task and turned in time of 1:10 1/5, thereby knocking two fifths of a second off the mark shared by Joe Ray and Pony Ballet.

Local Horses In N. Y. Show

By Harry De Mawby, Jr.

The 60th National Horse Show, classic event of the equine world, which opens today at New York's Madison Square Garden, has attracted the largest number of horses since the war.

Horsemen from 17 States, Mexico, Canada and France have entered 444 horses for the eight days and nights of competition.

A total of 34 horses have been entered from Maryland and Virginia, including six from the immediate Washington area.

Dr. and Mrs. Alvin I. Kay's famous Portmaker, National champion of 1946 and runner-up in 1947, will head the list of "Southern" entries with strong support from Mrs. E. Cooper (Liz Whitney) Person's Safety Call, Mr. and Mrs. Amory Lawrence's Highlander, Mrs. Page Jenning's Icecapade, George Di Paula's Post Meridian and Mrs. Raymond Barbin's Herodite, all many time hunter championship winners.

Accompanying Portmaker, from the stables of Washington area owners, will be Fred J. Hughes, jr.'s, Black Caddy, Robert C. Lee's Bonne Fille, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Hallman's Gray Lark, and Cheerie McKee's San Satin, all competing for open-j

The Federal Diary

Fair Employment Program of CEA Protects Women

G-GIRLS: It's a violation to discriminate against them at the Council of Economic Advisers.

This White House agency has issued an order which goes beyond the President's fair employment policy, which prohibits Federal agencies from discriminating against employes because of race, color, religion, or national origin. It has added sex to the outlawed list.

Oddy enough, the Fair Employment Board has received a number of inquiries from older women who charge their offices are trying to get rid of them. They want the board to take their cases, but it has no authority to do so. Other agencies will watch the CEA experiment.

STORY: Several Federal employes yesterday were discussing the election campaign and how it had failed to arouse their enthusiasm for any candidate. One of them spoke up with this explanation:

"The candidates," he began, "aren't running against one another. The way they conducted their campaigns, Truman was running against Herbert Hoover and the Congress; Dewey was running against Joe Stalin and the bureaucrats; Wallace was running against Wall Street and big business, and Thurmond was running against the Damn Yankees and the Negroes."

EXAM: Many people who took the general office machine examination here Saturday are squawking—and apparently with some justice. Several agencies are planning official protests to the Civil Service Commission over the inconsistent manner in which the exam was conducted.

Before one group, the instructor is reported to have told the applicants: "I'm thoroughly confused over the instructions which were given me by Civil Service. I'll read them aloud to see if anyone here can make any sense out of them."

Those who took the test have told me that different times were allowed on separate parts of the exam by different instructors who were unable to figure out the complex directions.

This is certainly no way to treat people who are competing for permanent status. Civil Service should go into the matter in detail before it closes its eyes to the charges.

FAIR EMPLOYMENT: The American Council on Human Rights yesterday called for the resignation of Miss Annabel Matthews, who is a member of Civil Service's new Fair Employment Board. Elmer W. Henderson, council director, said:

"Miss Matthews' effectiveness as a board member is impaired by her active opposition to the admission of Mary Church Terrell into the Washington Chapter of the American Association of University Women solely because Mrs. Terrell is a Negro."

The opposition to Miss Matthews was first noted in this column. Other similar protests have been made to the White House. Opposition also has sprung up against several other board members.

TEST: Civil Service has an exam open for draftsmen. The jobs pay from $2152 to $3727 a year . . . BS: At the Bureau of Standards, William S. Bussey has been appointed assistant chief of the Office of Weights and Measures, and Dr. Robert Simha of the Division of Organic and Fibrous Materials, is in Europe to make studies in his scientific field . . . FARMS: The excellent Barter Theater of Virginia will present "Papa Is All" at Arlington Farms on November 24. Federal workers may buy tickets for 90 cents each at either Lubar's or Mrs. Stabler's Ticket Mart.

TIME OFF: On this election day, most Federal workers who vote in either nearby Maryland or Virginia will be given two hours off to cast their ballots. The entire day will be given those who must travel a long distance to vote.

Quiz: Who is the highest paid employe in the Treasury Department? This question would trip up the quiz experts. The obvious answer, of course, is the Secretary of the Treasury who is paid $15,000.

But that isn't the correct answer. Under the screwball Federal pay system, a chief bank examiner in the office of the Comptroller of the Currency is paid $18,000—a salary that makes him rank right below the justices of the Supreme Court.

RFC: Eight lawyers were among the latest group of longtime employes of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation who were laid off over the weekend. At the same time, a new batch of lay-off notices went out to employes with 15, 20, and 25 years of Federal service—and who had reason to believe their jobs were permanent. The RFC staff is being whittled down to about a third of its wartime high.

SOCIAL SECURITY: A protest has been made to Governor Dewey of any plan he might have in mind for placing Federal workers under the Social Security system. It was made by Leo E. George, president of the AFL's National Federation of Post Office Clerks, who asked the GOP presidential candidate to clarify his views concerning Federal workers and social security.

In a telegram to the Governor, George said that Federal workers would "vigorously oppose" any move to place them under Social Security. He urged Dewey to champion a more liberal Civil Service retirement system.

Execution Stays Hit by Holtzoff as Injury to Justice

Judge Advocates Prompter Action by Pardon Attorney as 5 Receive Delays

Judge Alexander Holtzoff yesterday termed the prevalent extended delays in the execution of condemned prisoners here a "reproach to the orderly administration of justice."

Five out of six of apparently doomed men have been given postponements of the death penalty by District Court judges. The sixth is due to appear this morning for postponement of sentence.

Judge Holtzoff declared that part of the delay is necessary since it gives the criminal every possible chance under the law. But the rest could be eliminated, he said, if the Justice Department pardon attorney would receive and act promptly on petitions for executive clemency.

Grants Only Three Weeks

Obviously upset about the situation, Judge Holtzoff refused to grant more than a three-week delay to two murderers, Shirley Harris, 23, and Herbert H. Hall, 19.

They were convicted in May, 1947, of first-degree murder, and were last sentenced to die November 5. The postponement was granted only until November 26.

Although the United States Supreme Court has refused to review the case, the men have as yet not sent in their applications for executive clemency.

Judge Holtzoff suggested that the petitions for clemency be received after the United States Court of Appeals has ruled on the appeals.

The average period between conviction and execution in capital cases is 18 months.

Keech Defers 3 Executions

Joe M. Gray, 19, was convicted along with Harris and Hall of the fatal shooting of Frank C. Kelly, 56, of 4004 New Hampshire ave. in March, 1947. However, Gray's attorney was not present in court yesterday and Judge Holtzoff put off action on his case for a day.

Judge Richmond B. Keech, without comment, postponed until January 7 the execution of three men who were to die on November 12. They are:

George A. Garner, 25, and his brother, Lawrence J. Garner, 23, who were convicted in June of the robbery-killing of taxi driver Howard Jones, 37, of 417 Irving st. nw., and John H. Hall, 39, convicted in March, 1948, of raping an 8-year-old girl.

These cases were continued pending appeals.

In Numbers Cases

Bypassing Ruled Out by Judge Quinn

Judge Thomas D. Quinn declared yesterday that he will refuse to allow the United States attorney to bypass Municipal Court in handling numbers-racket cases.

The judge's statement was made after Defense Attorney Curtis P. Mitchell declared that the civil rights of numbers suspects were being disregarded in the court.

At issue is the suspect's privilege of obtaining a preliminary hearing to determine whether the Government has sufficient grounds to hold him for action of the grand jury.

Complaints Numerous

Numerous lawyers have complained that time and again they come into court for arraignment of their clients to learn that the Government is requesting a delay on the ground that the grand jury will "dispose" of the case.

The lawyers claim, as Mitchell stated, that the defendant never gets an idea of what evidence the police have in the cases until trial begins after indictment in District Court. Also, the defendant must remain under bond and subject to court restraints.

Mitchell said that United States Attorney George Morris Fay admitted that it was the Government's practice.

Judge Quinn said that if the charge was correct, "this is one judge who will not tolerate it."

Appears for Rivers

Mitchell appeared in behalf of James R. Rivers, 31, of 1824 T st. nw., charged with operation of a lottery and possession of numbers slips.

Fay was out of town for comment, but his Municipal Court assistant, Warren Wilson, stated that his office has "no fixed policy in handling these cases."

He added that according to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, the Government was within its rights in requesting the continuances.

Doctor Held Up, Robbed Outside Sibley Hospital

A gunman held up and robbed Dr. Raymond Apgar, 58, of 352 Eastern ave. ne., as he started to drive away from Sibley Hospital, 1140 N. Capitol st., about 9 o'clock last night.

The physician told police the bandit thrust a pistol inside the car, saying, "This is a holdup—I want your wallet!" Dr. Apgar said the wallet contained about $100 and his credentials.

Last seen running north on N. Capitol st., the bandit was described as a white man, about 25 or 30, slim with bushy hair and no hat, wearing a brownish topcoat.

Pistol Death In Fairfax Ruled Suicide

The pistol death of a Fairfax County mother of three was ruled suicide yesterday by Dr. Nelson Podolnick, Fairfax County coroner.

The dead woman was Mrs. Ardis Leyde, 33, of 400 Villa le., Ravenwood, Va.

She was found about 1 p. m. Sunday in the bedroom of her fashionable home, by her husband, Glenn W. Leyde, and a guest, William H. Stuart of Arlington. She had a bullet wound in her temple.

Near her body, police said, was found a .22-caliber target pistol. She was officially pronounced dead at Arlington Hospital.

The guest, Stuart, of 901 N. Daniel st., Arlington, said he had heard two shots fired just as he had left the house a few seconds before. He returned and with her husband went to the room.

Police said Mrs. Leyde left a note indicating she was despondent. Contents of the note were not disclosed, but police said they were continuing their investigation into the reason for the suicide.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Leyde is survived by three children, Beryl, 12; Glendon, 6, and Richard, 5.

Area Polio Toll Mounts to 236

One new polio case was reported in Greater Washington yesterday, raising the toll for the year to 236 as compared to 49 for this date last year.

The new case was a 12-year-old girl from Route 4, Rockville, Md., who is being treated at Children's Hospital. She is the 114th case from nearby Maryland and Virginia. The District toll is 122.

Familiar Trio Leaves Lobby of Mayflower For Rustic Vista in Falls Church Cemetery

'LA SIRENE'—The "rescuing angel" in a new locale—National Memorial Park Cemetery

The Washington Post

'THEY WENT THATTA WAY'—"Merope" seeks sisters in cemetery

By Donald Oleson
Post Reporter

A rescuing angel, a goddess who loved not wisely but well, and "Flora" have left the lobby of Washington's Mayflower Hotel.

The trio, marble statues past which the great and near-great of the world have promenaded, were bought by the National Memorial Park Cemetery near Falls Church several weeks ago.

Today, they stand beneath the cemetery's trees, with a view of sweeping lawns replacing the Mayflower admirals, Senators and diplomats.

The "rescuing angel" is a heroic statue entitled "La Sirene," by the contemporary Sculptor Denys Peuch. It depicts a winged, 8-foot female figure rising from the sea, bearing in her arms a young boy she has saved.

The goddess is Merope, in in Greek mythology one of the seven daughters of Atlas and a nymph named Pleione. According to the myth, Merope made the fatal error of loving a mortal man.

When her six sisters were made into a constellation named Pleides, Merope was left invisible. In the National Memorial Park statue, done by the American sculptor Randolph Rogers, she now scans the skies for her beloved sisters. Rogers designed the bronze doors in the Capitol rotunda.

The third of the trio, "Flora," epitomizes the spirit of spring in the form of a beautiful young woman. It is the work of William Cooper, another American sculptor, who also created the bronze Longfellow at Connecticut and Rhode Island aves. nw., and the bronze Dr. John Witherspoon, signer of the Declaration of Independence, at Connecticut ave. and 18th st. nw.

Norman Marlowe, vice president of Memorial Park, said he understood the figures had stood in the Mayflower lobby since about 1925.

Several statues by the Swedish Sculptor Carl Milles already had been erected by the cemetery as part of a fountain beautification. Eventually, 40 statues, at a total cost of about $250,000 will be arranged about the fountain.

Charge Police Struck Youth Is Investigated

Police officials are investigating a complaint by the family of a 19-year-old boy who said he was struck by police while being questioned about a stolen auto tag last Friday.

Percy E. Moy, 19, of 1236 11th st. se said he was struck on the side of the head and his left eye blackened during questioning at the Twelfth Precinct station house.

His mother, Mrs. Rose Moy, and an uncle, Harold Linton, reported the matter to Inspector George Wallrodt, who promised investigation, Mrs. Moy said.

The youth was arrested Friday while eating lunch outside of the Sunshine Biscuit Co., where he is employed. He was sitting in a car with a tag, which police said had been reported stolen. He had no drivers' license, police said. Coy told them the tag had been loaned to him and was not stolen, his mother said.

The youth was taken to the Twelfth Precinct Station and held there until Saturday morning, when a charge of petit larceny was placed against him.

Her son called her Saturday morning about the charge and she posted $10 collateral. The collateral was forfeited yesterday when the youth failed to appear in Municipal Court.

Downtown Area

3 Safe Jobs Yield More Than $2700

Safes in three downtown business establishments, one of them in the shadow of police headquarters, were ripped open and more than $2700 in cash taken early yesterday.

Heaviest loser was Cohen's, a picture frame company at 1227 G st. nw., where $2500 in cash was taken, after the door of a safe on the second floor was ripped off.

Harry Cohen, manager, said thieves apparently entered by climbing a fire escape on an adjoining building, crossing over the roof, entering through a third-floor window and making their way through several heavy doors to the second-floor office. They left behind $1500 in checks, indorsed for bank deposit only.

Baumgarten's Rubber Stamp Co., 925 11th st. nw., was entered by forcing a side door. The dial of the safe was knocked off and $150 in cash taken.

The N. B. Frank & Son office at 476 C st. nw., was entered and $85 in cash and $850 in indorsed checks were taken from the safe which had been ripped open.

Campaign Set To Aid Lagging Parking Plan

A drive to gain patronage in the next two weeks for the District's lagging fringe parking project was started yesterday by P. Y. K. Howat, chairman of the District Motor Vehicle Parking Agency.

Howat said he had asked department stores to run promotional advertising on the location of the lots, access roads and route of the shuttle buses and to display posters in their windows.

Luncheon clubs will be invited to distribute folder maps showing the lots and bus routes, and radio stations to schedule interviews with patrons of the service as well as spot announcements.

Howat will meet with the District Commissioners today to discuss another plan for adding parking spaces in the downtown area. He will ask the Commissioners to authorize private parking facility operators to use land lying between sidewalks and the building lines.

He said a parking agency survey showed about 351 extra spaces would be added by this plan.

National Vote Urged Again By Citizens

The Georgetown Progressive Citizens Association last night reiterated its stand in favor of national representation for the District.

A resolution citing the group's stand, proposed by Miss Etta Taggart, honorary president, was passed almost unanimously by the 50 members meeting at Christ Church Parish Hall, 31st and O sts. nw.

The Rev. William Sharp, rector of St. John's Church, Georgetown, and treasurer of the Georgetown Neighborhood Council, urged members of the association to contribute to the recently established child guidance clinic operating in the Public Health Center at the Addison School, 3246 P st. nw.

Takoma Citizens' Group Votes to Join Council

The Citizens Association of Takoma, D. C., last night voted to join the North Washington Council of Citizens Associations, comprising all such groups north of Harvard st. nw.

Among other business transacted at the meeting in Takoma School was a decision to study the Clifford Newell Plan for screening prospective buyers of homes in the vicinity. The plan calls for option agreements by which persons deemed undesirable may be excluded from buying.

Mt. Vernon Civic Group Elects New Officers

Herbert B. Newell was elected president of the Mt. Vernon, Va., Citizens' Association last night at a meeting in the Mt. Vernon Volunteer Fire Company building.

Others elected were: Harry N. Jones, vice president; Mrs. Robert J. Wilson, secretary; Miss Joy Cutler, corresponding secretary, and R. H. Walther, treasurer.

The organization voted to hold a special meeting in the near future to discuss proposals for a bond issue to provide funds for Fairfax County schools.

Manor Park Citizens Protest Transit Cut

Manor Park Citizens Association, meeting at Whittier School, 5th and Sheridan sts. nw., last night urged public hearings before any reductions in transit schedules are approved.

A resolution to that effect will be forwarded to the Public Utilities Commission. Action was taken after a complaint that service on the Manor Park line had been curtailed.

Injured Woman Wins Verdict in Suit Against U. S.

Chief Judge Bolitha J. Laws awarded a $11,000 judgment yesterday to Mrs. Deborah Burke, 35, a bookkeeper, of 762 Princeton pl. nw., for injuries suffered in a traffic accident December 26, 1945.

The District Court judgment was against the Federal Government under the Federal Tort Claims Act. Mrs. Burke's action was the first filed here under the law and perhaps was the first in the Nation.

Mrs. Burke was riding on a streetcar here at New Jersey ave. and O st. nw. when it was struck by a Treasury Department truck which was going the wrong way on the streetcar tracks. Mrs. Burke sustained a fractured skull and brain injuries. Her attorney was Alvin L. Newmyer.

Late Publisher's Daughter Must Specify Papers She Seeks for Evidence

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Mrs. Felicia Gizycka, who is attempting to break the will of her mother, the late Mrs. Eleanor M. Patterson, yesterday was denied permission to search her mother's files for evidence.

While her attorneys contended they have a right to "fish" through the papers, District Court Judge James W. Morris held there must be "reasonable designation" of papers which contain evidence or will lead to evidence.

Prior to this decision, the court heard a charge—and a denial—that records which might include documents vital to the case have been destroyed at the Times-Herald, which Mrs. Patterson owned and published.

In the contest over Mrs. Patterson's $16,586,571 estate, Mrs. Gizycka had asked that Riggs National Bank, court-appointed collector for the estate, be directed to permit inspection of all Mrs. Patterson's "documents, papers, books . . . photographs," etc.

While denying this request, Judge Morris said Mrs. Gizycka's attorneys can later claim examination of specific papers which involve evidence or may lead to evidence to break the will.

Declaring that the Times-Herald, being unincorporated, was the personal property of Mrs. Patterson and contains many of her papers, William A. Roberts, an attorney for Mrs. Gizycka, told the court earlier:

"We became informed . . . that in the last several weeks, employes of the paper, acting at unusual hours, have been removing from the files of the newspaper large numbers of documents . . ."

Roberts said that "not less than several loads of checks and account records have been destroyed within the past several days," and one "load" was selected on Friday, "bound for the District Incinerator," but could not reach there in time and was still at the Times-Herald.

He notified Riggs Bank of this Friday night, said Roberts, and also "notified the United States attorney's office."

William E. Leahy, attorney for the executors named in the contested will, declared the papers referred to were only accumulated "trash."

There was some burning of "old documents, documents which were 10 years old before Mrs. Patterson came into ownership of the Times-Herald," said Leahy.

"There hasn't been any destruction of any records other than the yearly taking away of trash which gathers by the ton in any newspaper," he said. "And so far as the Times-Herald is concerned, there can be no unusual hours—for they work 24 hours a day."

He added that nothing of importance has been destroyed or will be destroyed, "in view of the integrity of the collector" and officials at the Times-Herald.

Roberts said that while the contested will—dated June 21, 1946—was filed for probate on July 29, five days after Mrs. Patterson's death, the seven other wills in the case were not filed until Oct. 29, hampering preparation of Mrs. Gizycka's case.

A tentative trial date of November 4 for the case yesterday was extended to December 6, but that date is fixed purely for court purposes of notification. The actual trial is not expected before three months.

With the eight wills now filed, Roberts said he would have to get depositions from 160 persons whose interests are involved, as a result of denial of access to Mrs. Patterson's papers.

This will involve, he said, "a very long time and a very great deal of money, which, I might add, the caveator (Mrs. Gizycka) does not have."

Under the contested will, Mrs. Gizycka would receive $25,000 a year and certain property, but would not share in the Times-Herald, willed to seven executives.

Fare Changeover Causes Confusion

Capital Transit's new 13-cent fare brought delays on all trolley and bus lines in its first test during the week-day rush hours yesterday, but transit officials believe they now are "over the hump."

The Monday morning travel peak found a substantial majority of the one million daily riders buying their first batches of copper-colored tokens at three for 35c, six for 70c or nine for $1.05, or their first weekly passes at the new price of $1.75, or paying the straight 13-cent fare—and there wasn't a trolley or bus that was not slowed up in the process.

But delays were expected from riders and operators accustomed to the old 10-cent fare and $1.50 weekly passes, and "it could have been worse," said E. C. Giddings, CTC vice president. When the evening rush hour came, he said, most riders had their passes or tokens, and from now on new purchases of tokens will be spread out instead of concentrated during one rush-hour period.

Purchase of tokens far exceeded payment of cash fares, but sale of passes was about normal, Capital Transit reported. Several drivers, Capital Transit added, found on making out their reports at the end of their day's run, that they had short-changed themselves in the confusion.

Doctor Essay Contest

The family doctor is going to win some praise from those who know him best—school children.

The section of general practice of the District Medical Society announced yesterday it is sponsoring an essay contest on "The Family Doctor" for public and private high school students.

Essays are not to exceed 1500 words and the contest closes January 15. Prizes are $100 in cash for first place, $75 for second, and $50 for third.

Both Legs Broken

William Wood, 37, of 1101 Holbrook Terrace ne., was seriously injured yesterday when pinned between the tail gate of a truck and a loading platform at Terminal Warehouse, 4th and D sts. sw.

Wood was admitted to Casualty Hospital with both upper legs fractured. Driver of the truck, George Mitchell, 57, of 53 L st. nw., said he accidentally stepped on the truck's starter while the truck was in gear, and it jerked backwards.

License Approved

The District License Board, overruling an objection by the District Cosmetology Board, has recommended the approval of a license to operate a massage parlor at 2625 Connecticut ave. nw.

The application was made by the Henri and Robert Beauty Shop now located there in an effort to establish a unit of the Washington Stauffer System in conjunction with present operations.

The Cosmetology Board, asking the license not be issued, said regulations are being formulated prohibiting common entrances for beauty shops and massage parlors.

General Patch died shortly after returning from Europe the same year. Mrs. Patch lives in Staunton, Va.

Warned on Monoxide

Health Officer George C. Ruhland last night issued a warning to residents to beware of carbon monoxide accidents, pointing out that 10 persons were killed here last year from this cause.

He urged that car engines should not be run in closed garages and that furnaces and stoves be checked for ill-fitting pipes and furnace doors.

He pointed out that the Bureau of Public Health Engineering section on industrial hygiene is available for consultation on heating, air conditioning, ventilation and carbon monoxide leakages at National 6000, extension 617.

Football Death Of D. C. Youth Ruled Accident

The death of George E. Sullivan, 18-year-old halfback who died after being injured while playing football for the Chamberlain Vocational High School, was declared accidental yesterday by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald.

The youth died early Sunday at Providence Hospital of internal injuries received Friday during a game between Chamberlain and Woodward Preparatory School, played in the Anacostia High School stadium.

Coroner MacDonald issued the certificate following an informal hearing at the District Morgue, attended by several of Sullivan's teammates, the coach of the Chamberlain team and a referee of the game.

Sullivan, who was a junior at Chamberlain, is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Sullivan, of 1103 Branch ave. se.

Funeral services will be held today at 1 p. m. at Chambers Southeast funeral home, 517 11th st. se. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Chamberlain's football team will attend the services. Both the faculty and the student body will be represented.

Every member of the school's student body of 300 yesterday was excused from one class to visit the Chambers funeral home and pay last respects. The cadet corps, of which George was a member last year, went in uniform as a group after school hours. The school flag was flown at half-mast.

Rites Scheduled in Arlington For Three District Veterans

Reburial rites for three Washington servicemen who gave their lives in World War II will be held this week in Arlington National Cemetery.

Services for Gunner's Mate First Class Thomas B. Keene, USNR, son of Mrs. Katherine P. Keene, 1223 S. Thomas st., Arlington, Va., will be held at 11 a. m. Wednesday.

An honor guard of Metropolitan policemen will participate in ceremonies for the 34-year-old Navy man, a former District policeman who died in February, 1943, while a prisoner of war at Osaka, Japan.

Born in Santa Monica, Calif., Gunner's Mate Keene came to Washington in 1934, attended George Washington University, and served four years as a guard at the United States Supreme Court before his appointment to the police force in 1939. A member of the Naval Reserve, he was called to active duty in April, 1941, serving at Cavite Naval Base, Philippine Islands. He was taken prisoner by the Japanese in May, 1942, on Corregidor when that island fell.

Besides his mother, he leaves a sister, Mrs. Paul F. Dowling, 1410 S. George Mason dr., Arlington.

At 2 p. m. on Wednesday, services will be held in Arlington Cemetery for First Lieut. John F. Curtin, jr., killed in action August 3, 1944, near Margueray, France, while commanding Company B, 112th Infantry, 28th Division.

Lieutenant Curtin, who was posthumously awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in action, attended McKinley High School here and was graduated in 1942 from the University of Maryland, entering the Army immediately. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Curtin; a sister, Margaret V. Curtin, and a brother, Thomas H. Curtin, all of Plandome Manor, N. Y.

Services will be held at 2 p. m. Friday for Pfc. James F. Rye, son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Rye, 6 Beach Bank rd., Forest Glen, Md.

Private First Class Rye, 26, died January 9, 1945, in Germany, while serving with the 175th Infantry, Twenty-ninth Division, and was posthumously awarded the Bronze Star Medal.

A native of Silver Spring, Md., he attended school there and at Immaculate Conception Academy in the District. He worked as a bricklayer before entering the Army in April, 1941. Besides his parents, he leaves a sister, Mrs. Margaret C. Smith, and six brothers, John R., jr., Bernard F., Joseph A., Louis A., Emmitt V. and Charles R. Rye, all of Silver Spring.

On the Party Calendar

Visitors Honored; Election Fetes Are Planned

By Marie McNair

ORCHIDS should go to the hostess, Mrs. Deborah Leighton Glassford, for getting together such a congenial group of her friends yesterday to meet Gen. Pelham Glassford, former Chief of Police of Washington, and Mrs. Glassford, here on a visit from their home in Laguna Beach, Calif.

The party, beginning at 3, seemed to gather momentum, hummed along in high fashion until 8 or after, and the Glassfords, genuinely happy in seeing old friends and making new ones, were the last to leave.

There was no such thing as a receiving line at this informal fete, the General and Mrs. Glassford to be found in the long drawing room, the hostess moving from one room to another. The visiting Mrs. Glassford, like her hostess, wore black, a fitted frock, severly simple, and topped with a small round black hat with a single rose for color. Dodie Glassford's full skirted frock had a black and white belt around her slim waist and she had pinned two carnations —one white, one pale pink—at the neckline.

Mme. Koo Is Guest

It was the first time I had seem Mme. Wellington Koo, wife of the Chinese Ambassador, in a costume of the Western World—a straight skirt of checked black and white wool, a short black jacket and a twist of material combing the two, wound around her sleek black hair.

Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim stopped in, Polly Guggenheim looking like a Madonna in a du Plessix hat draped with a wine red chiffon scarf, but they left to be ready to greet the Ambassador and Mme. Koo, their ranking guests at an 8 o'clock dinner.

Mme. Le Gallais, wife of the Luxembourg Minister, there with the Minister, was receiving compliments on her absinthe green felt hat, softly crushed at the side and trimmed with a delicate feathered bird.

Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner, Miss Katherine Judge and the effervescent Sadie Pratt, who came with her general, made up a threesome on a window seat. Former Ambassador and Mrs. Stanley Hornbeck were there and Clarence Hewes, Mrs. Frederick Brooke and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman.

Gen. Robert Blake, meeting dark-eyed Mrs. Robert A. Dyer for the first time, took her for an Argentinian, which Olga Dyer says has happened before. Mrs. Royce Powell, waited for an errant husband who finally arrived, and Mrs. Valentine Pottle, wife of the Navy captain, recognized the portable bar set up in the wide hallway as having been made in China, where Dodie Glassford accumulated many of the handsome furnishings in her house.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Thomas J. Hanley, were there, Mrs. Hanley in soft blue, and then I saw Mrs. Morris Cafritz, Miss Carolyn Nash, bachelors Maj. Harry Haller and Brian Stonehouse who live together in a Georgetown house, Col. and Mrs. Consuelo Seoane, Mrs. James L. Houghteling, Ralph McBane, Mrs. Leslie P. Jacobs, Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, and members of the Glassford clan which included the general's daughter, Mrs. Lee Parks; his nieces, Mrs. Ernest von Heimburg, Miss Peggy Glassford, and Gretchen and Martha von Heimburg.

THE AMBASSADOR of Egypt and Mme. Abdel-Rahim entertained at dinner last evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Clayton, who are returning Thursday to their home in Houston, Tex. Guests were Rear Admiral and Mrs. Paul Morton Stewart, Lieut. Gen. and Mrs. Wade Hampton Haislip, Constantine Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond D. Muir, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hare, Anis Azer, Minister of Egypt, Princess Halim, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Howard C. Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. T. Lothrop Stoddard, Mrs. Herbert Stabler and Col. and Mrs. William Eddy.

THE FAREWELL cocktail party given Saturday afternoon in honor of Orham Eralp by Castellor Branco of the Brazilian Embassy drew the town's prettiest girls and a special group of Washington bachelors. Miss Rosalind Rust, Miss Nacy Rheem, Miss Dolly Corbin, Mrs. Regina Gautier and Miss Delight Wood were there to mention a few. And the men included Paul Jolles of the Swiss Legation, Thomas Moorhead, James Karrick and Taylor Simmons.

MRS. NINA LUNN is entertaining at an election day cocktail party today at the home of Senator and Mrs. Wallace White on Tracy pl.

A dinner will be given tomorrow evening at the Australian Embassy by the Ambassador and Mrs. Makin.

Another election party will be the dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Tartiere at "Glen Ora," their place in Middleburg.

AT THE French Embassy last evening, the Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet entertained at a dinner, which included the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Bruggmann, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Charles Sawyer, and Lieut. Gen. and Mrs. Lauris Norstad.

MR. AND Mrs. Rolland Lee Nutt will entertain at an election night dinner this evening at Normandy Farm. Their guests will include Mr. and Mrs. Charles Paine, Mr. and Mrs. Edison W. Mollohan, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy C. Nelson and Mrs. Elva Barber. After dinner, the group will go to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paine to listen to the election returns.

The party will mark the third time that the same group has gathered to hear results of a presidential election.

MISS Laura Belle Wyatt is entertaining Saturday, November 6, from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m. in honor of Miss Jane Wyatt at her home at 1702 Kalmia rd.

Visitor From London

Miss Frankie Rosen of London, England, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Mintz.

Miss Aileen Ellen Friedman's engagement to Melvin Augenstein Norwood has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Friedman. Her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Norwood. He is an Army veteran and attends Benjamin Franklin University

Mrs. Truman Will Be Sponsor

Before driving on to Cleveland for a bit of "Grandmothering," Mrs. Harold H. Burton, chairman of the advisory committee for the presentation of "Arsenic and Old Lace" at Lisner Auditorium on Friday evening, November 19, by a cast of blind persons from the District Association of Workers for the Blind, completed her committee list.

Mrs. Truman consented to loan her name for the benefit. Others on the list are Mrs. Fred M. Vinson, Mrs. Wiley Rutledge, the Attorney General and Mrs. Tom Clark, Senator and Mrs. J. William Fulbright, the Chief of Staff and Mrs. Omar N. Bradley, the Assistant Secretary of Navy for Air and Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, the Rt. Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of Washington; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. H. Conger Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Bell, Mr. Leon Chatelain, jr., Mr. Vaughan B. Coale, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, Mr. and Mrs. James Lawrence Houghteling and Frank A. Jelleff.

Also Coleman Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Johnston, Fred S. Kogod, Robert E. Lohr, Mr. and Mrs. Jennings Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. L. Corrin Strong, Mrs. Martin Vogel and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Gordon Russell Young.

Tickets for the play are now on sale at the District Association of Workers for the Blind, 406 Albee Building, and the Willard Hotel ticket bureau.

Entire proceeds from the production, which has been in rehearsal for over two months, will go toward a fund to provide a summer recreation camp for blind persons in the metropolitan area of Washington.

'Men About Town' Dance With Mental Patients As Weekly Good Turn

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Nov. 1.—Tucked amidst California campaign hysterical stories of stars, jewels, loves, foibles are such a surprising number of good works we're passing them on as welcome relief. Most touching is what is called the "men about town" afternoon which meets every Tuesday for an hour of dancing in Room 210 of the Brentwood Mental Hospital. The men are some of Hollywood's leading journalists, business men and actors. Their partners are mental patients—former Waves, Wacs, military nurses—pathetic casualties from two wars. The music is supplied gratis by the Jerry Rosen Orchestra.

The dancing men, who seldom miss a Tuesday appointment, include Columnist Harry Crocker, Cesar Romero, Herbert Marshall, Reginald Denny, John Beal, Eddie Bracken, Carl Esmond, Edward Gardner, dozens of others. The idea originated with Mrs. Eleanor Wasson, a practical philanthropist, who was asked to plan an educational therapy program at the Veterans Administration Hospital at Brentwood.

Touring the hospital, she chanced to see some of the pathetic women patients dancing together. Asked how to build their morale, she snapped, "Get some men." Mrs. Wasson did. At the first "party" the women appeared without makeup, hair scraggly. One glance at the attractive men electrified the women. A few rushed out, hastily applied lipstick, brushed their hair. After half a dozen Tuesdays many appeared in pretty dresses, had new hairdos for the first time in years, approximated normal feminine beings. The uplift has been so sensational that within months some have been discharged.

Individually the most active philanthropist hereabouts is retired radio tycoon Atwater Kent, a refugee from Philadelphia, Southampton and other points East, who is known chiefly for staging tremendous parties.

Mr. Kent, who lives in a palazoo set in 12 acres of elaborately landscaped Bel Air Mountain top, averages 40 parties a year which range in scope from a dinner for 24 to circus parties complete with elephants, seals and camels. But 50 per cent of these enjoyable affairs are given for civic causes.

But though Mr. Kent may spend his evenings, perhaps his afternoons, arranging, giving, attending parties, he devotes his mornings to the Atwater Kent Foundation. His foundation, started back in 1919, has given away an untold amount of money.

ORIGINALLY in automobile ignition, Mr. Kent progressed to radio manufacturing, using his money, his knowledge of music to attract the best singers, the best classical music to the new-fangled contraption. To encourage youthful singers get started, he sponsored a series of auditions, the winners receiving Kent musical scholarships.

Besides running these contests the foundation contributes to over a hundred different charities out here—many of them small undertakings which need Mr. Kent's personal interest as well as his money to boost them to success. Perhaps the most interesting is his work with paraplegics.

A year and a half ago he started off supplying veteran paraplegic victims with 40 inexpensive, unassembled radio sets, plus an instructor. The veterans were taught how to assemble the sets to make all kinds of radio repairs. Since then more complicated sets have been bought by the Kent Foundation and some 200 men are constantly being taught radio repair technique. It's a type work especially suited to paraplegics and many of them, after leaving the hospital, have found good jobs, have become self-supporting.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Parents Are Baffled by 3-Year-Old Son's Behavior Since Baby Brother's Birth; He Crawls, Wants Bottle, Makes Jabber-Talk

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Jim and I have two sons—Pat, who is three, and Rusty, one year old. The older boy, Pat, is our problem, and frankly, we are stumped.

When Rusty was born, Pat resented him a little, but when he found out that he (Pat) received as much attention and love as the baby, he got over his resentment and now he seems really fond of the younger child; but the problem is that he wants to imitate him.

Pat was always a little slow. He didn't walk until he was about 20 months old and even now no one can understand him when he talks; but what puzzles us is that he has gone back to crawling, he wants bottle feedings, and instead of talking or trying to talk, he makes noises or jabbers like the baby.

Ignores Parents' Patient Appeals

HE IS a bright boy and understands as much as any child his age, but in this matter he won't listen to us when we try to explain to him that he is a big boy, not a baby, etc. We haven't scolded him about his baby-actions; we have only tried to reason with him so far; but since this policy hasn't been effective, what else should we do, if anything?

I might add that Pat was sick when he was a baby, and he was always petted, not entirely by us, for we were living with Jim's parents until Rusty was born, and consequently Pat got extra measure of loving attention. Now that Jim has finished his education, we have moved to a home of our own; and I may truthfully say we have always tried to treat the boys alike and are doing our best to rear them wisely; but we feel we must be at fault somehow with Pat. Can you help us? C. G.

Case of Bonafide Setback in Growth

DEAR C. G.: Pat's behavior can't rightly be summed up as an attempt to imitate his baby brother; nor is it motivated, wholly, by unconscious rival competition for infant perquisites.

Rather, Pat has suffered a mild bonafide setback in growth. Bewildered and frightened by the new design-for-living ushered in by Rusty's birth and the family's move, soon after, to a home apart from the grandparents', Pat relapsed toward infancy, instinctively seeking the comfort and security associated with first experience.

This double measure of domestic upheaval—which isolated Pat from his customary extra dividend of round-the-clock "petting" from grandparents, just when he was in mid-crisis of learning to share his parents fifty-fifty with Rusty—was too much "change" for him to digest, inasmuch as he is slow on the uptake and had been ill as a baby and coddled accordingly. Consequently he succumbs to anxiety neurosis.

The characteristic motif of such neurosis is to retreat from the exigencies of life back to the cocoon of infantilism, with indeed an instinct—yearning to return to the total receptive dependency of the prenatal foetus, blindly reliant on mother-nurture.

Needs Relief—From Anxiety

HAPPILY, Pat hasn't regressed so drastically, and I portray the extreme merely to show that he hasn't. At most he has fallen only a year or so behind "norm" behavior for his age; and it is not uncommon for normal children to revert, from time to time, to transient dalliance with baby-ways, up to and for some years after school age. In so doing they are temporarily backing away from some seemingly cheerless aspect of growth; but they pick up again and go on, if loved and encouraged and not goaded.

For advice: Don't reproachfully "reason" with Pat about his relapse. Rather "accept" him just as he is, making no issue of his crawling, baby-talk and whim for a bottle. Snuggle him in your lap for reading or rocking, for perhaps 10 minutes after lunch and/or supper; and allow him a bit of milk or orange juice in a bottle as playful reward for "eating up" at least some portion of a 3-year-old's diet; but be patient and don't withhold the bottle if he rejects this deal at first.

Intermingled with this love-treatment of infant anxiety, tactfully reeducate him to interested self-confident participation in 3-year-old social activities, by providing play equipment expertly designed to appeal to the 3-year-old boy and develop his manual skills and co-ordinative efficiency; also by casually introducing opportunity for quiet supervised play with children his age; by letting him shop with you and carry small packages, etc.; and by consistently praising his responses along this line, without ever criticizing "symptom" relapses. M. H.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest O. Osborne

A Little Leeway in Children's Costumes

Do your children ever want to do "crazy" things? Perhaps Billy wants to wear one red sock and one blue one. Or 6-year-old Mary decides that she must wear her "Sunday-go-to-meeting" dress even though it's a school day.

Most of us parents take a dim view of such behavior. We may feel that the neighbors will think us careless when they see Billy's socks or extravagant if Mary wears her best clothes on weekdays.

After all, children have to do a good many things that they would prefer not to do. We expect them to go to school whether they like it or not. They have a regular bed hour in spite of the exciting things there are to do in the evening. Perhaps we should give them a little leeway on things that really don't matter.

Try asking yourself the next time: "Does it really make any difference?" Most times you'll find that it doesn't.

Wise Mother Respects Child's Food Tastes

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Children are adept at thinking up methods of refusing foods they do not want to eat. The baby soon learns that he can bubble into his cup, or if he gets a mouthful he can blow it satisfyingly around the room.

If he doesn't want the food that is forced upon him he can store it in his cheek for long periods, eat some other food, meanwhile, and end up spitting the first food out.

These are all methods of repudiation and they should be respected, not ignored or punished. If there is one privilege we all possess it is that of eating or not eating as we see fit.

Act Unconcerned

It is wise, at such a moment, to act unconcerned and remove the milk or food. Accept the fact that obviously the child does not want it. Maybe a short play period will put him in a mood to eat some more. If not, call it a meal and let the child leave the table or high-chair.

Children have periodic spells of appetitelessness and it is during such periods that these habits develop and flourish. They would be forgotten the more quickly were the mother to refuse to react to them.

Parents are inclined to want children to hurry at their meals. They hustle the food into them and are nonplused when they find the child backing away from it and then refusing it dramatically. Sometimes all that is necessary is for the mother to slow up, to stop feeding and engage herself elsewhere. In 10 or 15 minutes the wavering appetite may be in full bloom again.

Headaches, Happiness Await Winner

By Ruth Cowan
Associated Press Staff Writer

The wife of the man elected President today can look forward to headaches as well as happiness in the next four years.

Being First Lady looks like a glamor role. Actually it is a tough job that is going to get tougher.

The possibilities of a third world war, the high cost of living, labor disputes and other problems both at home and abroad—all these add up to a sometimes very worried man in the White House. And human nature being what it is, he may sometimes be cranky.

The wives of both Republican Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Democratic President Truman are homebodies. But whichever way the votes fall, the Nation's official social affairs will be in experienced feminine hands.

Frances Dewey as wife of the Governor has been New York's First Lady for six years. Bess Truman has been successively the wife of a United States Senator, Vice President and President in official entertaining.

Neither is what society editors would describe as "frightfully smart." It is unlikely that either would ever introduce a new style in hairdo or skirt length.

Although Mrs. Truman is several years senior to Mrs. Dewey, and the latter is a graduate of the glamorous George White Scandals, they are in many respects more alike than unlike.

They both believe a woman's place is in the home. And in that home, the husband is head.

Their husbands make the political speeches. They believe in the speaker and support him.

Both Mrs. Dewey and Mrs. Truman have small town Midwest backgrounds. Mrs. Dewey is from Sapulpa, Okla., and Mrs. Truman from Independence, Mo.

The former Bess Wallace married the lad who had carried her school books. She never embarked upon a career. Frances Hutt Dewey had hit Broadway before she wed a young lawyer who had wanted to be an opera singer.

But both women from the altar on made their husbands' careers their own.

They have been happy to be wives and mothers. The Trumans have one daughter, Margaret, 24, who is planning an operatic career. The Deweys have two sons, ages 13 and 16.

Turkey and All the Fixings

CARE Offers Real Holiday Dinner

By Lucia Brown

A "WHITE TURKEY Christmas" for hundreds of Europeans now on scant, monotonous diets, was forecast here yesterday.

At a press-radio luncheon at the Mayflower, CARE introduced its new holiday food package which features a canned whole turkey—one of the fine Beltsville Whites—and all the fixings for a real Christmas dinner.

The Marquess of Milford Haven, a guest in Washington for a few days, was among those on hand to examine the new package and sample the succulent bird. He expressed the thanks of the British people for CARE packages in general and their pleasure at the prospect of a Yuletide turkey dinner.

"Many American tourists get the wrong idea about the British food situation," said the slender, 29-year-old marquess. "They fail to realize how terribly limited the variety of food is, and how the poorer feel the pinch and the monotony. Having a turkey will be wonderful for families who haven't had a Christmas dinner of this kind in years.

On Business Trip

The marquess, whose squiring of Princess Margaret Rose and Ambassador Douglas' daughter, Sharman, has been the talk of London, is in the United States on a business trip. He represents an electrical heating firm and came to Washington from New York yesterday.

The Christmas package was not the only new one introduced at yesterday's luncheon. There's a new standard CARE package—a revision in line with changing food conditions in Europe.

"Since grain crops were good there this year, we have cut down on the flour in the package," explained Paul Comley French, executive director of the nonprofit, Government-approved agency.

"More meat, fat, sugar, and preserves have been added to the box," he continued. "In all, there's $1.50 worth more groceries than in our old package, though the price remains the same."

In assembling the holiday package, he said, CARE's greatest problem was finding a turkey small enough to be canned whole. This problem was solved by using the latest edition of the special small-boned, full-meated white turkey developed by the United States Department of Agriculture at its Beltsville, Md., research center.

Tells of Turkeys

Dr. C. W. Knox, of the department, yesterday told something of the 13 years of cross-breeding that have gone into developing these small turkeys.

"We started with a White Holland, since we didn't want a turkey that would show dark pin feathers," he said. "Wild turkeys were introduced into the strain because of their small bones. Bronze and black turkeys and practically every other kind were used, too, including some fine White Austrians located at Inverness, Scotland, at the suggestion of Henry Wallace, then Secretary of Agriculture."

Result is a deep-breasted, tender turkey, compact enough to can but large enough to feed as many as twelve persons. French-trussed for easy handling and carving, it has been steam-heated with a vacuum-sealed plastic bag to retain its juices, then canned under pressure. Inside the can, the bag is surrounded by lard, a precious item in most European countries now. The whole thing—turkey, can, and lard—weighs only eight pounds.

When the bird is taken out, it can be heated and browned in the oven and served with stuffing, or it can be sliced and served cold. It was served both ways at yesterday's luncheon and both were pronounced delicious.

To go with this "piece de resistance," the package includes assorted spices, rich plum pudding, butter, sugar, coffee, rice, tea (for British), chocolate, hard candies, strawberry preserves, bacon, lemon juice, and even a can opener. Orders can be taken at the local CARE office up to December 15 and still get to their foreign destination on time. The Economic Cooperation Administration now pays ocean freight on the packages.

Ambassador Opens Haitian Art Show

Joseph D. Charles, Ambassador of Haiti, opened an exhibition of Haitian Popular Art at the Watkins Gallery yesterday on the campus of the American University.

In addition to the paintings, the exhibit also include a few objects of art such as drums and ornamented boxes. It is come from the Haitian Art Center of New York and will be shown at Watkins Gallery until December 1.

SIMPLEX FLEXIES
Shoes for Children

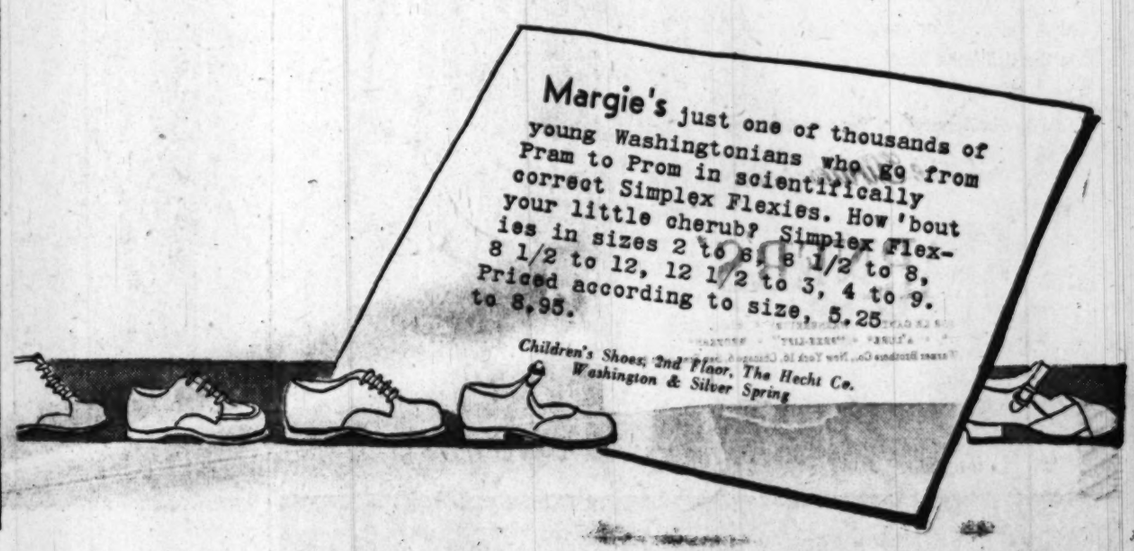
June 1935: Margie, age one, gets first pair of shoes. Mother insists upon Simplex Flexies like she always wore because leathers are softer, more supple, and as flexible as Margie's own tiny feet.

July 1937: Margie, just turned 3, says, "Simplex Flexies" for shoes. Goes into her first low pair scientifically made to gently support her arch, allow toes to grow straight and strong.

September 1940: Margie, now 6, goes to school in brown Simplex Flexies oxfords. Little chance for irritation because Simplex Flexies heels fit hug-tight, linings have no nails or tacks, are butter-smooth.

April 1944: Margie, a typical Teen-Ager, trips off with all honors at dancing school. Her feet have bare foot freedom in mirror-bright black patent Simplex Flexies precision-fitted by fluoroscope.

November 1948: Margie reaches flirty 14, gets first prom bid. Rushes down for cross-band Simplex Flexies that look so keen with dance-dresses, feel like wings on dancing feet.



Margie's just one of thousands of young Washingtonians who go from Pram to Prom in scientifically correct Simplex Flexies. How 'bout your little cherub? Simplex Flexies in sizes 2 to 8, 8 1/2 to 8, 8 1/2 to 12, 12 1/2 to 3, 4 to 9. Priced according to size, 5.25 to 8.95.

League of Women Voters Plans Radio Programs

The District of Columbia League of Women Voters, in cooperation with Mairi Foreman of WQQW, have planned two radio programs dealing with national elections.

Mrs. Clarence E. Fisher, director of the D. C. League's Absentee Voters' Service, will appear today at 9:45 a. m. on Mrs. Foreman's program, "Answers for Women," to discuss the importance of voting with particular emphasis on the voteless state of the District of Columbia.

On Thursday, November 4, Miss Muriel Ferris, legislative secretary of the League of Women Voters of the United States, will be interviewed by Mrs. Foreman on the results of the elections, concentrating on an analysis of the newly elected Congress.

Demo Women's Club Hears Dr. Reissig On World Peace

"In all international circles we hear that civilization is faced with total annihilation," Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary, Washington Council of Churches, told members of the Women's National Democratic Club yesterday in a luncheon address at the clubhouse.

"People of the world are afraid," he said. "Now we have the problem of two world powers gripping at each other for power. No one knows how it will end. In the ruins of Warsaw and Germany people have lost faith in all political systems and promises of world peace."

The speaker advocated a return to spiritual guidance in building world peace. "Since man's plans have failed to create a warless world, God's plans should be tried," he explained.

Dr. Reissig said that Americans know nothing of what is going on in Europe and fail to understand the great revolutionary forces at work there, and fail to realize that the world cannot return to the old reactionary life.

He pointed out that the World Council of Churches at its meeting in Amsterdam had to face the fact of conflicting ideaologies and to try to come to some realistic understanding in working for a Christian world.

Dr. Reissig said that President Truman asked to send Government representatives to the Church Assembly in Amsterdam to help work out plans for world peace, but had been refused because council members wanted their voice to be that of churches and not politics.

Ask Anne:

History of 'Tricks or Treats'

Can you tell me the origin of the "trick-or-treat" custom, whereby children go around at Halloween asking for a treat at each house and playing tricks on the occupants if it isn't forthcoming? I never heard of it until I moved to Washington a few years ago. N. L.

We have enlisted the aid of the District of Columbia Public Library and the Recreation Department, but have been unable to trace "tricks-or-treat" to its source. Several people in their twenties, life-long residents of Washington, recall that the custom existed to some extent when they were children. Recent issues of national recreation magazines mention it in connection with other cities, and it's also been written about in some of the national women's magazines. Apparently, the practice has become more widespread in the past three or four years, but how it originated we have been unable to discover. Perhaps it "just grew." Playing pranks at Halloween has been in vogue for many years. Perhaps some kindly neighbor began inviting the children in for cakes and cocoa to stop their mischief and in so doing, started a custom that was eventually dubbed "trick- or-treats." Can you give us any information on this, readers?

Please advise how to repair chipped porcelain enamel in kitchen sink. Where can the necessary materials be obtained? (Telephone number, please.) L. C.

There is a liquid porcelain glaze on the market which is designed for this use. Follow the directions which come with the product. For further information about it, call National 1703.

When there has been a death in the family and relatives and friends have sent flowers, letters, notes, telegrams and cards of sympathy, should not all of these be acknowledged in writing? Is not the thought which prompted them the same, whether it is flowers or sympathy cards, and should not the same consideration be given to the sender of each? If this is not correct, please state which one it is all right to acknowledge verbally. D. A.

Emily Post says that when "someone with real sympathy in his heart has taken the trouble to select and send flowers, or has gone to the house and offered what service he might, or has in the spirit of genuine regard written a letter," some personal message of thanks should be written. A brief note on an "informal" foldover or small note paper is entirely adequate. If the list is very long or the person who has received the flowers or messages is in reality unable to perform the task of writing, some member of the family may write for her, "Mother (or father) asks me to thank you for your beautiful flowers and kind message of sympathy." No one expects more than a short message of acknowledgement, Miss Post points out, but that message should be seemingly personal. With the sympathy cards, it seems to me either a note could be written or the writers could be thanked verbally when you see them.

Will you tell me what is correct in engagement and wedding rings when both the contracting parties have been married (not to each other) and divorced years ago. Is an engagement ring permissable? If so, is this a diamond? I have been told an emerald is used. Is the double ring ceremony correct in this case, in a private marriage? Both parties are in their late thirties. M. M. L.

There is no reason why the same customs regarding wedding and engagement rings should not be observed for the marriage of a divorced couple as for others. The engagement ring can either be a diamond, the bride's birthstone, or some other gem that she particularly likes.

I wonder if I may offer a suggestion to V. G. concerning the prevention of mold on syrup. Your methods, given in a recent column, are quite reliable but there is one which is more simple and, I believe, just as good. It is an old technique we use in bacteriology, and it serves the purpose in the home, too. Before closing the syrup container, merely flame the mouth of the jab by holding a lighted match in the mouth and clamp on the lid at once. It never fails and is by far more simple than any other method. W. R. S.

Can you tell me where in Washington city one can find a jingly book of rhymes? V. H. P.

Are you thinking of a rhyming dictionary? The main Public Library here in Washington has about eight different ones. Local book stores sell them, too. Available at one large store are Wood's "Unabridged Rhyming Dictionary," and "Rhyming Dictionary of the English Language," by Joan Walker.

Anne answers questions through her column only. We regret that time does not permit answering telephone inquiries. Address letters to Anne, Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington, 4, D. C.

WAFFLES and cream chicken are an easy-to-fix supper treat that makes the most of leftovers. Crowned with a cranberry jelly cut-out in the shape of a chicken, they're extra festive and attractive. Quick way to make the waffles is by beating 2 cups of pancake mix, 2 eggs, and 2 cups of milk together with a rotary beater. Stir in 1/3 cup of melted shortening, and bake in a hot waffle iron

Faddy Diets Are Out

Eat to Melt the Pounds Away

By Ida Jean Kain

MANY A WOMAN goes on a reducing bout three or four times a year, grimly determined to take off 10 pounds, maybe 20. What's more, she does it. Then she stops dieting and starts overeating . . . and gaining. Within three months she is right back where she started and due for another diet.

Choose that way if you like, but actually it's the hard way. You'll be struggling against assorted carbohydrates, fat trimmings, and snacks between meals for the rest of your life.

What other way is there to control weight? Re-educate your food habits. It's not as tough as it appears at first. Not only can you learn to like the foods that are less fattening, but you can also lose your craving for the fatteners.

The best part of eating to change food habits and lose weight is that you don't go hungry. On the Daily Dozen Diet you can eat a dozen foods a day, clip off pounds at the rate of one to three a week, be happy and healthy—and, glory be, stay slim. It's the one and only perfect diet pattern.

The slimming bill of fare? Lean meat, eggs, milk, cheese, three vegetables, two fruits, wholegrains . . . and water. Eat that dozen daily, and not much else, and you will get all the essential nutrients while gaily clipping off the pounds. You'll feel so fit it will be easy to learn to like that pattern of eating—then you'll never again have to worry about excess pounds. Wouldn't it be wonderful!

Reason it out. Doesn't a faddy diet just whet your appetite for fattening fare when the diet is done? A variety of foods, patterned on regular meals but with calories clipped, works a change for the better in everyday food habits. Of course you're not going to lose your appreciation for good food—including an occasional dessert at 300 calories—but a scientific diet does cut down abnormal cravings.

Here's the calorie count on the daily dozen:

Nutrition Essentials	Calories
Meat: Lean meat, fish, fowl or meat organs —liberal serving—4 to 5 ounces	250-300
Cooked vegetables: 2—1 dark green or yellow plus another cooked vegetable	100
Raw vegetables: A green salad, celery, carrot strips, tomatoes, or coleslaw—liberal serving	25
Milk: 2 glasses skim milk or buttermilk, or 1 glass plus 1-oz. yellow cheese	180
Eggs and cheese: 1 egg and 1 serving of cheese, or 2 eggs	150
Fruits: 1 whole orange or ½ grapefruit; or 2-3 glass of fruit juice; plus 1 or 2 other fruits, fresh	225
Bread: 100 per cent wholewheat or enriched, 3 thin slices, each ¼-inch thick, or 1 serving of cereal and 2 thin slices of bread	150
Butter: 2 teaspoons for bread or vegetables	65

That totals between 1100 and 1200 calories, and on it you can lose from 1 to 3 pounds per week, depending on your requirements.

Have You Tried These Ways With Food?

Glazed sweet potatoes with currant jelly by spreading the jelly over the surface of the precooked potatoes and heating in the oven.

For Sunday night supper serve a corn pudding (made from canned or quick-frozen whole grain corn), creamed spinach, baked tomatoes and boiled crisp bacon strips. Accompany by lots of hot biscuits or corn muffins.

Season a pound of lean ground beef with finely grated onion, salt and pepper and a tablespoon or so of tomato juice or milk. Shape into large flat cake and broil until done; turn with two pancake turners if desired. Dust with paprika and dry mustard and dot with butter or margarine before serving.

Steam pieces of frying chickens before broiling, then serve with broiled apricots and sliced sweet potatoes. Accompany this main dish with a tossed green salad mixed with French dressing and serve cheese and crackers for dessert.

Lamb or beef stew is good seasoned with catsup or chili sauce, garlic and paprika as well as salt and pepper.

Spareribs are delicious cooked with canned tomatoes. Season with onion, brown sugar, ground cloves and salt and pepper.

To make homemade noodles, beat an egg and mix with a cup of flour that has been sifted with a half teaspoon of baking powder and a quarter teaspoon salt. Roll out thin, dust with flour, roll up in jelly roll fashion and cut fine; spread out to dry on a tea towel.

Fold grated cheese or finely chopped parsley into a puffy omelet for a flavor change. Serve with crisp potato sticks (packaged) and a green salad. Add hot biscuits, homemade preserves and coffee for a delicious, easily prepared supper.

Heat baked beans and serve on toast topped with broiled tomatoes; sprinkle tomatoes with grated cheese if desired.

In making percolated coffee, allow the coffee to percolate, after the water begins to be amber in color, for only 5 to 10 minutes. If percolated too long the coffee is likely to be bitter.

Canned cream of mushroom soup flavored with a little soy sauce and grated onion may be used to prepare smothered chicken. Brown the chicken as usual, add the soup and seasoning, cover the skillet tightly and finish cooking over very low heat. A little water or chicken broth may be used to thin the soup if desired.

Be Your Own Carpenter

A functional wood cabinet with sliding doors can be assembled in your spare time for your living room, bedroom, or dining room, from a pattern featured in the November issue of Charm, the magazine for the business girl.

Eleventh in a series of Charm's furniture patterns, this cabinet—designed for the business girl by architect, Klaus Grabe—may be used to house linens, bedding, china, or as a storage space for off-season clothing. Its top offers an excellent surface from which to serve buffet suppers. Twenty-nine inches high by 20 inches wide, the unit may be built with one or two shelves and may measure either 48 or 72 inches in length, according to your needs and the size of your room.

Charm recommends the use of fir plywood for the top sides, and base; for the sliding doors, walnut plywood—waxed just enough to bring out the natural beauty of the wood. When the cabinet is completed, you may treat the top, sides, and base with a light-gray enamel finish. Any carpenter or lumber dealer can cut out the wood pieces for you, and the ability to follow directions and to wield some simple tools are all the essentials you'll need to construct the cabinet.

What to Wear

Wear a worldly dress for brilliant winter evenings, suggests the November issue of Charm, the magazine for the business girl. Pictured in the issue is a striking bare-shouldered dress with a gilt-edged quilted taffeta bodice. Its bouffant, double-net skirt is calm, moves easily, is poised and graceful as you walk. Its filmy stole draped about your face and shoulders gives added allure.

Play hostess in the morning in a quilted satin lounge coat. Charm's favorite has a huge coachman collar, cuffed sleeves, a flaring skirt, and an invisible hip pocket. For extra luxury, it's lined with rayon taffeta.

A lace-trimmed stole will be an especially thrilling Christmas gift for a popular girl. Make it yourself for one or several of your friends; it will be doubly appreciated for its beauty and for your effort. You'll need a wide silk stole or two 36-inch chiffon squares stitched together and enough black lace for a border. Sew the black lace to the stole, make small pleats at the corners—and presto, you've inexpensively solved a gift problem.

For bridal radiance, wear a smooth white-satin dress. Charm's choice for that day of days is a Florentine-type gown, with blossoms of trapunto embroidery encrusted on the petalled neckline and all around the graceful skirt. As a headdress, a coronet of shirring and a finger-tip veil has dignity and beauty.

The maid of honor will be altogether charming in a dress which echoes the bridal gown in its feeling for line and rich detail. Why not a rayon taffeta dress with scrolls of cording on the full skirt, a bit of fichu to cover the shoulders modestly? With a neckline yoke of rayon marquisette, you'll wear it for gala evenings throughout the year. At the wedding, a little taffeta bonnet with net poufs across the front and a veil that ties under the chin will make you look doubly demure and appealing.

The Old Reliable

Be sure to have one clock in the house that keeps absolutely correct time if you must get people off to work or school, even if it is a homely alarm clock. Then they can depend on this timepiece should the others vary, and no lateness will occur.

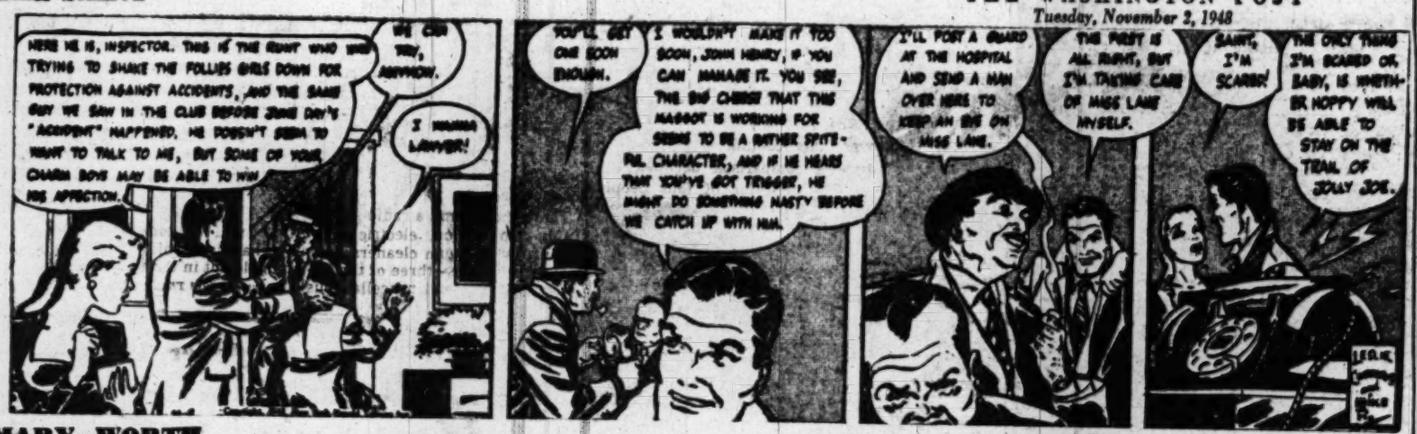
THE SAINT



HERE HE IS, INSPECTOR. THIS IS THE GUNT WHO WAS TRYING TO SHAKE THE FOLLIES GIRLS DOWN FOR PROTECTION AGAINST ACCIDENTS, AND THE SAME GUY WE SAW IN THE CLUB BEFORE JUNE DAY'S "ACCIDENT" HAPPENED. HE DOESN'T SEEM TO WANT TO TALK TO ME, BUT SOME OF YOUR CHARM BOYS MAY BE ABLE TO WIN HIS AFFECTION.
WE CAN TRY, ANYHOW.
I WANNA LAWYER!
YOU'LL GET ONE SOON ENOUGH.
I WOULDN'T MAKE IT TOO SOON, JOHN HENRY, IF YOU CAN MANAGE IT. YOU SEE, THE BIG CHEESE THAT THIS MASCOT IS WORKING FOR SEEMS TO BE A RATHER SPITEFUL CHARACTER, AND IF HE HEARS THAT YOU'VE GOT TRIGGER, HE MIGHT DO SOMETHING NASTY BEFORE WE CATCH UP WITH HIM.
I'LL POST A GUARD AT THE HOSPITAL AND SEND A MAN OVER HERE TO KEEP AN EYE ON MISS LANE.
THIS PUPIT IS ALL RIGHT, BUT I'M TAKING CARE OF MISS LANE MYSELF.
SAINT, I'M SCARED!
THE ONLY THING I'M SCARED OF, BABY, IS WHETHER HOPPY WILL BE ABLE TO STAY ON THE TRAIL OF JOLLY JOE.

MARY WORTH

YOU USED TO KNOW ANGEL VARDEN, AUNT MARY? HOW MANY HUSBANDS AGO WAS THAT?-- OR WAS SHE BETWEEN MARRIAGES AT THE TIME?
I'LL ADMIT THAT SHE WAS TRYING TO ACQUIRE A NEW LAST NAME EVERY TIME I ENCOUNTERED HER, BRICK!
SHE'S SUPPOSED TO BE THE WHITE GODDESS OF A SAVAGE TRIBE IN THE PICTURE?--I THINK I'LL MAKE HER A CANNIBAL!--SO SHE WON'T HAVE TO ACT!
DON'T WORRY, ANGEL! I'LL TALK TO MR. ZAZZMAN AN' TELL HIM TO HAVE MISS BRICKER WRITE YOU A REAL OSCAR-WINNER PART IN THE LINK RILEY PITCHA!
YEAH--AN' MAYBE IT'D BE SMART TO GIVE HER A SONG AN' DANCE --ON HOW IT'S A BREAK FOR HER, GETTIN' TO WORK ON AN ANGEL VARDEN STORY!

STEVE CANYON

IF SOYBOY SAW THOSE SUBVERTS FROM THE CITY GUNNING RAK INTO THEIR AIRPLANE—THEN SAW IT CRASH INTO THE WATER, IT MIGHT PUT A NEW FACE ON THIS FIRE!
MAYBE THEY FORCED TH' PORE CRITTER T' SET IT—OR DID TH' ARSONING THEMSELVES! HUH, STEVIE!
POWER BOAT PUTTING OUT FROM THE CARGO VESSEL, MIZZY CANYON!
WE MUST HUNT FOR THE WRECKAGE— HEY, SAILOR!
WE'VE HEARD THAT MR. RAK, THE HEAD MAN HERE, WAS CRASHED INTO THE EAST LAGOON IN A FLOAT PLANE! CAN YOU RIDE US OVER TO SEARCH THE AREA?
HE'S TALKING ABOUT MY DAD!

JOE PALOOKA

TH' CHAMP'LL BOX TWO ROUNDS WITH LIMEHOUSE BROOKS, FORMALLY OF ENGLAND.
THAT WAS SWELL, "LIMEHOUSE". YOUR LEFT IS LIKE A FLASH OF LIGHTNING.
TIME!

MICKEY FINN

IF YOU'RE SURE I WASN'T IN ON IT, WHY DON'T YA GET ME OUT ON BAIL?
I'M A DEPUTY SHERIFF, RED -I'M NOT ALLOWED TO GET BAIL FOR ANYBODY-
BUT I HOPE TO GET YOU OUT BEFORE THE HEARING -AND ALL THE WAY OUT! THAT'S WHY I'M HERE! DO YOU KNOW WEEPY'S COUSIN?
WEEPY'S COUSIN?
YEAH? DANNY CAME TO THE OFFICE THIS MORNING -AND HERE'S WHAT HE TOLD ME—
YOU DON'T REMEMBER HIS NAME - OR THE NAME OF THE BOAT HE WORKED ON?
NO! BUT I'LL BET THAT'S WHO IT WAS!

PENNY

YOU KNOW HOW YOU COULDN'T GET THE VACUUM CLEANER GOING THIS MORNING, FATHER?
YES.
WELL, I TOOK A BOBBY PIN AND POKED IT IN A LITTLE HOLE IN THE SIDE AND IT WENT WHOOOOOSH!
SAY NO MORE! I KNOW THE REST. IT SAID WHOOOOOSH AND STARTED RUNNING SMOOTH AS SILK.
WELL, NOT QUITE.
IT SAID WHOOOOOSH AND LOOK!

DOTTY

HORACE, CAN'T YOU BE A LITTLE NEATER? I JUST CLEANED THIS ROOM!!
BUT, DOTTY--DON'T YOU LIKE A HOME TO HAVE THAT LIVED-IN LOOK?
YES, BUT I DON'T WANT OURS TO LOOK LIKE THE PIGS LIVED IN IT!!

MARK TRAIL

PLEASE, LEM--LET THEM CITY FOLKS TAKE THE CHANCES OF GETTING RIPPED TO DEATH...
ALL RIGHT, RUTHIE, I'LL WAIT TILL THEY GET HERE!
BACK AT LOST FOREST
WE'VE RECEIVED SO MANY NAMES FOR ANDY'S PUPPY, IT'S GOING TO BE TOUGH PICKING A WINNER, MARK
I THINK WE'D BETTER PICK OUT THE BEST AND SEND THEM TO SOME OUTDOOR PEOPLE TO JUDGE SWELL... AND ASK THEM TO PICK THE WINNER!

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

"It Takes All Kinds to Make a World"

"Pest of the Week" is the title conferred by motorists on a motorcyclist who frequents the outskirts of Washington dressed in an unidentified uniform which resembles that of a speed cop.

Those who try to pass his slow-moving cycle get a stern look, and they usually drop timidly back into line.

After leading his parade for several miles, the cyclist pulls over to the side of the road, and it becomes evident that he's an impostor, and no policeman.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Just when we girls had gotten our wardrobes under control again, the stylemasters gleefully change everything. Now we must start all over again, "without a thing to wear."

I am very unhappy.

Mrs. Raymond Cole,
3164 Westover dr. se.

Dear Mrs. Cole:

What's this, what's this? If this means paying for new clothes again, move over and make room for a man who is prostrate with grief.

Who is changing which styles? Tell me quick! Bill.

P.S.: On second thought, don't tell me. What I don't know can't hurt me. If I ignore it, maybe it'll go away.

MISCELLANY

Christmas parcels for service personnel should be mailed before November 15, or they probably won't reach their destinations in time. Packages for Japan, Korea and the Pacific Islands should be mailed even earlier—by November 1, according to the postmaster . . . I'm told that a rugged individualist who runs a parking lot near 14th and Park rd. nw. displays a sign which says: "2½ hours parking, 25 cents or less" . . . I'll bet there's a story behind that one . . . Mrs. Maureen Marlowe of 610 Shoreham Building, Christmas book and magazine purchases comes word that the Rockville Public Library will hold a benefit book fair Friday, from 1 to 10 p. m. Mrs. Henrietta Nesbitt ("White House Diary") and Mary Green ("Is It Hard? Is It Easy?") will be on hand to autograph copies of their books . . . The latest Connecticut license plate to turn up spells "BOMB."

PET PEEVE

In a half-century of annually bringing out "all new" models, the auto industry still hasn't remedied my pet peeve—the door handle that's placed in exactly the right spot to snag the driver's sleeve.

There may be a make or model here and there which permits a man with sleeves to turn the steering wheel without danger, but by and large the door handle on the driver's side is a booby trap.

When you're parking, for example, and spinning the wheel at a furious pace, you suddenly feel your left arm caught in a grip of steel, and hear the gentle ripping of cloth in your best suit or coat.

A strategically placed handle has claimed one more victim. And in Detroit, some misanthrope no doubt sits hunched over his drawing board, laughing hysterically.

He's an expert, jointly hired by the auto and tailoring industries, to make sure that the handle is properly designed and placed to catch a maximum number of sleeves.

Except for the inroads made by the designers who replace handles with pushbuttons, he's done a terrific job. And how I hate that guy.

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

GIVE-AWAYS

"Four-month-old puppy, half Irish setter, very lovable and easy to train." (Temple 0006).

"Three - month - old black kitten." (Ordway 5565.)

"Two playful kittens, 10 weeks old; lots of fun." (Wisconsin 6313.)

"Gray female kitten, very affectionate." (Columbia 7970).

"No cats or dogs to give, but I would like to give away my time, to help my little girl and some other little girl whose mother works.

"My Sherry is 3½ years old, and needs a playmate. We have a fenced back yard, and a second floor back porch which is used as a play room.

"Sherry has all the toys you could ask for, but that still doesn't take the place of a little companion.

"So I'd like to take care of a little girl five days a week while her mother works. I prefer a child who still takes naps in the afternoon, because Sherry does.

"Such an arrangement would permit me to take care of a child whose mother works, and at the same time provide a playmate for my own lonesome child." (Mrs. H. D. Coller, Taylor 3894 or Randolph 4440.)

HE AIN'T KIDDING

Ralph W. Lash of 1008 E st. ne. thinks the Metropolitan Police Department is making a mistake in not permitting Peter G. Barrick to join the force.

"What if he is a fraction of an inch too short?" asks Ralph, "I know plenty of guys who are 5-feet-5 who can flatten 6-footers."

In his new Roosevelt-Hopkins book, Robert E. Sherwood mentions some of the Roosevelt speeches which he helped prepare. Sherwood started his White House work shortly after he wrote "Abe Lincoln In Illinois." . . . Roosevelt once discarded some Lincoln quotations which were to be used in a speech. For the last 25 years of his life George M. Cohan ordered his press agent, Charles Washburn, to send every Cohan song to Franz Lehar, the composer, who died last week. Lehar wrote him that he thought "Over There" was "pretty good" but that his favorite was "H-a-double-R-i-g-a-n Spells Harrigan" . . . "I often wish," wrote Lehar, "that I could express my sentiments for Vienna as lovely as you do for Ireland" . . . "Thanks, but forgive me for disagreeing," replied Cohan. "You belong to the world and I only to Broadway—the long green side of the street."

The National Jewish Hospital at Denver is the country's oldest, free, non-sectarian tuberculosis center. A few weeks ago a New York bus driver of Irish descent was admitted to the hospital in a serious condition. This was in the week of Rosh Hashonah, the Jewish New Year . . . He was examined and an immediate and drastic operation was prescribed. The patient was wheeled back to his bed after the operation and, coming out of the ether, he weakly lifted his head, heard a greeting, "Happy New Year," then turned to his nurse and said, "Gosh, I slept right through Christmas."

Mrs. Herbert Bayard Swope saw a preview of "The Snake Pit" and shrugged: "That's just an average day in my life" . . . The greatest non-fiction advance sale in book history is Eisenhower's "Crusade in Europe"—100,000 copies.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Four New Dealers in Campaign

By Drew Pearson

Now that the election tumult is over, this column would like to draw a comparison between the political behavior of four people once extremely close to Franklin Roosevelt. They are Eleanor Roosevelt, Harold Ickes, Jesse Jones and Henry Wallace.

Pearson

Winston Churchill used to say that it was only when the dark came down that the stars shone. And as the twilight settles on the great period of American history that was the Roosevelt Administration, it is significant to note who stands up to go down with the ship, and who scurries off to take their revenge or to curry favor with the Deweyites.

No two men ever received more benefits from Franklin Roosevelt than Jesse Jones and Henry Wallace.

Wallace was an obscure farm writer and seed grower in Iowa, when FDR picked him up and put him in his Cabinet. Eight years later, a large segment of the Democratic Party winced and some openly rebelled when FDR insisted that Wallace be his vice presidential running mate.

Jesse Jones also was desperately out on the financial limb when he became Democratic member of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Suddenly, after pounding the pavements of Wall Street trying to borrow money to bail out his precarious enterprises, Jesse became the great Government moneylender.

Under Roosevelt he became the financial czar of America with the power to put his friends in command of airlines, railroads, insurance companies, utilities. No one ever accused Jesse of making loans to his own enterprises, but he accumulated enormous obligations of gratitude by his capacity to make loans to others.

And cold-blooded Jesse was not the kind of man who did not keep double-entry books of obligation in his own mind as he dispensed the billions that a Democratic Administration gave him.

Principle In Defeat

It is a queer quirk of fate that it was Jesse Jones and Henry Wallace who rowed so continually that FDR had to crack their heads together. Eventually he eased Wallace out of the Vice Presidency and fired Jesse Jones, fired him because he suspected what has now been proved a fact—namely, that Jesse was quietly building up a Republican bloc in Texas.

Today, Jesse Jones, in his seventies, considered a cold-blooded opportunist by most of the people of Texas, has come out openly for the Republican Party. Today, his old adversary, Henry Wallace, is conspiring with the Commies to bring about the demise of those who made him.

And today, Harold Ickes, also in his seventies, has been riding the rails to Montana, making speeches, using up his strength to fight for a principle and a party he believes in, even though he knows it will be defeated.

No one ever fought harder to oppose Truman's renomination at Philadelphia than Harold Ickes, and, behind the scenes, so also did Mrs. Roosevelt. But once the decision was made, both decided to stay on the ship that had served them in victory and go down with it in defeat.

U. S. Waterfront Thefts

A major scandal over large-scale thefts from the docks of New York and San Francisco is about to break wide open. It has been developing for more than a year, but shipping companies so far have sat on the lid, fearful of trouble with the unions.

Particularly heavy losses of everything from hot-water bottles to automobiles have been suffered by the Moore-McCormack lines operating to South America. Evidence gathered by company investigators to date clearly indicates collusion in the thefts between seamen and dock workers.

On a recent shipment of five new Ford cars to a Brazilian port, aboard a Moore-McCormack vessel, all the vehicles were duly registered on the ship's manifest but only four could be located on arrival. In another instance, two cars out of seven "disappeared" en route.

On the West Coast, and especially in San Francisco, the illegal removal of merchandise from docksides reached such proportions that the shipowners' association finally cracked down. Complaints to Harry Bridges, boss of the longshoremen's union, brought no results until the shippers persuaded San Francisco police to raid a suspected stevedore's home.

There they found a radio-phonograph combination, electric dishwasher, two vacuum cleaners, four sets of chinaware—three of the latter still boxed—and miscellaneous items worth a total of more than $9000.

After that, the shipowners forced Bridges to agree to a jointly controlled inspection of all vehicles leaving the dock area. Since then thefts have been cut down but not wholly eliminated. Apparently, there still is considerable small merchandise which workers can smuggle out in their clothing.
